BRITISH DISLIKE ISOLATION

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 4.—It was announced at the Quai d'Orsay this evening that the French reply to the German note would be handed to the allied and American Governments tomorrow, after which it would be sent to Berlin at once. The decision to communicate the reply to the allied Governments before sending it to Germany is due to a suggestion by Britain, in return for which the French will be acquainted with the contents of the British reply before it goes to Berlin. But the Quai d'Orsay stoutly denies that there will be any conferring with Great Britain on the terms of the French reply.

Premier Poincaré received from Brussels this afternoon an approval of the text of his reply, sent to the Belgian capital last night. The Belgians will reply in a separate note, which, it is said, will follow closely the lines of the French communication.

Poincaré's answer to Chancellor Cuno contains eight typewritten pages, about two thousand words. Answering point by point Cuno's note, it will set forth the following four principles of French policy:

First—No negotiations so long as the Germans continue passive resistance in the Ruhr.

Second—No evacuation of the Ruhr except in proportion to German payments.

Third—All discussion of the amount of reparations to be on the basis of the London schedule.

Fourth—Germany must offer practical guarantees for France's security, instead of a vague formula.

The German offer and its prompt rejection seemed to have placed the country again solidly behind Poincaré, and whereas two weeks ago it seemed that trouble awaited him with the reopening of Parliament, it is believed now that when the two houses meet again on May 8 the sort pedal will be put on criticism of the Premier for the time being.

The French Case Summed Up.

As the French see it, either Cuno will fall and a new Chancellor will make fresh proposals, or Cuno will stay to continue resistance. In either case, they figure, France must stand firm. The Journal des Debats sums up this feeling as follows:

"Evacuation of the Ruhr can take place only when Germany fulfills her obligations. Her note of May 2 proves that no confidence can be placed on German good faith. We were patient for two years; for two years we fell for combinations suggested by our friends who still had illusions as to the good-will of our debtors. We stood for insults from Germany. Now it is enough. We owe it to ourselves and our friends to be inflexible today.

"Let none say we seek to crush Germany. It is Germany who has methodically ruined herself. Intact and well equipped after the armistice, she could have developed her prosperity and met her obligations. With a deliberate desire to cheat us she leads herself to ruin. She is now caught in her trap."

The French appear to have at last given up hope of a big international loan to regulate reparations, and now say there is no solution except for Germany to earn and pay. To make Germany do this, they say, they must keep a hold on the Ruhr and collect there through proper functioning of the Ruhr machinery. The Cuno note makes them realize that they have yet to wait before the Germans are ready to meet those terms.

The French assert that they now are getting from the Ruhr enough coal and coke to pay for their operations. While this may be true in one sense, in another sense it is not. While the Government, perhaps, is getting back all it expends for the Ruhr occupation, French industry still is suffering from lack of coal and coke. But that does not appear to alter the will of the vast majority of the French people to see it through.

Belgians Even More Severe.

PARIS, May 4 (Associated Press).—Exchanges between Paris and Brussels show that Premier Theunis and Foreign Minister Jaspar approve unreservedly Premier Poincaré's reply to the latest German reparations note. They even offered certain suggestions tending to strengthen M. Poincaré's arguments. These the French Premier at once adopted and incorporated in the original text, and the revised document was sent to Brussels by special courier tonight.

The Belgian Cabinet will decide the form of its reply and advise M. Poincaré by noon tomorrow. In any case, the French note, the main points of which Premier Poincaré communicated to Lord Crewe, the British Ambassador, this evening, will be handed to the British, Italian and American Ambassadors early tomorrow afternoon.

French Aloofness Disappoints British.

LONDON, May 4 (Associated Press).—Up to a late hour tonight the text of France's rejection of the terms embraced in Germany's recent note on reparations had not reached London.

France apparently rejected the German overture, if not without actually consulting the British Government, certainly without paying much deference

French Criticize the League As Spending Money Lavishly

PARIS, May 4.—The League of Nations is criticised for "lavish expenditures" and is advised to practice economy by the Senate Finance Commission's report on the foreign affairs budget, drafted by Senator Hubert.

"The League," says the report, "is organized with a multiplicity of subdivisions, with a luxury of personnel and a prodigality of disbursements for stationery, office expenses and supplementary allowances, to which should be directed the attention of the administrators of the League and those charged with the supervision of its finances."

GREW IN SHARP TILT WITH ISMET PASHA

Another Break-Up Feared by Delegates Despite America's Lining Up With the Allies.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LAUSANNE, May 4.—The conference reached a deadlock today on the question of capitulations. The session was marked by a sharp clash between Minister Grew, head of the American delegation, and Ismet Pasha, chief of the Turkish delegation.

Faced by the Turks' defiant defense of their contention that the capitulations were abolished by them in 1914, the Allies have been trying to get some compensating guarantees in return for this abolition. One of these proposed guarantees was the employment by the Turks of four foreign jurists, who should act as advisers for an interregnum of five years. On the last day of the first Lausanne conference, Feb. 4, the Allies included in the proposed treaty rejected by the Turks on that day the Montagna project, which simply provided that those jurists should be used as advisers by the Turks. The Turks rejected the proposal along with the rest of the treaty.

Today, when this part of the proposed treaty was reached, Sir Horace Rumbold, representing England, offered an addition providing that in Constantinople, Smyrna, Samsun and Adalia for five years no foreigners could be arrested or their homes searched by the Turkish police without the approval of one of the four foreign jurists.

Ismet at once refused to discuss the proposed change on the ground that the Allies must stand on their project of Feb. 4. Sir Horace replied that the Turks had rejected this proposal, so that it could not be regarded as binding. Ismet insisted that on Feb. 3 the Turks had agreed to accept it. Sir Horace said that Lord Curzon had left Lausanne the night of Feb. 4 and that nothing which took place after his departure counted.

Calls Ismet's Attitude Absurd.

Ismet, however, still maintained that the Allies had no right to try to change an article already agreed upon, whereupon General Pelle, head of the French delegation, called attention to the fact that the Turks had been trying to change everything decided at the first conference. He characterized Ismet's attitude as absurd.

At this point Mr. Grew intervened to say that America was deeply interested in the status of foreigners in Turkey and wished to see a settlement reached. He urged Ismet to consider the allied proposal. Ismet replied with a flat refusal. Mr. Grew persisted in his request, whereupon Ismet said: "Mr. Grew, you know full well that on the night of Feb. 4 you and Mr. Child and Admiral Bristol came into my hotel room and urged me to accept the Montagna proposal, and now you try to go back on what you said."

Mr. Grew answered that the Americans had merely used their good offices to obtain the Turks' acceptance of the allied terms in order to prevent the conference from breaking up. He said he had never presumed to say whether the allied terms were or were not final.

Ismet was firm in his refusal to give the slightest consideration to the article added to the Montagna proposal and

ISOLATION POLICY FUTILE FOR AMERICA, HARDING BELIEVES

ADMITS WORLD HAS CLAIMS

UNMOVED BY SENATORS

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—From the White House came today a reiteration of President Harding's cordial endorsement of the proposed American participation in the League of Nations World Court. This was drawn forth by the impression gained at the White House Tuesday that the President, having made his World Court proposal to the Senate, did not contemplate any further active steps toward translating his proposal into action, but would have the Senate take it or leave it.

It appears that the newspaper men who were at the White House Tuesday took the President's spokesman too literally. That at least was what they understood when they went to the White House after today's Cabinet meeting. They heard from the same spokesman that not only did the President intend to press his World Court policy but that his experience as President had shown him that nobody could hold the Presidential office without being convinced that it was impossible for the United States to stand aloof from the world.

Enough was disclosed at the White House as to what the President thinks in regard to our international relations, to put him in the class with those whom irreconcilables, isolationists and die-hards call internationalists. It was made clear that the President did not subscribe to the Covenant of the League of Nations, but with equal clearness his position was declared to be in thorough sympathy with the view that the world's affairs are so closely interlocked that the United States would be obliged to assume obligations born of the present chaotic international conditions.

So positive was the White House statement of Mr. Harding's espousal of American participation in efforts to straighten out the affairs of a war-worn world that a jocular commentator who had heard the statement suggested that Mr. Harding might make a good Democratic candidate for President.

Speeches, but Not Propaganda.

What was meant to be conveyed at the White House Tuesday was that the President did not intend to conduct any propagandist movement to arouse public sentiment that would influence the Senate to sanction his World Court recommendation. The White House spokesman had been asked on that day if it were true that Mr. Harding was endeavoring to persuade the National League of Women's Clubs to endorse his World Court policy when the league meets in convention in Atlanta next week. The response made then was intended, according to the White House explanation today, to have the country understand that the President would not engage in any propaganda of that character.

Today's explanation included the information that the President intended to discuss the World Court when he traversed the continent on his way to Alaska next month.

The President, however, his spokesman said today, was not surprised that the statement of last Tuesday had caused discussion—that is, the statement that he did not intend to conduct any propagandist campaign in support of his recommendation that the United States join the League's World Court. What the President had to say about the World Court in his speech last month at the annual luncheon of The Associated Press was in plain English, he thought, and anybody who understood English could understand what he meant.

As for the Senate the President was not worried over any "acute" situa-

Women's Convention Protests Against Italian Bull Fight

ROME, May 4 (Associated Press).—The convention of Italian women, in session here, has registered a protest against the first bull fight to occur in Italy, which is to be staged in Rome on Sunday. The women denounce the promoters for introducing into Italy "such a cruel, inhuman sport."

Despite this protest and the many other criticisms that have been voiced, a large audience is expected to witness the fight, as widespread curiosity has been aroused. The promoters are advertising the event boldly with huge placards and parading toreros and banderilleros in Spanish costume.

FORD LEADS WORLD IN TREASURY CASH

Earnings on Stock Owned by Father and Son, Equal $690 on Each $100 Share.

The Ford Motor Company, Inc., has more actual cash in its treasury than any other corporation in the United States, regardless of its size. The cash holdings exceed those of even the United States Steel Corporation, despite the fact that the assets of Henry Ford's company are only about one-fourth as large as that of the largest steel organization in the world.

The assets of the Ford Company now total more than $500,000,000, the largest in the history of the Ford organization, and approximately two and one-half times as large as they were only five years ago. These facts were given in a statement of the Ford Company covering the year ended Feb. 28, 1923, as filed yesterday with the Massachusetts Commissioner of Corporations at Boston.

When the Ford company was organized in Michigan, just twenty years ago, it had total assets of less than $100,000. At that time Mr. Ford did not even have a controlling interest in the original 125,000 of capital which was subscribed by Ford and the friends he managed to interest in his enterprise, which now stands above all in the automobile industry of the world. It was not until 1906, fully three years after the company was incorporated, that Mr. Ford was successful in obtaining a 51 per cent. interest in the company, giving him complete control of its affairs. Shortly after that time he acquired an additional 7½ per cent. of the stock. The last 41½ per cent. was purchased by Edsel B. Ford, son of Henry Ford, and the two now reap the entire profits of the Ford organization.

The profits for the year ended Feb. 28, 1923, as shown in the statement, approximate $119,000,000, after paying all running expenses, allowance for depreciation, depletion, taxes and other charges which might be deducted from current earnings. Inasmuch as the outstanding capital stock of the Ford company amounts to only $17,264,500, consisting of 172,645 shares of $100 par value each, the profits for 1923, after allowing for all deductions, was in excess of $690 a share.

Details of the financial statement show that on Feb. 28 the company had total cash holdings of $159,605,687, the largest at any time in the history of the company, and probably larger than any other corporation in the world. The annual statement of the United States Steel Corporation at the close of 1922, issued a short time ago, showed that its cash holdings were $128,700,131.

The Ford Company's cash holdings are much larger today, however, than they were in February. Only a few weeks ago, when the old Wall Street rumor to the effect that Ford might have to borrow some money, was again circulated, advices were received from the West that the company had cash amounting to $200,000,000. This is believed to be due to a further turning of inventory into new cars and the placing of these cars on the market. The February statement showed that Ford's inventory account was carried on the general balance sheet at $83,693,884, a total almost double that of the same date last year, and with the exception of 1920 the largest ever carried. Even the 1920 inventory account, carried at a time when prices were much higher than at present, was valued at only $96,000,000. Liquidating of inventory since Feb. 28 is believed to have greatly augmented the cash account.

The complete financial statement of the company, as filed in Boston, follows, the figures being as of Feb. 28:

MISS COIT RETURNS FROM TRIP TAKEN ON STRANGE IMPULSE

TOOK FIRST TRAIN HOME

Under circumstances almost as mysterious as her disappearance last Monday afternoon, Miss Elizabeth K. Coit, daughter of Charles H. Coit, a banker, of Litchfield, Conn., returned last night to the home of her aunt, Miss Susan Sawyer, in Montclair, N. J. She announced that she had returned from Chicago, after having been seized with an unaccountable desire to travel.

Miss Coit, who is 22 years old, refused to be interviewed about her disappearance, sending word that she was very fatigued after her trip. However, through a statement issued by her aunt and her mother, who had met the girl at the Grand Central Terminal here at 5:30 in the afternoon, the story of her strange trip was revealed.

Miss Sawyer said that the girl told them that, when she left Mis Sawyer's home at 32 High Street, Montclair, at 12:40 P. M. last Monday, she was intent on going to the Grand Central Terminal to meet her father and mother. She said that when she reached the Thirty-third Street Station of the Hudson Tubes, about 1:30 P. M., she became faint and was seized with a sudden desire to go away.

Her mother had left the home of Miss Sawyer, Mrs. Coit's sister, earlier in the day to meet Mr. Coit, who was to accompany her on a shopping trip, after which they were to be joined by their daughter at the Grand Central Station for a journey to the Coit home in Litchfield.

Got a Ticket for Chicago.

Miss Sawyer said that Miss Coit told her that she went to the Pennsylvania Station. Soon after arriving there, she said, she felt a dizziness coming over her. One of the station porters came along and, evidently observing her condition, picked up the two traveling bags the girl carried and led her into the women's waiting room. She remained in the waiting room about an hour, Elizabeth went on, when she decided to board a train.

She called a porter and sent him for a ticket to Chicago, and then she got on a train which was about to leave. This proved to be the Nickel Plate Express. Miss Coit told her relatives that she could remember very little about the journey to Chicago, but when the train pulled into that city the next day her mind had cleared considerably, and she went to one of the branches of the Young Women's Christian Association, near the station.

She said that she did not notice the location of the branch, but, after staying there over night, became dissatisfied with the room and decided to "go further on." When she took account of her available finances, the girl continued, she realized that she had not enough money with which to hire a room at a hotel.

Miss Coit said that she then recalled that she had friends, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Huston, in Chicago. She had met Mr. and Mrs. Huston and their children on a steamship on which she and her mother were returning from Glasgow, Scotland, about two months ago. Miss Sawyer explained that Mrs. Coit had not had much intercourse with the Hustons during the voyage, but Elizabeth became very much attached to one of the Huston children and in that manner obtained the address of the Chicago family.

Goes to Friend's Home.

Miss Coit had never revealed the Huston address to her relatives. When the girl realized her financial predicament, after leaving the Young Women's Christian Association branch, she called Mrs. Huston on the telephone and was invited to call at the house. Miss Coit said that she told Mr. and Mrs. Huston that she had come to Chicago on a business trip. It was not until

LEGISLATURE KILLS DRY ENFORCEMENT ACT AFTER LONG FIGHT ON LAST DAY OF SESSION, SMITH WILL SIGN REPEAL, HIS FRIENDS SAY

Federal Policy Unchanged by New York Action; Police Must Still Enforce Law, Says Official

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—James E. Jones, Assistant Prohibition Commissioner, said tonight, when informed that the New York Legislature had passed the Cuvillier bill repealing the State Prohibition Enforcement law, that it would not affect the policy of the Government in its efforts to make New York bone dry.

"The New York Legislature cannot repeal the Eighteenth Amendment, and it cannot repeal the Volstead law," he remarked. "The Volstead law will remain the law regardless of any action taken at Albany. The repeal of the State law puts New York in the same category as Rhode Island, where there is no State law, but where the Volstead law is being enforced by the Federal authorities."

"What effect will it have on the enforcement of the law so far as the New York City Police Department is concerned?" he was asked.

"It should have no effect whatever," he replied, "for the police have taken an oath to uphold the Constitution, and the Eighteenth Amendment is a part of the Constitution. No matter what the New York Legislature does, it will still be the duty of all police, constables and other law-enforcing officers to enforce the national law. I have no reason to doubt that they will do so."

Whether additional Federal enforcement officers would be sent into New York as a result of the action of the Legislature could not be ascertained tonight.

Commissioner Haynes could not be reached, nor could Wayne B. Wheeler, counsel of the Anti-Saloon League.

SUGAR NOW 8 CENTS AS CRUSADE SPREADS

20% COST LAID TO TARIFF

Two More Refiners Cut Price—Parade Plans Fall, Only 100 March Around City Hall.

One-fifth of the blame for the price of sugar was placed on the tariff yesterday by the Federal Sugar Refining Company, while the cost of refined and raw sugar continued to drop and the "use less" sugar movement by women assumed national scope.

More than 2,000 delegates to the New York City Federation of Women's Clubs, representing the sentiments of a half million membership, voted to use a minimum of sweets and called upon President Harding to see that his sugar investigation went to the bottom of the bin. The New Jersey State Federation of Women's Clubs, with 40,000 members, also voted to shun sugar. A minimum sugar pledge was distributed to delegates from 250 women's organizations at a meeting in the City Hall.

Locally, retail grocers enlisted in the fight to cut the cost of sugar and Gristede Brothers, operating eighty chain stores, announced an offer of five pounds of sugar at 8 cents a pound. Officials of the corporation declared that the present price of sugar was uncalled for by conditions.

The Warner Sugar Refining Company, and the National Sugar Refining Company, reduced their rates for refined sugar one-quarter of a cent a pound to a wholesale price of 9.90 cents, in lots of 100 pounds or in barrels. This figure is still higher than the 9¼ cents quoted on Thursday by the Federal Sugar Refining Company. The Pennsylvania Sugar Refining Company cut its price three-quarters of a cent a pound for bulk shipments and five-eighths of a cent a pound for small lots.

Price of Cuban Raw Drops.

Cuban raw sugar also continued downward, with the demand not brisk. The raw product was offered at 5⅞ cents a pound, against 6 cents on Thursday, and a peak price of 6¾ cents a week ago.

On the New York Sugar Exchange the movements in futures was decidedly irregular. At the start of the trading the market was weak, with contracts calling for future deliveries showing a drop of from 15 to 35 points below the closing quotations on Thursday. There was a sharp rally later, however, so that the day closed with some options down 23 points and others up 16 points.

Taking note of the women's agitation,

ASSEMBLY LETS DOWN BARS

ALBANY, Saturday, May 5.—After an all day and night session, the Legislature adjourned sine die at 3:08 o'clock this morning, fourteen hours behind the time originally set for the final fall of the gavel. In the final rush to get away the Republican Assembly concurred with the Democratic Senate in several measures recommended by Governor Smith.

Long before the adjournment hour there were rumors about the Capitol corridors of an extraordinary session of the Legislature in September to take up again the transit and public utility program, following a campaign through the State during the Summer of Governor Smith and Mayor Hylan.

At the Executive Chamber no confirmation could be had of the rumors, but friends of Mayor Hylan seemed inclined to the belief that the extraordinary session would materialize.

Among the measures which will go to the Governor for his approval was that sponsored by Senator Sheridan providing for an appropriation of $75,000 to permit the Attorney General to continue a suit before the United States Supreme Court testing the Federal Water Power act. Another created a bureau of housing and regional planning in the State Architect's office to investigate housing conditions in the State and report on the advisability of further extension of the rent and tax exemptions laws.

The Assembly passed, the Senate later concurring, Mayor Hylan's bill which would permit the New York City authorities to issue corporate stock for current expenses—a radical departure from the pay-as-you-go policy adopted during the Mitchell Administration. The Mayor's bill, as originally drafted, provided for a limitation of $15,000,000. As passed tonight the bill provides for a $10,000,000 limit, of which $5,000,000 must be used for street paving and $5,000,000 for other purposes. The bill, in its final form, explicitly prohibited use of any part of the money for construction of Grover Whalen's proposed new bridge over the East River.

The Senate and Assembly passed the Walker bill which provides for a commission to go over the statutes of the State and adjust them to conform with the home-rule amendment to the State Constitution which will be submitted to the voters for ratification this Fall.

Against the opposition of New York City Republicans, the Assembly concurred with the Senate in the passage of the Cotillo bill, which will give the Tammany four more Supreme Court judges in New York County. The bill originally called for six, but was amended.

Both houses passed the McGinnies bill, providing for an appropriation of $850,000, as recommended by Governor Smith, for the improvement and purchase of new State parks. Included is $75,000 for the acquisition of land on Lake George.

The Assembly concurred with the Senate in the passage of the Governor's proposed statutory consolidation of departments. Under this measure the State Highway Department and State Engineer would be consolidated with the Department of Public Works.

All hopes of advocates of direct primaries to see nominations by that method supplant the convention in the case of candidates for State offices vanished when the Democratic Senate by a party vote of 26 to 25 failed to concur with

'WETS' WIN IN FINAL HOURS

SENATE APPROVES, 28 TO 22

JESSE AIDS FINAL VICTORY

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ALBANY, May 4.—Through joint action of the Senate and Assembly, the Mullan-Gage State Prohibition Enforcement act will be wiped off the statute books if Governor Smith gives his approval to the Cuvillier bill which passed in the Senate late tonight by a vote of 28 to 22, after having been approved by the Assembly by a bare constitutional majority of 76 votes earlier in the evening.

Up to the time of its final passage the bill, which had been pending before the Legislature since the early days of the session and had been a storm centre since it was first introduced, had ups and downs which filled the hearts of "wet" legislators with anxiety until the gavel fell with a thump on the Lieutenant Governor's desk in the Senate, and he declared the Cuvillier bill duly passed.

It will become a thirty-day bill and undoubtedly will be the subject of a new attack by the Anti-Saloon League and other "dry" advocates at a public hearing before the Governor. There is little doubt, however, in the minds of persons close to Governor Smith that he will approve the measure.

He made no explicit pledges to that effect during his campaign, but friends of the repeal measure have insisted all along that the Governor would fall short of his duty to those who supported him, should he fail to sign the repeal measure, which, they say, is as much a mandate as any part of the Democratic legislative program.

Jubilation Among the "Wets."

There was great jubilation among the "wets," who foregathered in numbers in the Capitol corridors and occupied seats in the Senate and Assembly galleries while the bill was under debate at the crowning success of the fight when the bill successfully had negotiated the last hurdle and received a majority in the upper house.

Already there is much speculation regarding what effect the action of the Legislature, should the Governor concur, will have on State enforcement of the Federal prohibition statute. The wish may be the father to the thought but the "wets" are expressing tonight the opinion that State troopers will be taken off the Canadian border, which they are patrolling, and thus new avenues will be opened up for an inflow of liquor.

During the debate in the Senate tonight it was pointed out that thousands of defendants who are being held for violation of the Mullan-Gage law would be turned loose the moment the Governor affixed his signature to the Cuvillier bill. One effect will be to eliminate trials of violations of the Eighteenth Amendment and the prohibition law in the State courts.

This would do away with the possibility of persons violating the statutes directed against traffic in prescribed liquor being twice tried and punished for the same offense. The "wet" advocates made much of this situation at the public hearings on the repeal bills.

The solid Democratic vote in the Senate was cast for the Cuvillier Repeal bill. In the Assembly all but two of the sixty-nine Democrats voted for the measure. Nine Republicans in the Assembly and two Republicans in the Senate joined with the Democrats in rolling up a majority for repeal. The Senate Republicans who supported the bill were Senators Robinson of Herkimer and Whitley of Monroe.

No Debate in Senate.

In the upper house the Mullan-Gage repeal bill was taken up soon after that body had reconvened, following a recess which ended at 10:45. The measure had come over as a message from the Assembly. Senator Lusk of Cortland, Republican leader, took the floor first and spoke briefly.

"There is no occasion for an extensive discussion of this bill," he said. "It is a measure repealing the State enforcement of the Federal Prohibition act. It has been discussed exhaustively on the front pages of newspapers for several months.

"I think it is proper for me, however, to point out that thousands and thousands of indictments are pending in all parts of the State against persons who are awaiting trial for violation of this statute we are now about to repeal. Should affirmative action be taken here on this bill all these lawbreakers would be turned loose. We all know the history—Dunnigan of the Bronx, who organized the companies [illegible] went down to defeat in the preliminary single in the Assembly earlier in the day, next spoke.

"This bill," he said, "passed the Senate several weeks ago. My duty is to be congratulated [illegible] the statute books a law that [illegible] has caused so much

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 4.—Governor George S. Silzer received some first-hand information as to how the Volstead law works out in New Jersey this afternoon when he addressed the annual convention of the State Federation of Women's Clubs at the Haddon Hall. Toward the close of a speech in which he gave his approval of a uniform marriage and divorce law, declaring that the act passed by the last Legislature making cruelty a ground for divorce in this State would tend to make a Reno of New Jersey, some one in the audience asked him to speak on prohibition.

Governor Silzer then proceeded to relate an experience he had at a meeting recently when he asked those in an audience of five hundred who had not violated the Volstead law in some form to stand up. He said that seven out of the five hundred stood.

"It might be interesting to apply that test at this meeting," remarked the Governor, and, he cautiously glanced over the audience of nine hundred women in front of him. "How many in this audience," asked the Governor, "haven't violated the Volstead law—or some member of their immediate family—since the law went into effect?" For a moment a pin could be heard to drop. Then here and there among the audience women began to rise, until finally about 40 per cent. stood up, while the remaining 60 per cent. clung to their seats, some with dismay on their countenances.

"About 40 per cent. haven't violated it, I should judge," remarked the Governor. Yesterday the convention unanimously went on record for strict enforcement of the Volstead law, and some in the gathering said that its provisions were not drastic enough.

"I am more personally interested in temperance than in prohibition," said the Governor. "If prohibition will give us temperance I am for it, but it has not done so during the past two years. There is not a woman in this room who doesn't know there is a lot of drinking among young people."

The will of David G. Legget of 222 Columbia Heights, Brooklyn, who died on April 27 at his Bronxville house, was filed in Brooklyn yesterday. Although the estate is estimated at $1,010,000, the appraised value will, it is said, be greatly in excess of that figure.

Mr. Legget was one of the largest property owners in Brooklyn. He owned the Temple Bar Building in Court Street, the Williamsburg Trust Company Building and other properties. Years ago he was a member of the brokerage firm of Whitehouse & Co. and at one time was President of the Long Island Loan and Trust Company. He was unmarried.

The will, dated May 23, 1914, creates a trust fund of $1,000,000 for the benefit of a schoolboy, David, son of Helen A. Simmon, a deceased niece, who will receive the principal when he becomes of age. Provision is made that if David dies, the fund will go to his children; if there are no children, then $250,000 of the fund passes to Albert E. Simmon, his father, and the remainder falls into the general estate.

These bequests to friends were made: Charles Fhipard, $12,500; William Grace, $10,000; William T. Ryan, $7,500; Burton Beckwith, $5,000; Arthur Delthola, $5,000. He left $50,000 to Alice Vera Whitehouse, his goddaughter, and $400,000 to Mary S. Young, a niece. Gifts of jewelry were made to Norman de R. Whitehouse and his wife, Vera Whitehouse. To each of the following $50,000 is given: Roger A. Young, Albert E. Simmon, Eric Jewett and Catherine Legget, wife of David G. Legget, a nephew.

Emil J. Bernard, one of Mr. Legget's oldest servants, receives $15,000. Other bequests to servants are: Annie Rooney, $7,500; Mary Rooney, $2,500; Joseph Cleary, $2,500.

All real estate, except Mr. Legget's property in Bronxville, and the contents of the Brooklyn house are left to David G. Legget. The Bronxville house and its contents go to Mary S. Young.

The residue is divided into fourteen equal parts. Six parts go to the trustees, who will pay three of these parts to Mary S. Young. Four parts go to David G. Legget and four to Ada Wilhelmina Jewett, a niece, of Rockville Center.

The executors are Mary S. Young, niece, and Charles K. Phipard, a friend, each of whom is to receive $30,000 in lieu of commissions. The trustees are the New York Life Insurance and Trust Company and the Brooklyn Trust Company. The decedent ordered that the trustees limit to $50,000 any single investment in any one railroad stock.

understand that out of 30,000 indictments in the City of New York only eighteen convictions have been had under this statute. It is a law which has corrupted the morals of men, women and children in Greater New York and not only that, but it has corrupted the police and sheriffs all over the commonwealth. It ought to be wiped out as a disgrace to our State and nation."

There was no objection when Senator Walker urged that the bill be at once advanced to third reading and placed on final passage. The roll was then called and the final vote taken.

"Wets" Open Battle Early.

Soon after the Assembly convened Mr. Donohue moved to have the rules of the House suspended so as to bring the Dunnigan Repeal bill, which was taken from the Rules Committee last night, on the order of final passage.

Mr. Adler objected and a roll-call was demanded. Much to the surprise of the "wets," and just when they thought they were on the verge of the victory for which they had fought so hard from the start of the present session, the result was announced as 75 to 72, one vote short of the necessary constitutional majority of 76.

A hasty examination of the roll call showed that Assemblyman John F. Nugent, a New York City Democrat was not in his seat when his name was called and that the lack of his vote had made it impossible to bring the Dunnigan bill before the House, even though it was forced out of the Rules Committee last night.

The galleries and spaces in the rear of the Chamber were filled with "dry" law advocates and a cheer which could be heard through the corridors of the Capitol went up when Speaker Machold announced that the motion had been lost.

Scarcely had the vote been announced when Assemblyman Nugent walked into the chamber and took his seat. Mr. Donohue then moved to reconsider the vote by which his motion to suspend the rules had been lost. Speaker Machold ruled that the motion was out of order. Mr. Donohue appealed from the decision of the Chair, but the ruling of the Speaker was sustained, 78 to 70, several of the "wet" Republicans deserting the Democrats.

This made it seem almost certain that there would be no repeal of the Mullan-Gage law at the present session. Under the rules Mr. Donohue could not move to suspend rules twice on the same measure.

Later the "wets" decided they would make one more last effort by moving to discharge the Rules Committee from further consideration of Assemblyman Cuvillier's Repeal bill which is identical with the Dunnigan measure. Early in the session several attempts were made by Mr. Cuvillier to force his Repeal bill out of committee but he was not successful.

When it became known that the Democrats would try to bring the Cuvillier bill out on the floor the report spread through the chamber that the motion would not succeed because several of the "wet" Republicans were disgusted with the failure of Assemblyman Nugent to vote earlier in the day on the Dunnigan bill.

Jesse Saves Day for "Wets."

It was freely predicted that Assemblyman Jesse of New York, who has been regarded as the leader of the Republican "wets," would not vote to support a motion to discharge the Rules Committee on the Cuvillier bill.

When Mr. Donohue finally moved to have the Rules Committee report out the Cuvillier bill, Mr. Adler fought to block him through parliamentary tactics. Mr. Donohue insisted, however, that he could move at any time to discharge the Rules Committee and he was upheld by Speaker Machold.

It was so quiet in the chamber while the vote was being taken that one almost could hear a pin drop. Every member voted on the motion when his name was called with the exception of Assemblyman Jesse, and he was not in his seat. The Democrats, who had kept careful count of the votes, quickly realized that unless he voted to support the motion it would be lost, because only 75 votes had been obtained. Just before the result was announced Mr. Jesse walked into the chamber and asked that he be recorded in favor of the motion. This saved the day in the Assembly for the "wets" and brought the Cuvillier bill out on the floor of the House by a vote of 76 to 70.

When the result was announced hisses were heard in various parts of the House, particularly from a section where there were a number of women.

The bill was quickly advanced to the order of final passage, and the same vote, 76 to 70, was recorded in favor of its passage.

The Republicans who voted to discharge the Rules Committee on the Dunnigan bill and who voted for the Cuvillier bill were Jesse, Steinberg, Ricca, Ullman and Kaufman, all of Greater New York; Murphy and Griffith of Monroe, Seelbach of Erie and Van Wagenen of Ulster.

After the Cuvillier bill had been passed Assemblyman Donohue asked for unanimous consent to substitute the Dunnigan bill, but several "dry" Republicans objected.

WETS HERE SHOW ELATION.

Some Federal Officials Think Mullan-Gage Repeal Means Little.

The repeal of the Mullan-Gage law in the closing hours of the Legislature came as a pleasant surprise to saloon keepers, cabaret and restaurant owners and the rank and file of the Police Department. Officers of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment were happy at the turn in the attitude of the Legislature and expressed the hope that Governor Smith would sign the bill for the repeal.

William H. Anderson, State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, could not be reached last night for an expression of view.

Federal officials refused to be quoted in regard to the probable effect on prohibition enforcement in this city by reason of the repeal of the State enforcement law. R. Q. Merrick, Divisional Chief of Federal enforcement in this State and Northern New Jersey, did not consider it proper to say anything regarding the probable withdrawal of the police as a part of the enforcement machinery here.

Other Federal agents, though refusing to be quoted, considered that the repeal of the Mullan-Gage law would have little effect in New York City. Some of the agents regarded the repeal as an aid in the drying up of the city.

Saloon keepers on the west side, on Eighth and Ninth Avenue, were overjoyed when they learned that the police probably would no longer be a factor for them to contend with in the handling of such drinks as they have to offer. They said that they had been keeping their places open in the hope that eventually the State law would be repealed. They consider that it would be a simpler matter for them if they had only the Federal agents to fear, because the number of such agents is very limited as compared with the number of policemen available for the enforcement of the prohibition law.

A few of the owners of cabarets and "speak-easies" on the west side likewise expressed gratification. The cabaret owners were especially glad, because they saw the likelihood of the immediate removal of policemen from their places.

The police expressed satisfaction at the repeal of the law, which has never been popular with them. Repeal relieves them of a great amount of work, as they see it.

It was presumed by some Federal officials that, regardless of the repeal of the Mullan-Gage law, they would continue to have the assistance and cooperation of the police in the enforcement of the National Prohibition act.

He and Queen Mary Will Visit the Pope, Despite Protests.

LONDON, May 4.—King George and Queen Mary will leave London tomorrow afternoon for Rome on a visit to the King and Queen of Italy, during which they will also make a formal visit to the pope.

The King has been bombarded by resolutions of protest by ultra-Protestant bodies, but has taken no notice of them.

LIQUOR FLEET HAS AIRPLANE ADJUNCT

ARMADA IS STILL ON HAND

Vessels Spread Out About Twelve Miles Apart—Two More Supply Boats Are Caught.

Cut off from contact with the shore by means of small boats because of the vigilance of the "customs navy," which consists of thirteen boats, the liquor fleet, now scattered along the Jersey and Long Island coast about twelve miles apart, are turning to seaplanes to provide them with the necessary communication with bootleggers on shore, it was said at the Custom House yesterday. On Thursday when Federal Prohibition Director Canfield visited the remainder of the fleet, off Ambrose Light, another seaplane was observed in the same vicinity from Highlands.

Yesterday Lieut. Commander B. H. Camden of the Coast Guard cutter Seneca, reported to Commander John G. Berry that while the cutter was near the British yacht Istar, now lying off Jones's Inlet, a large gray seaplane, without identifying number or insignia, alighted within 150 feet of the Istar and signals were passed between them.

Bearing out the reported belief of Captain Loren Tilton, in command of the Coast Guard at Sandy Hook, and other Government officials that the sudden departure Wednesday afternoon of several boats from Rum Row, off Ambrose Light, merely meant that these vessels had decided to change their locations and would continue to linger along the coast until they had disposed of their cargoes of liquor, word came yesterday that the yacht Istar, with 14,000 unsold cases of liquor, and the tanker Warszawa, with 10,000 cases aboard, had been sighted off Jones's Inlet, Long Island. Schooners of the fleet are scattered along the coast, about 12 miles apart, according to Captain John G. Berry, in command of the Coast Guard in New York in the absence of Commander Byron L. Reed. The Istar and the tanker are about twelve miles from their original position.

Captain Berry announced yesterday the capture of two more small motorboats that had been in communication with the liquor ships in continuation of the plan to starve out the whisky fleet. They were the K-12219 and K-9637.

One boat had a crew of three men and the other two men. They were brought to the Customs House by the cutter Seneca, which captured them.

It is understood that a test case is to be made of the seizure of these two boats and the arrest of the men. The question is whether boats bearing merchandise are engaged in foreign trade, when they go outside of the three-mile limit to foreign boats.

Edward Barnes, Assistant Solicitor of the Port, examined the prisoners before they were sent to the United States District Attorney's office for further hearing. The prisoners with K 12219 gave their names as O. Trelburg, Edward Balmas and John Wisterman, all of Brooklyn, and Frank Brown and Joseph Brown of boat K-9637.

Some of the boats of the Rum Row were reported yesterday off Atlantic City, and the coast guard cutter Kickapoo was rushed to that vicinity from Cape May.

WANTS PHILIPPINES DRY.

John S. Wise Jr. Also Insists Volstead Act Apply Also to Canal Zone.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Dispatches were received here today stating that John S. Wise Jr. has written to President Harding and to Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon League, protesting that an act should be introduced to include the Philippines in the operations of the Volstead act and also that the Volstead law should be so amended that the Panama Canal zone would come under its provisions.

"It is well known in Washington that the reason the Volstead law was not applied to the Philippines was that at the time of the act's passage, the question of Philippine independence was in the air. Lawmakers took the ground that if the Philippines were to become independent they would make their own laws in regard to the liquor traffic.

At present, the Philippines are covered by the Eighteenth Amendment but the Volstead law does not apply in the islands, and so there is no power to enforce the amendment there.

FRENCH DRAFT NOTE ON OUR LIQUOR LAW

It Says That if Nations Apply Local Laws to Foreign Ships Ocean Traffic Would Cease.

PARIS, May 4 (Associated Press)—The French Foreign Office has prepared a note for transmission to Washington reflecting the sentiments of French steamship operators against the American ruling making illegal the transportation of liquor in the territorial waters of the United States.

The note, it is reported, expresses surprise at the interpretation of the law as made by the United States Supreme Court and indicates that if all the nations applied their local laws to foreign vessels ocean navigation would soon cease.

Meanwhile Minister of Marine Raiberti is conducting a research into the ancient laws of France governing shipping which, it is understood, may form the basis of reprisals in applying restrictions on American ships in French waters.

An international conference of steamship operators is forecast here as a means of reaching a settlement of the question.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—No nation has so far sent to this Government any protest against the Supreme Court decision on intoxicating liquors within the three-mile limit. In the meantime, the Treasury Department is going ahead revising the prohibitory regulations so as to conform with the ruling of the Court and these regulations will be ready for promulgation about June 10.

At the White House it was said this afternoon that the President, who is deeply concerned in the effort the Government is making to stamp out bootlegging, anticipates no trouble with any other nation because of the ruling of the Supreme Court. The Government, it was further stated at the White House, will be guided by the law and the interpretation of it by the Supreme Court having due regard, in the shaping of its policy, for the comity of nations.

ACQUIT BROKER OF RUM PLOT

John A. Kirsch, a broker, was acquitted by a jury in Judge Goddard's part of the Federal Court at 11 o'clock last night. He was accused of plotting to land 250 drums of alcohol from the steamship Jarary at Pier 32, Hudson River, on Dec. 11, 1921, in violation of the Volstead act.

The commander of the vessel, Captain Daniel Docherty, had been sent to Atlanta Penitentiary for one year in connection with the removal of thirty-six of the drums from the Jarary. Counsel for the broker alleged in his summation that Kirsch was the victim of a "frame-up" by Docherty and Harry K. Barr, a steamship agent; William P. Prendergast, Harry Marks and George C. Gilede, who were indicted with Kirsch and Docherty. The jury was out seven hours.

AUTOS KILL MAN AND TWO CHILDREN

WOMAN COMPANION HURT

Two Elderly Men Are in Hospitals With Possible Concussion of Brain.

Two children and a man were killed by automobiles yesterday. Other accidents were reported in which two men received injuries which may prove fatal, and a man who was struck by a car several days ago died in a hospital.

Elizabeth Keegan, 8 years old, of 1,104 East 156th Street was killed last night when she stepped off the curb into the path of an automobile at Devoe Avenue and 180th Street, the Bronx. George Helfrich, owner and driver of the car, placed the girl in his car and hurried to Fordham Hospital, but was told that the child had been instantly killed. He was arrested on a technical charge of homicide.

Beatrice Dominique, 5 years old, stepped from behind a wagon in front of an automobile as she was crossing the street in front of her home at 507 West 187th Street last evening and received injuries from which she died. Angelo Freda, the chauffeur of the car, was arrested.

Arthur Stroh, 24 years old, of 669 Ball Avenue, Yonkers, received fatal injuries when his automobile overturned at South Broadway and Hudson Street, Yonkers. Miss Louise Fruedman, who was in the car at the time, sustained a fracture of the left arm and was removed with Stroh to St. Joseph's Hospital, where the man died last evening.

Thomas Grady, 56 years old, of 643 West 215th Street, who was knocked down by an automobile at Third Avenue and Fifty-third Street on April 30, died last night in Bellevue Hospital.

Magistrate Thomas F. McAndrew in the West Farms Court held Frank Schwartz, a chauffeur of Astoria, in $2,500 bail in connection with the death Thursday night of Charles Solomon, 7 years old, of Yonkers.

Edward O'Shaughnessy, 60 years old, of 189 West 101st Street, was taken in a dying condition to Harlem Hospital last night with a possible fracture of the skull, which he received when he was struck by a motor truck at Seventh Avenue and 130th Street.

William King, 63 years old, of 252 West Twenty-ninth Street, driving a wagon at Madison Avenue and Thirty-first Street, was knocked from his seat to the pavement last night when the wagon was struck by an automobile. He was taken to Bellevue Hospital, where it was said he had received possible concussion of the brain.

LETS FORD GET POWER SITES

Bill Passes Michigan Legislature to Allow Condemning of Land.

Special to The New York Times.

LANSING, Mich., May 4.—The Hayes Water Power bill, permitting private corporations to condemn 25 per cent. of the land necessary to develop water power sites, was handed to Governor A. J. Groesbeck today for his signature, following its passage by the House by a vote of 63 to 25. It has also passed the Senate.

Enactment of the bill into law may lead to development of water power sites all over the State by Henry Ford. The Ford interests have exerted all the pressure at their disposal to get the bill through the Legislature, so that a $5,000,000 woolen mill could be erected at Ypsilanti, where Ford owns all but 2 per cent. of a large water power site.

The bill, as it passed the House, carried an amendment introduced by Representative Vincent P. Dacey, at the request of Governor Groesbeck, which stipulates that the State shall retain title to all lands condemned and lease them to private corporations.

APPOINTS J. A. PARSONS TO UTILITIES BOARD

Governor Also Names J. F. Galvin for Port Authority—Nominations Confirmed.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, May 4.—Governor Smith sent to the Senate today the nomination of James A. Parsons to succeed Charles G. Blakeslee as a member of the Public Service Commission. The Senate confirmed the nomination at once.

A similar course was followed with regard to four other nominations sent in by the Governor, those of John F. Galvin, former Water Supply Commissioner, to fill the vacancy as Commissioner of the Port Authority caused by the Governor's resignation prior to his election; of Arthur Levy of New York to succeed Joseph Levenson, a Republican, as member of the Motion Picture Censorship Commission, Mr. Levenson's term having expired, and of Jeremiah O'Connor of Manhattan and Charles W. Jamicky of Brooklyn to fill vacancies on the Board of New York City Port Wardens arising through the deaths of Charles W. Ferry and Ambrose O. Neal.

In a message early in the session the Governor had pronounced the Board of Port Wardens obsolete and one performing no useful function. The places have been plums for district leaders and other small-fry politicians. One man does the work and the other members draw in fees the surplus left after the pay of the working member and the office expenses have been deducted.

Mr. Parsons, whose salary will be $15,000 a year, hails from Steuben County. He was appointed Attorney General after the resignation of the late Thomas Carmody. Both during the present and preceding term of Governor Smith he had been his legal adviser.

Mr. Galvin has been President of the Metal Stamping Company since its incorporation thirty-four years ago. He is a member of the New York Chamber of Commerce, the Queen Borough Chamber of Commerce and the Merchants' Association. The late Mayor Gaynor appointed him as a member of the Board of Water Supply which supervised the construction of the Catskill aqueduct. He is prominent in Tammany circles.

Mr. Levy is in the wholesale cloak and suit business. He has been identified with many charitable activities and has done much to assist released convicts.

FIGHT PITCHED BATTLE IN THE PRUSSIAN DIET

Socialists and Communists Give Each Other Black Eyes, Scalp Wounds and Broken Noses.

BERLIN, May 4.—The Prussian Diet was the scene this afternoon of an uproarious pitched battle between Socialists and Communists, involving bloodshed, scalp wounds, black eyes and "busted" noses. It was the most disgraceful episode in the history of the Prussian Parliament.

The reactionary German National fraction had moved a vote of lack of confidence in the Socialist Prussian Minister of the Interior, which was voted down 248 to 70. Even the Communists voted against the reactionaries for tactical reasons.

Then the Communist spokesman, Herr Katz, attempted to get an explanatory declaration into the records, but the Socialist President of the Prussian Diet, Herr Leinert, rushed him out. The Communist speaker then called the Social Democrats "greasy scoundrels," whereupon the Socialist members called out: "Drag the dirty dog down from the platform."

This was the signal for the official strong-arm squad of the Socialists to launch an offensive against the Communist speaker. Fellow-Communists hurried to his aid, but could not prevent Herr Katz from being dragged from the rostrum and badly beaten up. The assembly hall quickly became a battleground as the Socialists and Communists pitched into each other with fists and blackjacks. The armament of the Socialists proved superior.

LEGISLATURE QUITS; FEW SMITH BILLS WIN

Approval of a home rule constitutional amendment, repeal of the Lotton educational laws, adoption of a resolution memorializing Congress in favor of liberalizing the Volstead law, enactment of some amendments to the Workmen's Compensation law and some Child Welfare measures and the adoption of the Veterans' Bonus bill were among other measures advocated by the Administration which went through.

The Governor kept up his bombardment of the Senate and Assembly with special messages up to practically the eleventh hour, but his entire series of measures providing for home rule in transit and public utilities regulation generally and abolition of the Public Service and Transit Commissions went down into defeat. The most important feature of his program, the reconstruction measures embodying constitutional amendments providing a four-year term for Governor, the Executive budget and the short ballot and general consolidation through constitutional proviso of the principal departments of the State Administration would all have met a similar fate save for a compromise reached on the last named, the first two dying in the Assembly.

Assemblyman Donohue made the following comment on the work of the session in a statement made public after final adjournment:

"Like the Bourbons of old, the Republican 'bosses' have learned nothing and forgotten nothing. It seems beyond belief that, in the teeth of what happened last election day, the Republican Assembly would dare wind up this session with all our public utilities firmly in the grip of the predatory corporations, with our waterpower resources still the white hope of private monopoly, with direct nominations unrestored and the evil domination of the Prendergast Public Service Commission unabated. But it is the fact.

"For the defeat of Governor Smith's forward looking program, the Republican Assembly must shoulder the blame, singly and alone. The Democratic minority of the Assembly exhausted every means to have that body concur with the Democratic Senate in adopting it. The Assembly Republicans, for the most part, refused to discuss the Governor's measures on their merits, and stolidly voted down my motions to bring them out upon the floor for consideration.

"On my motion to release the Minimum Wage bill from committee Assemblyman Rourke voted 'aye' in a loud voice, but was not recorded, with the result that my motion, which was carried, was declared lost."

Session One Long Wrangle.

The session has been one prolonged partisan wrangle between the Democrats, controlling the State Administration and the Senate, and the Republicans controlling the Assembly. Political expediency has been the dominant consideration with both parties, and with the Democrats the session has been little more than a prelude to the campaign this Fall, when a new Assembly is to be elected. Politically, all Democratic endeavors have been directed toward getting the Republican lawmakers on record in opposition to measures introduced to fulfill pledges in the platform on which Governor Smith was elected.

The more important work of the final hours was done in the Assembly where the Republicans, following failure to reach a compromise in the course of their conferences with Governor Smith on the New York City transit situation, pressed to final passage the bill introduced by Assemblyman Jesse, in which is embodied the Republican substitute for the Smith-Hylan transit program.

The bill gave to the Hylan Adminis- [illegible] exceed 5 cents. It left regulation in other directions with the State.

This bill was later killed in the Democratic Senate, leaving the New York City transit situation where it was when Governor Smith took office but providing the Democrats with what they regard as an exceedingly valuable issue for the campaign in the Fall.

The Republican substitute for the Smith-Hylan measure was passed by a vote of 78 to 69. Assemblymen Jesse, Steinberg, Ullman and Kaufmann, New York City Republicans who spoke for it, contended that Governor Smith and Mayor Hylan were trying to make a political football out of the transit situation. Mr. Ullman declared that the differences between the Republicans and Democrats "were not so great that a compromise could not have been effected if Governor Smith had used a little common sense."

"It appeared as if the Governor was completely dominated and overcome by Mayor Hylan, and that if he had any idea of trying to bring about a compromise he was afraid to do so because of the attitude of the Mayor," said the Assemblyman. "We want the transit situation taken out of politics into which it has been injected by Mayor Hylan and Governor Smith, but particularly the Mayor. If the Democratic Senate refuses to pass the Jesse bill the thinking people in New York City will lay the blame where it belongs—at the door of Mayor Hylan and the Democrats."

The Minority Leader, Mr. Donohue, said the Democrats were ready to admit that transit had been injected into politics. "But we have been victorious over the Republican Party because we have been in the right," he exclaimed.

Dollar Gas Bill Goes to Smith.

In addition to the Jesse Transit Bill, the Assembly passed a bill introduced by Senator Walker and passed by the Senate which would establish a uniform rate of $1 for 1,000 cubic feet of gas in New York City, and the companion bill introduced by Senator O'Brien, Democrat, also adopted by the Senate, which would abolish all charges by gas companies in New York City for the use of meters. At the present time consumers are charged at the rate of 75 cents a month for this service in some sections.

The vote on the Walker bill was 79 to 58 and for a time during the calling of the roll it looked as if the bill would be defeated. Senator Walker was in the chamber when it passed. In order to put the bill across, and perhaps save some of their legislation in the upper house, several Republicans changed their vote from the negative to the affirmative.

The majority leader, Max Adler, said he did not believe the rate for gas in New York or any other city should be fixed by the Legislature when there was a public service commission. Mr. Donohue insisted that the people of New York City knew best what was for their best interest and that they were for the bill "to a man."

The Senate met with a calendar of enormous dimensions for a closing day, but a majority of the measures reserved for the eleventh hour were local bills and the bulk of them were sent over from the Assembly. The Senate leader, Mr. Walker, had purposely deferred action on them to have a club to hold over the Assembly for compelling favorable action on his Dollar Gas bill. After the gas bill had passed the local measures were rushed through at the rate of two and three a minute.

Raids on the New York City treasury which it will be within the power of Mayor Hylan to offset, continued practically until adjournment. More than a score of measures providing for salary increases, larger pensions, &c., were approved. Senate and Assembly rapid-fire roll calls. They passed without a murmury of dissent from the Republicans in either house. Should Mayor Hylan employ his veto power on these bills his action would be final because the Legislature will not be here to pass them over his veto.

With the Democratic members of the Senate and Assembly elected on a home rule platform, the rushing through of bills, bearing the names of Democratic sponsors in nearly every instance, which are regarded as clearly violative of the home rule principle was likewise continued up to the last minute. Many of these bills provide for the rehearing of charges against members of the uniformed force in the Police Department who have been dismissed on charges and against which civic organizations have registered their protests. Other bills in this category provided for increase in pensions, interference with the retirement system in vogue in the city, promotions in the civil service and other legislation clearly within the province of the New York City authorities to determine.

The Democratic Senate sent to its death in the Judiciary Committee the proposed new article for the Constitution evolved by a convention of eminent jurists and members of the bar. The article was designed to bring about substantial reforms in the court system of New York City. The Assembly approved the article by a bare constitutional majority and it would have gone to the voters for ratification had the Senate concurred. The Democrats were opposed to it because of a proviso clause it provided that all the judiciary powers of the State should be lodged in the courts, and they believed this would interfere with the exercise of quasi-judicial powers by some State Departments.

Literacy Test Agreed On.

The Hamill bill amending generally the Inferior Criminal Courts act affecting New York City was rushed through in the Senate when it came over from the Assembly. This bill provides for sessions of the Inferior Criminal Courts in Manhattan three days a week and in Brooklyn two days a week during July and August.

The Senate also passed the bill to reimburse Police Inspector William Lahey for money expended by him in successfully defending himself against graft charges in the courts.

The Steinberg bill, which amends the present law for a literacy test for voters, was also passed by the Senate, and now goes to the Governor. The bill provides that new voters must present literacy certificates from the educational authorities, and these would take the place of the tests which, under the present law, are conducted by election inspectors at polling places.

The Assembly version of the Rabenold bill, which would have given to the Steuben Society, an offshoot of the old German-American Alliance, a share in the management of the home of General Herkimer, which the State has acquired, was defeated in the Senate by a vote of 25 to 23 after a lively debate.

The Assembly bill which would amend the Tenement House law so as to make possible the remodeling of old-fashioned one-family houses into tenements accommodating three families was passed by the Senate and now goes to the Governor. The Charity Organization Society, among others opposed this measure because it sanctions bath and toilet rooms without natural light and ventilation on the ground floor.

Rent Law Extension Wins.

By a bare majority, 76 to 50, the Walker bill designed to tear the mask from the Ku Klux Klan in this State was passed in the Assembly. The measure would require unincorporated associations to file at least once each year with the Secretary of State a list of members, officers, constitution and by-laws and oath, if one is required.

The O'Brien bill prohibiting service charges for meter installation by gas corporations was passed, 103 to 20.

Senator Redburn's bill extending the New York City Emergency Rent law to May 1, 1924, went through the lower house without opposition. It now goes to the Governor.

The Walker bill providing for a tax of 1 per cent. upon moneyed capital competing with national banks was passed in the Assembly. This will provide for a tax for the coming year, while the Sheridan bill, which was passed in the lower house yesterday, validates the taxes which were levied on national bank shares for the last three years.

By a vote of 104 to 34, the Jenks bill which will permit the State to take advantage of the Federal Sheppard-Towner Maternity and Child Hygiene act, was passed in the Assembly. Last year, because of the opposition of former Governor Miller, this aid from the Federal Government was rejected.

The Flynn bill, authorizing the Board of Estimate to provide for the relocation or removal of railroad tracks at Broadway, Sixth Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street was passed in the Assembly.

the Federal refinery issued a statement declaring that "the extreme and unnecessary tariff is responsible for about 20 per cent. of the present ten-cent price for refined sugar," adding that "public discussion is not giving this factor proper attention." The statement disclosed that in an effort to have this point emphasized and understood by consumers, sugar refiners are putting statements of their position on prices in the cartons of sugar leaving the factories.

The Federal company officials said that if the tariff were eliminated Cuban raw sugar would be selling at about 2 cents a pound less than the present cost, and that it "was apparent, therefore, that the high prices for refined sugar are due to the high price for raw sugar and the high rate of import duty."

"The refiner is operating at a very low margin," the statement says. "The refiner's margin amounts to 1.52 points, and this is supposed to cover refining costs, loss in refining and profit."

Pledged to Use Less Sugar.

The resolution to use sugar only in small quantities went before the New York City clubwomen at their meeting in the Hotel Astor, and was passed without opposition. The resolution laid before the New Jersey clubwomen at their convention at Haddon Hall, Atlantic City, also was passed unanimously.

"In view of the fact that the recent rise in the price of sugar is apparently unnecessary, the resolution stated, "the Executive Board of the New Jersey Federation of Women's Clubs recommends that clubwomen endeavor to meet the situation by using as little sugar as possible."

The parade around City Hall, and the mass meeting of protest against prices were staged under auspices of the New York Housewives' Sugar Committee, of which Mrs. Louis Reed Welsmiller, Deputy Commissioner of Public Markets, is Chairman. Co-operating in the demonstration were representatives of more than 200 clubs. The action of the New York City clubwomen at the uptown hotel was transmitted to the City Hall meeting by a delegate, appointed for the purpose. The following pledge and petition was distributed, with spaces for ten signatures on each pledge:

"We desire to enroll in the war against the sugar profiteers. In protest against the robbery which they have perpetrated on us, we hereby pledge ourselves to reduce to the minimum our use of sugar and sweets until sugar has come down to a reasonable price.

"We call upon the President of the United States and the Department of Justice to apprehend and punish the big interests which cornered the Cuban sugar crop and put up the prices, and not simply prosecute the poor dupes who executed their orders on the New York Sugar Exchange.

"Pending the completion of these legal proceedings" (a reference to the Government's suit against the Exchange, [illegible] to come up in Federal Court on Monday), "we respectfully petition the President of the United States to issue a proclamation calling upon the people to restrict their use of sugar until it returns to the price of 7 cents a pound retail. We beg the assistance of our President in saving the $400,000,000 which the sugar profiteers will take from our pockets if sugar does not go back from 11 cents a pound to a fair and decent price."

Big Parade Plans Fail.

It was planned to have about 25,000 women and school children in the parade, but these plans went askew, and fewer than 100 showed up at the Municipal Building when the Police Band began to blare cheerfully its call to the sugar crusade. It was planned to have the crusaders invade the financial district, but this, too, was changed, and the parade wound its way once around the Municipal Building, thence down Park Row to Mail Street, across and up Broadway, and so to the front of City Hall, where the paraders posed for cameras.

About 250 persons, chiefly housewives, were in the Board of Estimate room to hear the speakers. Bainbridge Colby, ex-Secretary of State, and the Rev. Percy Stickney Grant, rector of the Church of the Ascension, failed to appear. United Senator Senator Copeland also was absent, but he wired that another engagement prevented his appearance. Those who finally addressed the meeting were Mrs. Welsmiller, Edwin J. O'Malley, Commissioner of Public Markets; Mayor Hylan, John Meyer, Secretary of the New York City Retail Grocers' Association, and several of the women's club delegates.

Mayor Sees Centralization.

"Up to a few minutes ago," remarked the Mayor, who was applauded when he started to speak, "I didn't know I was to have the honor of speaking on so sweet a subject. I want to say, however, that I suppose it will be only a few days before these sugar speculators will be seeking to remove Commissioner O'Malley and Mrs. Welsmiller on account of this demonstration. When you see the headlines in the newspapers, you'll know the cause.

"There is a gradual but steady tendency in our life to centralize the control of foodstuffs, of necessities of life, in the hands of a few men who levy tribute upon 100,000,000 people. If this isn't stopped the time is coming when the women will go farther in their demands than they are today."

The Mayor assailed international bankers as responsible for the food monopolies he spoke about, and declared that there were plenty of Federal laws to prosecute profiteers, but that men in public office were afraid to act too far.

"Histories of young men are kept by the Rockefeller Research Committee," the Mayor said, "so that when the boy grows up and becomes too aggressive they always have something to take out of the cupboard, and unless he becomes quiet, his skeleton is produced. I was born in a country district where there were no police officers, and so they have no record of my conduct, although my mother said that I was a most mischievous boy.

The Mayor charged that the Research Committee had sent two men and a woman to his birthplace in Greene County to look up his early record. Some records were obtained by them, he said, but when they got back to Manhattan they embarked in a taxicab for a restaurant. He said the chauffeur overheard their talk and hid the bag containing the records. On his way home he threw the Hylan history over the rail of the Brooklyn Bridge, and later gave a few copies to the Mayor. He said that he cited this episode to show what handicaps burdened the public officer trying "to protect the people and serve them."

"You womenfolk must take a hand in affairs and stay the power of these monopolists," the Mayor added, "and some of them are within a stone's throw of the City Hall. They care nothing for human lives—all they are interested in is getting gold. The time has come when you must forget party ties and religious proclivities, for while you are fighting about these the monopolists get away with the 'bacon.'"

Messages Show Crusade Spreads.

At the women's headquarters in the Municipal Building evidence of the spread of their movement came in during the day in scores of messages and hundreds of letters.

Mayor Hylan sent a telegram to William Randolph Hearst congratulating him on the fight his publications had waged against the sugar situation.

"On the basis of a false statement," the Mayor said in his message, "regarding an alleged shortage in the sugar crop, which was issued some months ago by the Department of Commerce, the heartless and nefarious sugar speculators deed the American public, rigged the market and boosted prices. These profiteers played fast and loose with the people's pocketbooks by coining the needs of the people into extortionate gains.

"I sincerely trust that the Federal Government will prosecute the sugar profiteers in this country who are responsible for restricting the output of Cuban sugar which I am told is more than enough to furnish the people of the United States with an adequate supply of this essential foodstuff at 6 or 6 cents a pound."

Assembly Asks for Inquiry.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 5.—At an early hour this morning the Assembly adopted a resolution introduced by Assemblyman Freiberg of Buffalo, instructing Attorney General Sherman and requesting United States Attorney General Daugherty to investigate the undue rise in the price of sugar and prosecute the sugar profiteers.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, May 4.—In a message to a public meeting here today called by the Columbus Federation of Women's Clubs to discuss sugar prices, Governor Donahey recommended that housewives declare a boycott on sugar.

"I don't know the causes of sugar price fluctuations," he wrote, "but I think a boycott is the best means of ending them."

TOPEKA, Kans., May 4.—A public proclamation urging a "sugar boycott" because of prevailing prices was issued today by Governor J. M. Davis.

NEW ORLEANS, May 5.—Representative James E. Aswell, Democrat, Louisiana, announced here today that upon the convening of Congress in December he would introduce a bill that "will forever prevent a recurrence of the present scandalous condition in the sugar market" if it is enacted into law.

His bill, he said, would solve the problem in the same practical way the Government handled the wheat and cotton market situations.

MONTREAL, Quebec, May 4.—As an attempt to follow the example of the women's clubs in the United States and in parts of Canada was launched today by the Notre Dame de Grace Women's Club. The members at a meeting pledged themselves to limit their purchases of sugar as far as was practicable, and expressed hearty commendation of the other women's boycott against sugar.

KRUPP HEADS PLACED ON TRIAL BY FRENCH

VON BOHLEN ON THE STAND

He Objects to French Jurisdiction, but Answers Questions—Conviction at Essen.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company. By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WERDEN, Germany, via Paris, May 4.—At 9 o'clock this morning, in this old-fashioned, little country town of typical German aspect, picturesquely situated on the Ruhr, court-martial proceedings were opened against Baron Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach and eight of his directors, assistants and overseers.

Of these, two were judged by default, having sought safety in unoccupied territory.

Fearing a repetition of the scenes at Mayence, when the younger Thyssen was court-martialed, the military took elaborate measures of precaution—so elaborate, indeed, that even members of the French mission and newspaper men with special passes for the occasion were unable to penetrate the barrier and were forced to drive many miles across country before entering Werden from Düsseldorf, Essen and Cologne. The cordon was drawn so tightly that the inhabitants of Werden who happened to be working in the fields outside the town yesterday were obliged to spend the night away from home.

The trial proceedings, however, as demanded by French law, were public, and those inhabitants of the little town who had passed the French barriers or were not headed off by camouflaged German "security police" were able to enjoy the spectacle of a great magnate, together with his Chiefs of Staff, haled before a court as if they were ordinary citizens.

German Forced to Stand.

Together with a little army of German newspapermen there were some five or six hundred people gathered in the court, which sat in the local Bierhalle. Outside two apple trees in full blossom formed an archway; inside a gigantic painting of valkyries riding to battle, with burning homesteads in the background—reminiscent of Northern France, perhaps—formed a mural decoration. Somehow it seemed a peculiarly apt setting.

At a few moments before 9 o'clock the accused men were led in by gendarmes and seated in a row of chairs. As they entered the German pressmen rose from their seats like one man and stood at attention.

Then the officers of the court-martial entered; a sharp order was echoed, followed by a click of rifles, as a squad of soldiers presented arms. According to custom every one rose, while the German pressmen sat down, but not for long. A sharp word from a French officer brought them to their feet.

The whole day was given over to examination of the accused regarding their activities and responsibility for the tragic events of March 31 at the Krupp Works in Essen which led to the death of fourteen workmen. The proceedings opened by the reading of the charges, namely, plotting against the safety of the French army and obstructing it in carrying out its duties. The maximum penalty for the former crime under military law is a sentence of death and for the latter a term of five years in prison.

In addition to Baron Krupp von Bohlen, the Directors accused are Bruno, Bruhn, Otto, Oesterlein and Hartwig. Those of lesser importance are Schrappler, Muller and Gross. All sat stiffly in a row while the accusation was read, listening with intent expressions. It was evident that, with German instinctive respect for everything military, they were deeply moved by the impressive surroundings of the court-martial, with the tale it told of French military power today.

Von Bohlen was the first examined. When his name was called he rose quickly, stepped forward and for a moment seemed to come to attention, with his hands at his side, in true Prussian fashion, before Colonel Peyronel, the presiding Judge, sitting on a raised estrade with two officer Judges on each side. Captain Duvert, who acted as Judge Advocate, endeavored to prove von Bohlen's personal responsibility, while the defense was that the Baron was a mere figurehead in the business; powerless to interfere with the management of the factory. Thus he could know nothing of the alleged plan to excite the men against the French in case the latter entered the works, by blowing the sirens.

Both Von Bohlen and his lieutenants insisted that they knew nothing of any co-ordinated plan of resistance in case the French occupied the Krupp Works at Essen and requisitioned there. If they calmly continued to attend to their ordinary occupations while knowing that eleven French soldiers were surrounded by a thousand angry German workmen for several hours, it was because they "never dreamed anything serious might occur."

Their Story Doubted.

It will certainly not prove easy to convince the French Judges of the sincerity of this thesis. Von Bohlen's assurance that he wields no power so far as the workers themselves are concerned received a blow from Captain Duvert, who obliged the Baron to admit that he once prevented workers from molesting a Belgian soldier merely by calling from a window to desist.

Despite his extremely dignified bearing before the French Judges, von Bohlen could not entirely hide the fact that he was ill at ease during the hour and a half he stood under examination until the court adjourned for lunch.

This afternoon was spent in hearing Directors Bruhn, Hartwig and Oesterlein. It was mainly on technical points regarding the exact status of every one in the firm, what kind of siren was blown on the fatal day, how many sirens, whether any new ones were specially prepared for the French visits and, finally, whether Baron von Bohlen knew they were to be blown. Under bitter attacks by Captain Duvert, the Germans bore up pretty well—Hartwig with a certain amount of truculence, which didn't improve matters for himself.

A second short adjournment preceded the hearing of the assistants, and it was well after 6 o'clock before the court rose until tomorrow. The proceedings certainly will take several days, and a verdict is unlikely before Monday evening or Tuesday. More than forty witnesses have been called by the prosecution and defense, and every question and answer is repeated twice owing to the necessity that it must be interpreted.

The defense today raised a point of the court-martial as a tribunal, but after a somewhat heated passage at arms it was overruled.

General expectation here is that the Judges will not accept a German quibble as to irresponsibility of Baron von Bohlen because he had "no executive powers." They have no doubt that the Baron's functions as head of the board which governs the company do not include giving advice to workmen, but the French say he is virtual head of the firm and as such is responsible for what occurred on the Saturday before Easter.

When asked today how it came that, having no power, he signed letters appointing Directors for various branches of the firm, the Baron replied that he "only signed the name of the board." The answer didn't satisfy the Court.

While the Germans showed small interest in the news of the arrest, they are now closely following the proceedings, and should—as generally expected—the Baron be convicted it will certainly cause a very deep impression.

PEACE STILL PREVAILS IN IRISH FREE STATE

DUBLIN, May 4.—Peace continues in the Free State and many believe that not another shot will be fired. There is a feeling of almost absolute security and freedom in the past week. As usual rumors are busy with peace negotiations, conversations and considerations. People who consider themselves authorities are choosing those names for whatever is going on, if anything.

In Government quarters one is told that there is no truth whatever in the reports of the Government considering Eamon de Valera's terms, yet it is certain that very influential pressure is being brought to bear on the ministers not to offer adamant opposition to any overtures made. The Government is silent, labor is silent, the press is silent. Jim Larkin is silent and Monsignor Luzio leaves for Rome tomorrow.

In his valedictory Monsignor Luzio thanks all with whom he came into contact for their courtesy and kindness and wishes the blessings of complete peace may speedily raise the nation of Ireland to the highest degree of greatness and prosperity.

BORAH CALLS FOR PROTEST.

Senator Wants United States to Complain of Ruhr Occupation.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—The time has come, in the opinion of Senator Borah, for the United States and other powers to protest against what is happening as a result of the occupation of the Ruhr by the French and Belgians. Senator Borah thinks France is not in the Ruhr solely to enforce reparations payments. It is possible, he thinks, that the French object is further dismemberment of the German Empire.

"The rejection of the German proposal by France cannot be a surprise," said Senator Borah. "It must have been expected by all who have watched the development of French policy since the signing of the armistice.

"France had a deliberate plan at Versailles to dismember Germany. I think it true to say that Mr. Wilson prevented that. But they did succeed in writing a treaty that made it impossible for Germany to recover, the ultimate purpose on the part of France always being to do what she is now doing. She did not go into the Ruhr for the purpose of collecting reparations.

"Germany had paid vast sums already, and the default consisted of failure to supply a small amount of coal and a small amount of timber, such as telegraph poles, &c.

"Months before the default had taken place the Prime Minister of France had sent his confidential agent into Germany to report on the best method of doing what they now are doing.

"France is bent on destroying Germany—breaking up Germany. Hence she is not anxious about considering the question of reparations.

"Europe can never recover under the Versailles Treaty.—There is chaos and misery and war ahead under that treaty.

"I think there rests upon the United States and every one of the allied and associated powers the duty to voice an unmistakable protest against this program, which is menacing the world with another war.

"We are not free from responsibility as to what is now happening in Germany, because we helped to win the war, we helped to disarm Germany and we told the German people in the most solemn way that we were not warring upon the German people as a people."

RULES GERMANS WERE 'PEST'

French Court So Decides in Validating a Will Made in Wartime.

PARIS, May 4.—The Germans are comparable to a pest, according to a decision of the First Chamber of the Civil Court today, upholding a similar decision made in a Magistrate's court last June.

This reflection on the German character has no basis in the hereditary animosity on the two sides of the Rhine, although it has admittedly caused some satisfaction in France. It is the outgrowth of the fight over a will made in German-occupied territory in wartime. In the Civil Code there is an article saying that a will made in a place where communications are interrupted by a pest may be signed before a Justice of the Peace or a municipal official in the presence of two witnesses.

A will signed in such circumstances in the Department of the North in 1917 was contested by relatives who received no bequests. The beneficiaries contended that the signing of the will was in perfect order, as the Germans were comparable to a pest, and the court upheld the unflattering contention.

POINCARE DEMANDS BERLIN MEET TERMS

to British views; and her precipitate action, although not completely unexpected, has served to disappoint the hopes of those who had looked upon the German initiative to bring the Allies again to the conference table.

The present British Cabinet is distinctly pro-French in sentiment, and the opinion is held in some quarters that, if its influence failed to induce the French Government to give further consideration to the German note prior to rejecting it, little hope remains.

Foreign Minister Curzon, in whose hands the British position is now left during the absence of Premier Bonar Law, refuses to be downcast by the French rejection of the German terms, however. In a speech made today at a meeting of the Primrose League in the Albert Hall Lord Curzon announced that the Government was in close consultation with both France and Belgium, and he seemed to intimate a hope that concerted action by the Allies still might be possible as a means of confronting Germany with such influence as to induce that country to take more effective steps to advance the reparations question toward satisfactory settlement.

The haste of France in rejecting the note is deplored in London, especially in liberal circles, because it is feared it may precipitate political developments, with the possible fall of the Cuno Government in Berlin and the substitution of a purely Socialist Administration. At the same time the political leaders consider as tactless that part of the German note regarding continued passive resistance. They declare it was virtually a demand for a climb-down on the part of France in the Ruhr, and that it brought inevitable rebuff in its train.

The British Cabinet is expected to consider the German note and the French reply together, with the object of seeing if anything still can be saved out of the wreckage by further consultations with Italy, and, if possible, also with Washington.

The Daily News, although asserting that it is impossible to express surprise over France's reply, inasmuch as "Poincaré could scarcely have accepted the German terms without stultifying his entire position," goes on to say that the German offer should be used as a starting point.

The Westminster Gazette, also admitting that "nobody can pretend to be enthusiastic about the German offer," says it certainly opens the door to negotiation, and deserves better treatment than to be regarded as valueless.

The Westminster Gazette's Berlin correspondent says the Cuno Ministry is expected to survive only a few weeks at the utmost, and that it will be succeeded by a strong Socialist Cabinet, which will throw its whole might into a life and death struggle to break the power of the great industrialists.

HUNGARY ASKS LOAN TO MAKE NEW START

Premier Tells the Reparation Board That She Wants Allied Claims Suspended.

FRENCH COOL TO PROJECT

Italy Is Also Reluctant, Due to the Little Entente Stand, but British Are Favorable.

PARIS, May 4.—Before the Reparation Commission today Count Bethlen, the Hungarian Premier, submitted a plea that his country be treated with the same generosity as Austria and that permission be given to raise a foreign loan which would help stabilize exchange, cover the cost of imports necessary to the economic life of the country and enable Hungary to make a new start. In exchange for this permission he offered to submit the country's finances to the same control as that which the Financial Commission of the League of Nations exercises in the case of Austria, and to accept the League commission's advice as to proposals for reconstruction and the negotiation of a long-term loan.

The amounts which the Premier says Hungary needs are, first, a short-term loan of 50,000,000 gold crowns and, second, a long-term loan of 600,000,000 crowns. Taking into account the natural wealth even of the reduced Hungary, he said, these amounts were not large, and they could be easily covered, he held, and the country would thus have a chance to recover its financial stability.

The Premier told the commission that the Hungarian position wasn't by any means so much in need of reform as that of Austria when the League took it in charge. Hungary has already made a big step toward economy of national resources in the reduction of the number of the State employes and in encouraging the development of sugar and coal production. In his speech to the commission the Premier said:

"The Hungarian people aren't merely sitting down and wringing idle hands over their misfortunes. The deficit of 214,000,000 gold crowns in our trade balance in 1922 was caused neither by lack of energy nor by extravagance of home consumption."

The situation, the Premier said later in an interview, differed from that of Austria in that Hungary, even as she was, was self-sufficient so far as food was concerned. She had lost, however, mines and forests and had to import iron, salt and textiles. Hungary had paid interest to date, he said, on the relief advances which the powers gave her in 1920 and 1921. But now she had to borrow to keep herself alive and would have to ask generous funding arrangements with her creditors.

"We intend," he said, "to pay every penny we owe, but we must have time in which to do it, and we must have a suspension of the reparation charges in order to satisfy the claims of private creditors."

There is some doubt as to whether a suspension of the Reparation Commission's claim, as asked today, will be granted. It is understood that the British would favor this, but both the Italians and the French are inclined to take refuge behind the objections of their friends of Little Entente, to whom most of Hungary's reparation payments are due. These countries argue that the primary object of the Hungarians' request is to satisfy private creditors before they pay reparations. The amount of truth in this claim may be enough to prejudice the success of the Hungarian Premier's mission and to enable the Little Entente to continue the policy of the isolation of Hungary.

MRS. BRAIN TO FACE GREEK COURT-MARTIAL

Wife of Standard Oil Official Is Said to Have Slapped a Saloniki Gendarme.

LONDON, May 4.—Mrs. Virginia Brain, said to be the wife of a Standard Oil official, is to be court-martialed at Saloniki on Saturday, says a dispatch to The Daily Express from Athens.

The charge against her is not known, the dispatch adds, but it is the outcome of a street incident concerning which Mrs. Brain was questioned by a gendarme, whose manner she thought impertinent and whose face she slapped.

She was immediately arrested and imprisoned by order of the military authorities.

CLAIMED NO RULE OF SEAS.

Amery's Speech on British Naval Policy Was Misquoted.

LONDON, May 4.—A newspaper dispatch from New York says that the use by Lieut. Col. Amery, first Lord of the Admiralty, of the phrase "command of all seas" in the House of Commons in Tuesday's debate on the navy estimates is commented upon in American naval circles as being contrary to the spirit of the Washington treaty. Reference to the official report of Colonel Amery's speech shows that he used no such expression as that attributed to him. Summing up the objects of British naval policy, he concluded his speech as follows:

"I think I have made it clear that the action we have taken [with regard to the base at Singapore] is entirely consistent with our general policy of keeping armaments down to the utmost limit compatible with our safety; that it is in no sense contrary to the spirit either of the League of Nations or of the Washington treaty; that it simply aims at securing for the British Navy as it now is—very much reduced on the one-power standard, where we used to consider the two-power standard barely sufficient—to secure for that navy free mobility, so that it may carry out in every sea of the world its historic mission, which is to keep the seas free for the trade of this country and free for that communication between this country and other portions of the empire on which after all, in peace and in war, our security and existence depend."

the conference adjourned until Monday. Meantime the diplomats will try by private conversations to find a way out of the difficulty.

Mr. Grew explained later that it was well known that the American delegation had advised the Turks on Feb. 4 to accept the allied proposals, but that he and his colleagues had never assumed responsibility for them. He described his intervention today as merely a friendly effort to get some satisfactory guarantees to replace the capitulations.

The effect of his action today has been to bring the United States more deeply into the negotiations, since the Washington Government now stands with the Allies as defied by the Turks.

CURZON URGES UNITY IN REPLY TO BERLIN

Says 'Adverse Decision' of All the Allies Would Go Far to Insure Success.

LONDON, May 4.—Lord Curzon, addressing the convention of the Primrose League today and dealing with the situation created by the German note on the reparation questions, laid stress on the necessity of concerted action by the Allies.

The British Government expected to receive today copies of the answers which France and Belgium intend to return to Germany, and the attitude which Great Britain will assume will depend a good deal on the views contained in them. It was pointed out to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent today that Great Britain could not judge the German note simply on its merits, but must take into consideration how it was regarded by her allies.

Lord Curzon in his speech said:

"What of the situation in Central Europe? I admit the clouds are rather heavy over that quarter, and there are some who will say they have not been greatly lightened by the events of the last twenty-four hours. I reply that you cannot expect quick or sudden solutions of situations as complicated as this, where the passions of the people are aroused, where great interests are involved, where the security and possibly the future existence of great States are implicated. You have no Gordian knot which can be cut by the flash of a sword. Rather you have to disentangle it strand by strand by a slow and laborious process. For my part, each movement that is made, even though it be of an almost imperceptible character, seems to be stopped in advance.

"But I decline to regard the situation in any spirit of despondency or despair. The Government are in close communication at this moment with the French and Belgian Governments and with our other allies. Whether the offer which has been made by Germany is good or bad—and there appear to be a great many people who regard it as inadequate—it is a question which concerns us all. We shall only emerge from this difficulty and anxious situation by concerted action, and if the Germans are confronted with the adverse decision of all the principal powers concerned the chances of success will be greatly increased."

The view in official circles here is that the chance of this concert of action being forthcoming immediately depends a good deal on how closely Belgium is in sympathy with France.

CROKER WILL TRIAL PUT OVER TO MAY 31

Counsel for Richard Croker Jr. Tries Vainly to Get a Longer Delay.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUBLIN, May 4.—Sweeping charges were made today against parties in the Croker will suit, which came before Justice Pim here in the form of an application by Richard Croker Jr., the plaintiff, for an adjournment of the trial to June 25 or some other date. Mr. Brown, his counsel, declared there would be no undue delay in bringing the action to trial, and said the defendant was "rushing" his client.

Apart altogether from the plaintiff and the necessary witnesses having to travel from America, he said, it was quite impossible to be ready by May 10. If the trial was not postponed until late in June it would mean a denial of justice.

Henry B. O'Hanlon, solicitor for the widow, charged in an affidavit that the plaintiff was deliberately absenting himself from this country and attempting to procure an adjournment for reasons not bona fide, to hamper and embarrass the defendant.

Since April 20 he had had ample time and many opportunities to travel to Ireland. He recently was in Ireland and no new passport was necessary.

As to the trial of a certain action in New York, Mr. O'Hanlon said he did not believe the plaintiff's presence was necessary.

Mr. Brown said the trial in Ireland would involve considerable sums.

Sergeant Uanna, for the widow, urged that the application was the culmination of a series of attempts by the plaintiff to "bluff" the court.

Mrs. Croker swore in an affidavit that she had been harassed and embarrassed continually by persons spying on her movements and trying to enter her house and even her motor.

Richard Croker, said the counsel, might or might not be responsible, but the sooner that was settled the better.

If the trial was postponed until the end of June no one knew what fantastic action the plaintiff might start in Florida or New York.

Mr. Lynch, counsel on the same side, charged the plaintiff with financing a method of litigation in these courts tantamount to contempt if brought home to him. He could either repudiate facts stated in the defendant's affidavit or accept responsibility. It was a disgrace to the administration of justice, he asserted, that any man, no matter where he resided, should abuse his privilege as a litigant in the way the plaintiff abused it by paid mercenaries.

Counsel asked the Judge to bear in mind the persecution Mrs. Croker was subjected to. It was a disgrace that any litigant should be responsible for it, he went on, and he presumed the persons responsible were present in court.

Mr. Lardner, of counsel for the plaintiff, said the delay was not asked to embarrass the defendant, but the rush was to embarrass the plaintiff.

Judge Pim fixed the trial peremptorily for May 31.

MISS COIT BACK FROM TRIP ON IMPULSE

Thursday that she informed the Hustons that she was without funds.

Mr. Huston immediately furnished her with money, and late in the afternoon she decided to return home. She said that when she was on her way to the station she bought a New York newspaper and was surprised to find her picture on the front page with an account of her disappearance and the nation-wide hunt being made for her by the police through the radio and every other available means. Miss Sawyer quoted her as saying:

"I thought to myself, 'Oh, how awful I have been to my people to cause them all this notoriety. What kind of a girl am I, anyhow?'"

Miss Coit then hurried to the station and caught the Lake Shore Limited express.

"When the train was nearing Utica today," Miss Coit told her mother and her aunt, "a kindly, middle-aged gentleman, evidently recognizing my perturbed state of mind, spoke to me. I was so pleased to have somebody to talk to that I told him all about myself, and what I had done. He acted as a father to me, told me not to worry and that he would arrange things so that I would be met by my mother and aunt when I reached the Grand Central Station.

Telegram Sent to Relatives.

"When the messenger from the telegraph company came aboard the train at Utica, the gentleman gave the boy a paper. I had told him that I had relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Algernon Sawyer, who lived at the Van Rensselaer Hotel, 17 East Eleventh Street, New York City, and after the train started again this gentleman told he that he had sent a message to them telling them that I would arrive at the Grand Central Station at 5:30 this evening.

"On the rest of the trip this gentleman kept me in conversation and caused me to forget my worry about the trouble I had caused my father and mother and the rest of my relatives. As we neared the Grand Central Station my heart was so full of joy that I could hardly wait for the train to stop, for I knew that somebody would be at the station to meet me."

Miss Sawyer said that when the message was received at Mr. and Mrs. Sawyer's suite at the Van Rensselaer Hotel, they noticed that, although it was signed Elizabeth, the phraseology certainly was not that of the missing girl's. They were mystified by this feature of the telegram, but they immediately telephoned its contents to Mrs. Coit, who was at Miss Sawyer's home in Montclair.

When the girl failed to appear at the Grand Central Station last Monday afternoon, her father communicated with Chief City Magistrate William McAdoo, an old friend. Magistrate McAdoo advised that a thorough search be made in the homes of friends in and about the city before requesting the police to send out a general alarm.

Police Alarm Sent Out.

The next day, when Mr. Coit had not received any news of the whereabouts of his daughter, Magistrate McAdoo called up Commissioner Enright and requested that an alarm be sent out. Commissioner Enright notified Captain John Ayres, head of the Bureau of Missing Persons, and Detective Sergeant Morgan Callahan was assigned to take charge of the hunt for the girl.

When Mrs. Coit learned of the telegram yesterday afternoon she tried to communicate with Captain Ayres and Detective Callahan at Police Headquarters, but was told that neither of them was at hand. Then she and Miss Sawyer decided to go to the Grand Central Station and await the arrival of the Lake Shore limited express.

They explained their mission to the station master and were permitted to station themselves on the ramp leading to the train. In the first group of passengers to alight from the train at 5:30 o'clock in the evening was Miss Coit and a well-dressed middle-aged man.

"Miss Coit threw her arms around her mother's neck, kissed her and then kissed me," Miss Sawyer explained. "We had noticed the man walking beside her, and when Elizabeth did this, the man casually lifted his hat, smiled at the girl and her mother and disappeared in the crowd of passengers before Elizabeth could introduce him to us.

"Elizabeth told us that the gentleman had sent the telegram to Mr. Algernon Sawyer which brought us to the station. We regret very much that the gentleman did not wait until we had a chance to thank him for his kindness to Elizabeth."

Miss Sawyer added that the girl then began to sob and said: "Oh, how dreadful I have been. Will you be harsh with me?"

"I told her that I understood conditions perfectly," Miss Sawyer said. "I told her that I knew that she had been working too hard, and that that alone was responsible for her trip."

Regains Her Appetite.

Miss Sawyer said that Mrs. Coit and she then took the girl in a taxicab to the West Twenty-third Street Ferry. On their arrival at Hoboken they entered a restaurant, where the girl ate voraciously, saying that she had not been able to eat much from the time she read the newspaper in Chicago.

"We decided to remain in Hoboken for a little time," Miss Sawyer explained, "and we arrived home with Miss Coit at 9:20 tonight. She was so fatigued that she went to bed almost immediately. She pleaded with her mother not to think ill of her for what she had done, and especially requested that we send word to her father in Litchfield that she did not purposely cause him the newspaper notoriety that came about through her disappearance.

"I told her, 'Why, neither your father nor mother nor any of us are sorry for that. The newspaper reporters are the best friends you have. It was through the work of the reporters that you recovered your senses in Chicago and came home to us.'"

Miss Sawyer said that before their departure from this city for Montclair with the girl they tried to get Mr. Coit on the telephone at Litchfield but without success. Later they made several more attempts but could get no answer. Miss Sawyer said she believed that Mr. Coit was seeking his daughter among friends in Connecticut.

Miss Sawyer declared that Miss Coit's mental condition was normal and that the sudden longing for a "long trip" was due to the girl's work in connection with the private dancing fete held by 400 children last Saturday evening in the Montclair school.

"She is a typical New England girl," Miss Sawyer explained. "And she was overconscientious in the work of preparing for the fete. She had worked so hard that when it was over she had a nervous breakdown, but concealed it from all of us. Evidently she lost control of herself Monday afternoon when she reached the Pennsylvania terminal."

BOYS CELEBRATE DAY IN THE HOME

Today Will Be Devoted to Athletic Contests—Club Offers Prizes.

QUEENSBORO PLAZA MEET

Late Hours the Greatest Cause of Ill Health in Youth, Survey Indicates.

Boys' Day in the home was observed yesterday as part of "Boys' Week," and today the lads are to participate in Boys' Day out of doors. A number of athletic events have been arranged in the five boroughs and several hundred thousands of the young citizens are to match their prowess.

The New York Athletic Club has offered gold, silver and bronze medals for the winners of events on the city playgrounds, and at Queensboro Plaza there is to be a big athletic meet under the auspices of the Rotary Club. William C. Poertner, President of the New York Athletic Club, will be honorary referee of the events, the officials of the meet being furnished by the club. Some of the famous athletes who will guide the boys will be "Bernie" Wefers, J. Murray and E. Adams.

The Boy Scouts of America, who policed the lines of the boys' loyalty parade last Tuesday, when close to 90,000 boys poured down Fifth Avenue, were praised by Marcus Dow, Executive Secretary of the Police Bureau of Public Safety. He said that no accidents had been recorded along the entire line of March and almost the entire credit for this remarkable showing must be given to the 40,000 Boy Scouts who worked so effectively with the police as special safety aids.

Late hours is the greatest cause of ill health among boys, according to reports submitted at a meeting in Greenwich House last night. The meeting was addressed by M. M. Davis, Secretary of a committee that surveyed boy health, and by Dr. Louis I. Harriss, of the Board of Health.

"Of all the boys examined, 97 per cent. had very apparent physical defects," the report said. "Each boy was told what he should do to correct those defects, and in a great many cases the boys have carried out the instructions. The thing that is most important it is almost impossible to teach them, or any one else, and that is to get sufficient and regular sleep. Up to and 2 o'clock at night they stand around street corners or sit in the corner restaurant and next morning they get up to go to school or work. The result is lack of vitality and resistance."

WISCONSIN ALUMNI DINE.

Joseph E. Davies, Former Trade Commission Chairman, is Speaker.

About a hundred graduates of the University of Wisconsin attended the annual dinner of the New York alumni at the Hotel Pennsylvania last night. Speakers included James Harvey Robinson, Joseph E. Davies, former Chairman of the Federal Trade Commission; Theodore M. Hammond, former regent of the university, and Andy O'Dea, popular crew coach. A. R. Taylor acted as toastmaster.

Mr. Davies warned the graduates that Socialistic tendencies in Wisconsin were liable to secure a hold on the university unless the alumni stood firmly for progressive thought and freedom of expression, but not for ultra-radicalism.

ISOLATION POLICY FUTILE FOR AMERICA

tion in that body, it was explained. The Senate would not reassemble for seven months and the President was not worrying over what its attitude toward the World Court proposal might be. Undoubtedly, it was said, the President would refer to the World Court on his Western trip, but he would have no part in anything savoring of propaganda. That would be unworthy of the dignity of the President.

As for his recommendation to the Senate, the President was convinced, said his spokesman, that his proposal squared with the promises of the Republican Party and the Administration, and he believed in it with all his heart. At this point the spokesman said in a most impressive way, which reflected the manner and words of Mr. Harding, that anybody who had been President of the United States could not leave the White House with any desire to escape his country's responsibility to the world. President Harding, it was said, would not escape that responsibility if he could.

In the President's view, all the peoples of the globe were now in contact. When a man could fly across the American continent in twenty-seven hours, when the countries of the world were connected by radio and cable, the President could only be convinced that the idea of a nation living in a shell and having nothing to do with other nations and with international problems was so ridiculous as not to be thought of. Mr. Harding, it was repeated, was certain that no President would leave the White House with the honest conviction that the United States could remain aloof from the rest of the world.

This statement is expected to clear the air. It was probably intended to make known to Republican Senators who are opposing the President's World Court policy that he does not intend to sit quiescent and let them confuse the issue or build up a public sentiment against the court proposal without any rebuttal from Mr. Harding. It is notice to those Senators who are in favor of a policy of aloofness from world affairs on the part of the United States that whatever his prior views may have been, Mr. Harding's experience as President has convinced him that the United Sattes is in duty bound to do its part to bring the world back to normalcy, and he intends to proceed along that line.

CHILDREN'S SOCIETY REJECTS $350,000

Refuses to Accept Heckscher's Offer to Return Money Spent for Fifth Avenue Home.

Danger of a break between the Heckscher Foundation for Children and the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children was evident yesterday in a statement by August Heckscher, whose gift of $4,000,000 to promote welfare work among the children of New York created the Heckscher Foundation. Mr. Heckscher said that he had personally offered to return to the Children's Society the $350,000 that it had expended on the construction of the present building at Fifth Avenue and 105th Street.

The offer, Mr. Heckscher said, had been made through a State official, but was rejected. Officials of the Children's Society, he said, had replied that they wanted "over a million."

Deputy Attorney General Irving J. Goldsmith of Saratoga Springs, N. Y., last night replied to the appeal which Mr. Heckscher made to the New York State Commission for Examining Laws on Child Labor, requesting that the "policing and incidental work for the children of New York that are delinquent and some of whom are confirmed criminals at the age of 16, be taken over by the municipality which is exercising policing functions in every other direction and can do it at a far less cost and more efficiently."

"Your plan," said Deputy Attorney General Goldsmith, "would be to throw the duties of these societies onto one of the political divisions of the municipality. They are now performed by non-partisan unpaid managers with the aid of a staff and specially paid employes. The public are quite agreed that problems concerning the welfare of the home are best solved by boards of commissioners serving without compensation and rendering such service because of interest in the work and a desire to help others."

After reading Deputy Attorney General Goldsmith's letter last night, Mr. Heckscher said: "That is exactly what I maintain—that the society should be run by somebody interested in the work and not by paid employes. As matters stand now, the money is being paid out to a high salaried staff, and the children are not receiving the benefits that they are entitled to.

"When I made my gift I was informed that the society was not permitted by its charter to do welfare work. It was on this account, and against my will, that the Heckscher Foundation was started. Now, after organizing the foundation, some of the Trustees of the society insist that no money can be received from outside sources. What I resent is that it almost seems as if I had been led into a deliberate trap. It never occurred to me when I was asked if I would consent to separate charters for the society and the foundation that the designation "foundation" is a bar to outside assistance. I do not think that the management of the foundation has been extravagant, but I do say it has not been efficient."

SCORES PACKER MERGER.

Judge B. T. Hainer Says It Is "Biggest Attack" on Anti-Trust Laws.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 4 (Associated Press).—Purchase of Morris & Co. by Armour & Co. constitutes "the biggest attack ever made in this country on our anti-trust laws," it was declared here today by Judge B. T. Hainer, chief counsel for Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, following a receipt of a telegram from Mr. Wallace instructing him to "leave nothing undone" in prosecuting the department's complaint that the purchase would be in violation of the Packers and Stockyards act.

DAUGHTERS TO FIGHT BRADY ACCOUNTING

Counsel Gives Notice That Objections Will Be Filed by Mrs. Garvan and Mrs. Tucker.

SURROGATE'S HEARING ENDS

Attorney for Mrs. Garvan and Mrs. Tucker Allowed Until June 4 to Enter Objections.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, May 4.—Mrs. Francis P. Garvan and Mrs. Carl Tucker, daughters of the late Anthony N. Brady, will file objections to the accounting for 1919 and 1920 of the administration of the trust funds in which they have a life interest.

This announcement was made today by their attorney, Isidore Kresel, at the hearing before Surrogate Lawyer, who gave Mr. Kresel until Monday, June 4, to place formal objections on file.

The objections will allege large losses of trust funds, including a specific loss of approximately $1,000,000 to each of the four trusts of the estate in the sale of Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company stock, extravagance in management, and the use of wrong methods. It is believed that the proceeding will have for its ultimate object an attempt to oust Nicholas F. Brady and James C. Brady, brothers of Mrs. Garvan and Mrs. Tucker, as trustees.

Although the attorney for Mrs. James C. Farrell, a sister, and Miss Marcia Ann Gavit, a niece, who are standing with Nicholas F. and James C. Brady, in the family controversy, told the Court on Wednesday that each trust had increased more than $3,200,000 from its original value of about $11,500,000, Mr. Kresel declared that each trust had actually shrunk more than $2,000,000 in value on Dec. 31, 1920, the end of the period for which the present accounting was being made.

This assertion was disputed by George W. Davison, President of the Central Union Trust Company, which, with the Bradys, is an executor and a trustee of the estate.

Motion for an Audit Denied.

Mr. Kresel then asked the Court for an order to permit him to have made an audit of the trust funds to and including Dec. 31, 1922, declaring that his clients had never had the opportunity for an audit such as apparently had been granted to the other trust beneficiaries, Mrs. Farrell and Miss Gavit. On objection by former Governor Miller, attorney for the trustees, Surrogate Lawyer denied Mr. Kresel's motion saying he would entertain it after objections to the accounting had been filed.

The proceedings before the Surrogate were adjourned immediately after the court had set a time limit for the filing of objections. Some surprise was caused by Mr. Kresel's failure to call Nicholas F. Brady, the elder brother, as a witness, after he had tried to bring out that he was the dominant factor in the administration of the estate.

James C. Brady testified that he was ill during part of the period of the accounting. It was said, as a matter of fact, that he had been able to spend little time in the estate office during this period and that most of the management of the estate and trust funds during these two years had devolved upon Nicholas F. Brady.

In objecting to granting an audit of the trust accounts up to Dec. 31, 1922, Governor Miller said:

"It seems to me that this proceeding has reached a point where, if anybody has objections to file, they should file them. The accounting was filed almost two years ago. This alleged demand for permission to examine the books comes after they had every opportunity to examine them. Judge Ingraham can inform you of the facts of the negotiations. Everything desired was turned over to Mr. Wickersham, who was then the representative of the beneficiaries. They had accountants work for more than eighteen months, they had photostatic copies, confidential letters, and even the personal accounts of the trustees."

Kresel Gives His Notice.

"We propose to file objections," replied Mr. Kresel, "and this examination is not going to delay us. It is not a fact that we have had an audit of the books. This talk of having accountants at work on them for a year and half is puerile. Every time a book was submitted to one of our accountants a man stood at his elbow to see what he was doing. We have the same right to an audit as the other beneficiaries."

Governor Miller objected to extending the time for the filing of objections to June 4, on the ground that this would almost certainly continue the case until Fall. The Court, however, held that an adjournment of a month would be reasonable.

Mr. Davison, who was the only witness examined, was questioned concerning the sale of stock in the Reynolds Tobacco Company, which Mr. Kresel declared had caused a loss of $418,000 to each trust. After the refusal of Mrs. Garvan and Mrs. Tucker to permit the sale of 3,490 shares which each had obtained as stock dividends, the trustees sold 8,980 shares at 40 for each trust.

Mr. Kresel contended that the company declared a 33 1-3 per cent. stock dividend a short time after the sale and that the stock was now selling at 60 and had sold since the sale as high as 65.

"I haven't figured it out," Mr. Davison said, in reply to a question as to what extent the trust had lost by the transaction. "We have had to exercise the best judgment we could. The result has been an appreciation in the principal of each of these trusts and the payment of a very large percentage of income."

Mr. Davison said he did not approve the purchase of securities for the trusts through personal accounts of James C. or Nicholas F. Brady. He defended the practice of loaning money of the trusts on call loans through brokers and said he thought call loans constituted a safe and profitable investment.

THIRD FIRE IN MONROE HOME

Firemen Quickly Subdue Flames in Former President's Old House.

The house at 63 Prince Street caught fire yesterday for the third time in the last six months. The house was the home of James Monroe, the fifth President of the United States.

By quick work of firemen under Chief Heffernan, the three-story building, which has long been unoccupied, was saved from destruction. A passer-by noticed smoke coming from the room that once was Monroe's study, on the second floor, and turned in an alarm. The flames were extinguished before much damage was done.

The cause of the fire is unknown and no plausible excuse for suspecting incendiaries has been discovered. It was thought that the building was used by a gang as a poker club, and that the first two fires, on Oct. 4 and Feb. 28, were caused by accident. Later the building has been carefully watched and no one has been seen to enter or leave. Some time ago plans were under way by a patriotic group to restore the building to the condition it was in when occupied by the ex-President.

Plasterers' Case in Jury's Hands.

When no verdict had been returned at 11 o'clock last night by the jury in the trial of thirty-six officials of Plasterers' Union, Local 60, on an indictment charging them with conspiring to hamper building operations in this city between 1920 and 1922, Justice Brown in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court ordered the jury locked up for the night, and announced that he would open court at 10 o'clock this morning. The bail which had been furnished by the defendants at the time of arrest was continued.

Personal Visits to Studios of Artists, painters and sculptors.

At home and abroad one cannot but be impressed with the many pieces of work left unfinished.

As a visitor it would not be courteous to inquire the reason why.

Upon reflection and observation, however, it seems to be the common habit of almost all human beings to begin things, tire of them, neglect them, and leave good things, well begun, unfinished.

There are, to be sure, some persons who are, from habit, scatterers of their time, opportunities, genius, education and wealth.

They seem to live in a wind that blows out of sight and memory their ideas and plans, as the Winter wind blows the frost-bitten leaves from the forest trees.

To stay at the lesson until it is learned and stop by the work undertaken until it is completed is the real thing.

To "remain attached" to a purpose or a chosen calling in "six times out of seven" the secret of success.

FARRELL ADVOCATES SHIPPING HARMONY

Urges Sale of Government-Owned Craft Both to Americans and Foreigners.

WOULD APPORTION TONNAGE

NEW ORLEANS, May 4.—Addresses by James A. Farrell, President of the United States Steel Corporation, on "The Shipping Situation of the World," and C. H. Markham, President of the Illinois Central Railroad, on "Railway Service for Foreign Trade," were features of the closing general session here today of the tenth annual convention of the National Foreign Trade Council.

Loss in operation of American ships comes not from a surplus of modern ships, but from a lack of co-operation on the part of all owners, foreign and domestic, to stabilize a business in which all are suffering, according to Mr. Farrell.

"I am confident our foreign rivals would recognize the desirability of co-operation by all maritime countries in disposing of tonnage to be used in the market, so as to balance the supply of ships with the demand, thereby stabilizing rates, not merely to the advantage of the operators, but even more to the advantage of the traders of the world," he said.

"There is an opportunity for a trading relation. The Shipping Board admittedly has many more ships than it hopes or needs to sell to Americans. Retain sufficient for our needs and sell to foreigners the surplus. Internationally, there can be built a basis for the sale of the board's ships at the world's market price in a manner which will give to the American shipowners a paying basis on the volume of trade they seek. The board would be in a position to say to the American company in a given trade route:

"'Co-operate with the foreign lines now competing with you; furnish one-half of the tonnage required to move the freight over a particular route; each to act as loading and discharging agent for the other; each plan which ships of the two companies will operate on an alternate schedule, and thus each will receive an equal portion of the business moving in both directions.

"The foreign line would receive the advantage of replacing obsolete ships with modern ships at a fair price; they would know within reason the elements with which they and their American partner would have to contend; they would know that they would no longer have to match their reserves against those of the United States Treasury; and, best of all, the available ships would be leveled down to the number the world trade requires, through scrapping such of the Shipping Board fleet as is obsolete and the scrapping of such foreign tonnage as is in a similar condition."

Mr. Farrell declared that, while one-third of the Government-owned ships would not justify the cost of reconditioning, at least two-thirds could be put into commission at a cost not exceeding $5 per ton, dead weight, and at least half of it could ultimately be sold to foreign buyers at $10 to $15 a ton less than the price at which foreigners could now build similar vessels. He suggested a selling charge of $25 per ton, dead weight, after the ships were reconditioned.

HARDING WON'T HEED LEVIATHAN PROTESTS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—The protests of Senator Edge and other citizens of New Jersey against the action of the Shipping Board in designating New York and not Hoboken as the American terminal of the Leviathan will bear no fruit. It was said at the White House this afternoon that the President has no intention of interfering with the plans of the Shipping Board to dock the Leviathan on the Manhattan side of the Hudson. As long as the Government remains in the shipping business it will be the policy of the Government, the White House spokesman said, to run the ships as a business and not a geographical proposition.

The protest of the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce because the contract to recondition the President Buchanan was awarded to the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company, and not to the New York Navy Yard, the lowest bidder, had not reached the White House late this afternoon. The impression is general that the President will in this, as in the Leviathan case, decline to overrule the action of the Shipping Board.

The Leviathan will soon leave Newport News for Boston, where she will go into dry dock. As soon as the liner is made ready for the sea she will go on a trial trip, probably to the West Indies, and then steam to New York, from which port she sails for Plymouth, Cherbourg and Southampton July 4.

WON'T TAKE GERMAN DYES.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—It is understood the American Government will make no effort to obtain reparation dyes from Germany for American consumption before the reconvening of Congress.

While officials believe the Government has authority to receive such dyes, the State Department is understood to hold that receipt would be useless until machinery is created to enable the Government to engage in the distribution of such dyes. The Allied Governments have agreed that part of the German dyes should be turned over to the United States in partial payment of the costs of American army of occupation in Germany.

A resolution was introduced at the last session of Congress by Senator Shortridge of California to authorize the President to receive the dyes and set up a suitable organization for their distribution. This was discussed before a Senate committee, but no action was taken.

While officials are unwilling to discuss the negotiations in Paris for the repayment of the army costs, it is understood that the allocation of dyes as a fractional part of the reimbursement has been pushed to one side for the present at least. It was never contemplated that more than $5,000,000 a year might be repaid in these payments in kind.

GIVE ENGLISH FOLK SONGS.

Society Aids in Celebration of Music Week in Aeolian Hall.

The English Folk Dance Society made its first appearance in a concert hall last evening in a program in celebration of Music Week at Aeolian Hall. All available room in the auditorium was taken, and many persons were not able to get in. Of the participants in the dances, Ruth, a horse with human feet protroding from under a flowing robe upon which was a knave, seemed to find the most favor with the audience. Ruth proved to be a horse of almost unlimited accomplishments, for not only did she bow for the dancers, but when she thought the applause merited she did an encore for them.

English folk dances and songs composed the program, the first part of which was given by members of the Edgewood School of Greenwich, the Girls' High School of Brooklyn and the Ethical Culture School of New York. Kenneth K. Wheeler sang three unfamiliar folk songs, which delighted his hearers. The second part took the form of a May fête with a queen and a king looking on at the dancing of thirty members of the society which was refreshing in its graceful simplicity and the keen enjoyment of those taking part.

S. P. C. A. Entitled to Fines.

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals is entitled to receive the fines collected from persons guilty of cruelty to animals, under a ruling by the Appellate Division yesterday, in a case involving a fine of $25, in which both the city and the society claimed the money. The case was brought as a test.

MOTION PICTURE NOTES.

Five thousand school children will be the guests of the management of the Capitol this morning as the finale to the celebration of Music Week. S. L. Rothafel has arranged an elaborate musical program.

A special performance of "The Covered Wagon" will be given at the Criterion Theatre at 11:15 this evening for the Police Chiefs of the world now in convention here. It is anticipated that there will be about 500 in the party. The junior history class of the Horace Mann School will attend the showing of "The Covered Wagon" at the Criterion Theatre this afternoon.

George FitzMaurice, director of "Bella Donna," "Three Live Ghosts," "The Cheat" and other special pictures, was the principal guest at a luncheon in the Ritz-Carlton yesterday. Other guests included Samuel Goldwyn, Montague Glass and members of the staff of First National Pictures Corporation. Mr. FitzMaurice is going to Rome to make Hall Caine's "The Eternal City."

SAYS EUROPE LOOKS TO BUSINESS FOR AID

DEFENDS FRENCH IN RUHR

Non-Stop Flight Feat Should Speed Up Our Commercial Aviation, Says Howard E. Coffin.

Premier Mussolini, to whom he said the credit for Italy's recovery belonged, was making a sincere effort to enlist the aid of business men in solving the country's problems, Lewis E. Pierson, Chairman of the Irving Bank-Columbia Trust Company, asserted yesterday on his return from Europe aboard the Cunard liner Mauretania. Mr. Pierson, who is President of the Merchants' Association, said he had hastened home to attend a meeting of the United States Chamber of Commerce, at which he would discuss the problems that came before the International Chamber of Commerce in Rome which he attended.

Mr. Pierson said his visit abroad, which included a six-weeks' motor trip through Italy and France with Mrs. Pierson and their daughter, had afforded him an opportunity to form conclusive ideas, among them that the leading nations are eager for the judgment and assistance of business men in working out the problems of government.

Mussolini made a favorable impression on the delegates to the international convention by arriving at one of the sessions ten minutes ahead of schedule, which he spent in getting acquainted, Mr. Pierson told interviewers. Under the Premier industries were forging ahead and there seemed to be scarcely any unemployment.

Mr. Pierson was impressed with the extent of the reconstruction of France. Every one was working early and late, "much too early" for his own rising time, he added, laughing. As to the reparations, he said France was contending that Germany only lacked the will to pay, the French pointing out that their country with one-tenth of the area, and a much greater percentage of industries destroyed, had recovered, and there was no reason why Germany, a land unharmed, could not do the same.

"Germany has thrown around a smoke screen," Mr. Pierson said, "while exchanging her worthless marks for the good currency of the world to the extent of billions. This explains the French attitude toward the occupation of the Ruhr, which is to force the delinquent property to give security."

Mr. Pierson said that the recent offer by Germany was regarded by the French as a "preliminary jockeying for position" on the inevitable settlement.

Howard E. Coffin, head of airplane construction during the war, and Vice President of the Hudson Motor Company, also attended the international chamber of commerce convention at Rome. He said the brilliant performance of Lieutenants Kelly and Macready in their non-stop flight to the Pacific marked a new victory for the United States in aeronautics.

"Now is the time to speed up here the commercial development of the airplane, because in Europe they are far ahead of us, especially in France," Mr. Coffin said. "In Paris one can start in any direction by commercial planes. Routes are already laid out to Budapest and Moscow. France has a great military airplane force, as large, if not larger, than during the war, in addition to the commercial fleet of planes."

John H. Fahey of Boston, former President of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, also returning from the Rome convention, said it had been anticipated that France would reject the German offer of reparations, but that there was a tendency towards some kind of an adjustment. He did not believe there would be any outside interference.

"The figures of settlement are not the only things to be considered," Mr. Fahey said. In connection with the settlement there is certain to be some guarantee as to the security of frontiers. The people of France are solidly behind the so-called invasion of the Ruhr."

Others among the 394 first cabin passengers were Mrs. J. Stuart Blackton, wife of Commodore Blackton, of the Vitagraph Company, whose three children, Violet, Charles and Marie, appeared with Lady Diana Manners in one of Mr. Blackton's film productions; Baron and Baroness La Grange, Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Alexander, Geoffrey de Silva, Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Black and Mr. and Mrs. James S. Kemper.

CONGRATULATES FLIERS ON BEATING HIS RECORD

93-Year-Old New Yorker Says It Took Him Five Months to Cross Continent 71 Years Ago.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., May 4.—While hundreds of telegrams of congratulation continued to reach them from all parts of the world, and with the knowledge that United States Congressmen and Senators are planning to honor them, Lieutenant Oakley G. Kelly and Lieutenant John A. Macready today rested on their laurels. Macready was at the home of his parents in Los Angeles and Kelly with friends here.

The fliers received a telegram from Ezra Meeker of New York City, as follows:

"Congratulations on your wonderful flight, which beats my time made seventy-one years ago by ox team at two miles an hour, five months on the way. Happy to see in my ninety-third year so great a transformation in methods of travel. Ready to go with you next time."

Macready and Kelly sent a telegram to Colonel Franklin R. Kenney, former executive of the air service, who presented to them $5,000 won on a wager that the fliers would successfully fly from New York to San Diego. It follows:

"To do anything that needs doing is a soldier's plain duty, but when that accomplishment brings victory to a friend it makes it a pleasure. With a grateful acceptance of your splendid gift there is a satisfaction and a knowledge that it pays to be in the Army Air Service."

Colonel Kenney telegraphed the $5,000 this morning.

Both airmen will rest until May 13, when they will fly to Los Angeles to permit the residents of that city to see the "ship" that now has seven world's records to its credit.

The plane is under guard at Rockwell Field awaiting the return of the aviators when the remaining gas, water and oil supply will be checked and an official report sent to the War Department.

PIERNE'S CANTATA GIVEN WITH 4,000

VANDERSTUCKEN CONDUCTS

Great Assembly Touched by Episodes of Beautiful Legend—Lambert Murphy in Narrator's Role.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, May 4.—Charming and challenging attention with its myriad infantile voices, "The Children's Crusade" was revived on a great scale tonight as the third choral evening and the fourth of six varied concerts in Cincinnati's semi-annual May Music Festival, which will come to a close tomorrow for another two years in the city's historic Music Hall. Frank Van der Stucken, who conducted nearly 1,400 performers tonight, had led two of the three earlier meetings of the same work. For it he in 1908 first enlisted in three festivals the children of Cincinnati's public schools.

Pierne's cantata of the thirteenth century babes who vowed to be crusaders, as they now might become Girl and Boy Scouts, was widely sung in America after it won a triennial prize of 10,000 francs offered by the city of Paris. There it was produced at the Chatelet Jan. 18, 1906. The French conductor was Edward Colonne, since succeeded by Gabriel Pierne himself. The composer, born at Metz sixty years ago, found his subject in a religious legend of Cologne.

Where Paris had heard with delight 200 of its children and New York on occasion more, tonight's stage contained no fewer than 1,386 performers when the evening began. Nine hundred children were heard and most of them seen in the wings of the broad stage. The veteran festival chorus of 323 had one added adult group, thirty-six professional singers, all women, as the lost babes' mothers. In front of all were the solo group of five stars and the hundred men of the Cincinnati Orchestra.

Lambert Murphy, who had not sung in earlier works of the week, brought to the narrator's role of this apocryphal infancy legend a tenor of true sympathy and mystic quality for which is known. Mmes. Easton and Sundelius sang with more tender warmth the gentle youth and maiden guiding the crusade. Mrs. Langenhorst, a local soprano, was again heard as a mother's voice. Clarence Whitehill gave there art to the old sailor's recital of how the nativity star shone red over Bethlehem. His was also the baritone voice at the close in "Suffer little children to come to me."

Marcel Schwab's poem in English translation was singularly well heard in the wide, close-ranged hall. The Cologne children and their forth-setting for Jerusalem, the straying march to Genoa, their play by the sea with the starfish, as if fledged stars fallen from heaven, and their final vision of the Savior amid shipwreck in storm, touched the great assembly, as these episodes everywhere have done. The incisive performance by big scattered forces proved again the discipline of Cincinnati's choristers with their half-century heritage.

As for the children, who were many, though hardly as numerous among the 4,000 auditors at top prices as were the little folk on the stage, it was plainly the night of nights of the jubilee festival for them.

THEATRE DOESN'T NEED GOOD FILMS, HE SAYS

Witness at Movie Hearing Declares Capitol Gets $25,000 a Week on Any Picture.

"The Capitol Theater claims it can take in $25,000 a week whether they have a good picture or not," declared Alexander Lichtman, President of the Al Lichtman Corporation and the Preferred Pictures Corporation, yesterday, at the continuation of the Government's hearing in the charge that Famous Players is operating in restraint of trade. The Capitol is controlled by the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation. Several of the witnesses who represented the independent producing or distributing corporations, admitted that the quality of the Famous Players pictures averaged better than any others.

Winfield R. Sheehan, General Manager of Fox Films Corporation, said that his firm had been able "generally speaking" to show its pictures in the first run theaters of the country. The Fox Film Company, said Mr. Sheehan, does not own any theaters, but he asserted that an independent concern of which William Fox is President, owns thirty-five or forty theaters throughout the United States.

Mr. Lichtman, who was recalled, declared during cross-examination of Robert T. Swaine, of counsel for the respondents, that the theaters like the Strand and Capitol do not depend entirely upon the quality of the pictures they show. The size of the theater, the management and the music help considerably, he testified. The hearing will be continued Monday morning.

DENIES HE HAS HIPPODROME

Gest Says It Has Not Been Bought for Spectacles by Reinhardt.

No confirmation of the Broadway rumor that the Hippodrome had been sold or leased to theatrical people, thus upsetting plans made for converting it into a department store or hotel, could be obtained last night. Morris Gest, the theatrical producer, denied that the huge theatre had been bought for his use, for the purpose of presenting spectacles there to be staged by Max Reinhardt. H. C. Windsor, Vice President of the United States Realty and Improvement Company, which owns the building, also denied that any deal had been closed with Mr. Gest. Otto H. Kahn, mentioned as a possible purchaser, or any one else.

"KIKI" ENDS RUN TONIGHT.

To Stop at 600th Performance; Chauve Souris at 551st.

Two theatrical attractions having lengthy New York runs to their credit close their engagements with two performances today—Lenore Ulric, in "Kiki," at the Belasco, and Balieff's Chauve Souris on the Century Roof. "Kiki" was first produced on Nov. 29, 1921, and tonight will mark Lenore Ulric's six-hundredth performance in the title role.

The Chauve Souris, which has played 551 performances here since Feb. 4, 1922, will return to America after a Summer season at the Théâtre Femina in Paris.

Davis to Speak at Dinner.

The progress of a movement for better acquaintance and co-operation among the English-speaking peoples will be described at the national dinner of the English-Speaking Union of the United States, at the Hotel Astor on May 16, by John W. Davis, former Ambassador to Great Britain, President of the union, and William A. Neilson, President of Smith College.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

The run of "Bombo," in which Al Jolson returns to the Winter Garden on May 14, will be limited to four weeks.

Autographed books and pictures by David Belasco, Lenore Ulric, Margaret Mattenauer, Frieda Hempel, Glenn Hunter and others will be sold at the benefit for the Children's Welfare Federation at the Apollo on Sunday night.

FRENCH BAR PADDOCK FROM PARIS GAMES

Federation Decides to Prohibit International Meet if He Is Permitted to Run.

HIS EXHIBITIONS APPROVED

Organizers of Championships, However, Declare Sprinter Will Compete.

COAST STAR BREAKS RECORD

Lowers World Mark in 75-Meters by Four-Fifths of a Second—Italian Wins Pentathlon.

PARIS, May 4 (Associated Press).—The French Athletic Federation tonight, after a full discussion, decided to prohibit the holding of the remainder of the International University Championship games if Charles Paddock, the American sprinter, continues to compete in them.

It was announced by the Federation, however, that it would permit Paddock to give exhibitions.

On being informed of the decision of the Federation the organizers of the championship games, which are in progress at Porte Doree Stadium, declared that Paddock would run as had been arranged, notwithstanding the Federation's ban.

Paddock, who is the only American competing in the international students' athletic meet, was again the outstanding star in the second day's events at the Porte Doree Stadium.

He won the semi-final in the 100-meter dash handily, his time being 0:10 4-5, or two-fifths of a second behind his own world's record. Then, running against time, with nobody to urge him to greater speed by competition, he broke the world's record for the 75-meter dash. His time was 0:08 2-5, or four-fifths of a second better than the previous record, held by Engdahl of Sweden.

The only final event completed today was the pentathlon, which was won by Contoli of Italy. He was first in the broad jump and javelin throw, second in the 200 meters and discus throw, and third in the 1,500-meter race. His nearest competitor in these events was Svoboda of Czechoslovakia. Zinner of Belgium was third.

Although there are 160 athletes competing in the games, representing fourteen countries, it appears from the first two days' events that none of them is likely to establish new records, with the exception of Paddock.

RUBIEN SAYS FRENCH ACTION IS PLEASING

Shows They Are Ready to Aid in Upholding International Rules, He Asserts.

Frederick W. Rubien, Secretary-Treasurer of the Amateur Athletic Union and Chairman of the National Registration Committee, expressed satisfaction last night when informed of the action of the French Athletic Federation in upholding the A. A. U. ruling against Charley Paddock's competing abroad.

"The action of the French Federation in the Paddock case is pleasant news and shows that the French officials are ready to co-operate in upholding the international rules," said Rubien at his home. "In invoking its rule against international competition abroad by American athletes, the American Olympic Committee acted in support of the French officials who are working for the interests of the Olympic Games in Paris next year.

"The real motive back of the International Olympic Commissioners and members of our American Olympic Committee was to discourage this international competition, on the ground that it was not fair for this country to be sending large teams abroad a year before the Olympic Games. Next year the American athletes will be abroad for the Olympic Games and will have plenty of opportunity to engage in these events for which invitations have been extended.

"We have always stood for the dignity of the Olympic Games as they have been conducted in the past. If everybody and every organization is going to hold an Olympic meet the games will quickly develop into a farce. I am sorry that these trips must be discouraged because we have received a number of invitations to have our athletes compete abroad. Only today I received a cable from Sweden asking the A. A. U. to assist in sending a team of athletes there this year.

"While preventing these trips may dissatisfy a few, I am sure the majority realize it is for the best interests of amateur sport and will accept the ruling."

N. Y. U. IS VICTOR OVER AMHERST, 8-4

Torpe Fans Ten Batsmen, Makes Four Safeties and Scores Three Runs.

New York University's baseball team defeated Amherst yesterday at Ohio Field by the score of 8 to 4. After N. Y. U. had scored five runs the Massachusetts collegians settled down to errorless ball and held the victors to three runs in six innings.

Jim Torpe, former Washington High School star and youngest moundsman of the N. Y. U. staff, pitched a fine game for the University Heights team. He also had a batting percentage of 1.000. He fanned ten Amherst batters and allowed only two free bases. At bat he hit four bingles in an equal number of trips to the plate and scored three runs.

Hoover Plans Quick Change In Making Trip to Henley

DULUTH, Minn., May 4 (Associated Press).—Walter Hoover, world's singles sculling champion, who will defend the Philadelphia Gold Challenge Cup, emblematic of the world's title, here June 8, expects to repeat his quick-change act to make connections with the steamship for England if his application to the English Henley is approved. Hoover, after winning the world's title at Philadelphia last June, rushed from his shell to the train and reached New York just in time to catch the steamship. The English Henley this year will be staged the first week in July, with the Diamond Sculls events scheduled for early in the week. If Hoover's application is approved, he expects to leave Duluth the afternoon of the titular race and reach New York two days later, a few hours before the Aquitania sails for England.

SYRACUSE OARSMEN VICTORS OVER M. I. T.

Special to The New York Times.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., May 4.—Syracuse University's oarsmen in their first brush of the 1923 season proved superior to those of Massachusetts Institute of Technology this afternoon on the Seneca River. The distance separating the crews at the end of the mile and a quarter, the distance over which the race was rowed, was six feet of open water, and the time of the winner was 6:21.

It was the first race between the two college crews in ten years and as it was the feature of moving-up day exercises at Syracuse University, the event attracted several thousand spectators who saw the brush from rowboats, canoes, from the banks of the narrow river, bridges and other vantage points. The day was ideal for an aquatic carnival.

The two crews got off almost to a perfect start. Immediately after hitting the water for the initial stroke the M. I. T. oarsmen jumped into the lead and it took some tall pulling by the Orange to overhaul the visitors.

Stroke Jack Brill of the Cambridge crew hit up a killing pace, close to forty strokes to the minute, and for nearly three-quarters of a mile the boys from near Boston kept a slight advantage. But at this point Julius Howard, former Duluth oarsman and stroke and Captain of the Orange, raised the stroke and went into the lead. From then on the Orange oarsmen were never headed.

The Massachusetts oarsmen made a good showing considering that they are not veterans at the rowing game. Coach Ten Eyck was satisfied with the showing made by his pupils and it is felt that he has a much better crew than some of the critics have doped him to have this season.

The Orange stroke and captain rated the boat along in a neat fashion and when it came time to open up the Orange bladewielders showed considerable latent power.

The M. I. T. crew rowed in one of the Syracuse shells which was loaned to them for the afternoon.

OUIMET GAINS CUP BY SINGLE STROKE

SCORES ARE 77 AND 78

Winner Sets Pace All the Way, but Coast Golfer's Putting Keeps Match Alive to Home Hole.

SANDWICH, England, May 4 (Associated Press).—Francis Ouimet of Boston, who has been both amateur and open champion of the United States, today added to his golfing glory the most prized possession in all the world for individual amateur medal play—the St. George's Challenge Cup.

By the margin of a single stroke he defeated his compatriot, Dr. O. F. Willing of Portland, Ore., with whom he had tied in the regular thirty-six holes of stroke competition on Wednesday and Thursday with a score of 153. Today Ouimet took 77 and Dr. Willing 78 to cover the course over the sand dunes on which, a year ago, another American, Walter Hagen, won the British open championship.

Dr. Willing made a courageous effort to tie Ouimet again today at the home hole, when he used all his skill in an effort to sink a chip shot of thirty-six feet and failed by only three inches. The Westerner never got in the lead, but he was in the fight every second until that last shot, which thrilled the gallery as it rolled straight for the cup and came to a slow disheartening stop less than the length of a finger from the goal.

The sure, steady Ouimet, flailing the ball with fine precision, always set the pace—a pace that Willing, with less punch and accuracy in his hard strokes, found it difficult to follow. But on the short approaches, and especially on the greens, the Oregonian got his opportunity to catch up by delicate and careful manipulation of the clubs. Of this he took every advantage.

Willing Fights Hard.

Five times he sank his first putt, while the Boston star needed at least two on every hole but one, and three on two of these. In this way the Westerner, unfaltering in his dogged attempt to keep up with his brilliant pacemaker, succeeded in doing so almost until the end.

Veteran golfers who followed the match under the dazzling seaside sun all agreed that they had never seen a tenser play-off. Willing simply would not let go, although twice during the match Ouimet was two strokes ahead.

At the very first green Ouimet took a lead of one stroke. Willing duffed his drive off the tee, and fears arose that a walkover was imminent, but the Westerner headed straight for the green over a cruel chain of sand mounds, and although he got there still another stroke behind Ouimet, he sank his first putt, squaring the hole and holding Ouimet's lead to one stroke.

At the third hole Ouimet's second shot lipped the tin and for an instant Willing once more seemed bereft of hope. But Ouimet's ball slipped a yard away and Willing ran his ball to within five feet of the cup and sank it for a 3, while Ouimet took two putts for a 4, squaring the match.

Ouimet's play on the fourth hole would have taken the heart out of a weaker opponent. His second shot, with a spoon, carried 200 yards, stopping within three feet of the pin for a sure 3, while Willing was short and had to take five, putting him two strokes to the bad.

Sinks 40-Foot Putt.

Then the Westerner got into more trouble, both his second and third shots on the fifth hole landing in sand, one in a bunker and the other in a trap, while Ouimet again reached the green in two. Willing's third shot dropped alongside Ouimet's second on the edge of the spacious green, forty feet from the cup. Ouimet sank his second putt for a 4. It seemed certain the Westerner would have to take a 5, which would put him three down. For a long time he studied the green, one of the few flat ones on the entire course; then he slowly tapped the ball and it fleew straight along the forty feet of turf into the cup, squaring the hole.

They took the next two holes in even scores of 4 and 5, and then, on the 197-yard eighth, Willing cut Ouimet's lead to one once more by virtue of a single putt, when Ouimet needed two. Ouimet squared the ninth and at the tenth Willing finally caught up when Ouimet's second shot dropped into a bunker of heavy sand beside the green.

Ouimet reached the eleventh green in two, while the less powerful Willing took three, but the Oregonian hung on again by sinking his first putt. On the twelfth both Willing's drive and second shot were bunkered and Ouimet went down in it to his 5. On the thirteenth the Westerner's drive found the rough and he tried his best to even things with a 25-foot putt, but missed by inches.

Willing's real cup of sorrow came at the fourteenth, when for once his putter failed him, and he took three tries on the green, making the only 9 to show on the day's cards. Ouimet's 5 again gave him the advantage of two strokes. From then on Ouimet left no opening until the seventeenth hole, when, his drive landing in heavy, high grass, he was able to get but a bare fifty yards on his second. Willing, however, could not take advantage of his opponent's difficulty for his own second fell into the rough, and both men were fortunate to get 5s.

There was now only the home hole to play with Ouimet two strokes ahead. The Boston star got off a good drive, as did Willing. Then Ouimet, being short on his approach, the Westerner clubbed the ball with all his strength, but it had a slight slice on it, and fell into the grass about four feet off the edge of the green.

Ball Stops Short of Cup.

Ouimet played safe with a pitch and run to the edge of the long green and putted to within two feet of the hole. Now came Willing's opportunity to tie the score, but as has already been told, his chip shot, although played with greatest care, stopped three inches from the cup. He sank this putt, leaving Ouimet to run down a two-footer for the victory.

Then, without a quiver or even a minute's hesitation, Ouimet plucked his ball from the cup, addressed it, and banged it down the course while the gallery, which had been holding in its emotions, broke into shouts and applause.

Davis Cup Team to Sail From Australia May 31

SYDNEY, Australia, May 4.—Australia's Davis Cup team, composed of James O. Anderson, J. B. Hawkes, R. E. Schlesinger and L. D. McInnis, is scheduled to leave this country on May 31. The council of the Australian Lawn Tennis Association has suggested that the team's match against Hawaii be played at New York.

20,000 WILL WATCH DERBY RACES TODAY

Indications Point to Record Crowd at Yale-Columbia-Pennsylvania Regatta.

Special to the New York Times.

DERBY, Conn., May 4.—On the eve of their first triangular regatta, the first and second varsity crews of Columbia, Pennsylvania and Yale tonight faced a prospect of fairly high winds, cloudy weather, possible showers and a crowd of about 20,000 persons, nearly double the highest previous attendance at any of the boat races held on Yale's new course on the Housatonic.

While there is a slight chance that the races may be deferred a short time because of the wind, indications are that they will take place promptly as follows:

2:45 P. M.—Freshman eights of Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Yale over Henley distance.

3:15 P. M.—Second varsity eights of Pennsylvania, Columbia and Yale over two-mile distance.

3:45 P. M.—First varsity eights of Pennsylvania, Columbia and Yale over two-mile course. The schedule is based on standard time.

The automobile crowd at the regatta is expected to reach $15,000 and about 5,000 persons are coming in on the special trains that leave New Haven at 1:10 P. M. and New York City at 11:35 A. M. The observation train of thirty-two cars, the largest ever booked for a Housatonic regatta, will start from the Derby railroad station at 2 o'clock. Heretofore the observation trains have started from the Shelton station. This year the train will not stop at the Shelton station. The observation train will not return to Derby between races. Tickets for two cars on the observation train remained unsold tonight and will go at public sale tomorrow.

Columbia's two varsity eights remained warm favorites tonight, not only because of their clean-cut victories over Pennsylvania and Princeton last Saturday, but because of their smoothness of form exhibited on the Housatonic yesterday and today.

CREWS TAKE FINAL SPINS ON CARNEGIE

Navy, Harvard and Princeton Oarsmen Wind Up Their Practices for Today's Races.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., May 4.—The Navy, Harvard and Princeton crews all held final workouts on Lake Carnegie this afternoon in preparation for the triangular regatta to be held here tomorrow. The Harvard Varsity and Freshman crews had a previous trial on the lake this morning, while the Navy crews were out for the first time in the afternoon. All the crews showed good form and drive, but their times were not disclosed.

Both the Harvard and Navy crews arrived here this morning and look to be in splendid condition. Coaches Mueller and Haines took the Crimson Varsity and Freshman crews up to the dam, the starting point of the course, this morning, and gave them a light rowing drill over the course, their stroke not exceeding twenty-four to twenty-six. This afternoon both crews went out again, and Coach Haines spent a long time trying the yearlings in racing starts. The varsity was on the lake for only fifteen minutes, and the oarsmen did not exert themselves.

The three Navy crews, varsity, junior varsity and plebe, tried the lake for the first time this afternoon. Coach Glendon and Ensigns Frawley and Sanborn, assistants, took the crews up to the dam and raced them over the course. Coach Glendon said that he was well pleased with his men.

Four Tiger crews were sent out this afternoon. The second 150-pound crew took the lake first and rowed over the course. The first 150-pound crew followed and displayed very good form. Dr. Spaeth then took the yearlings and varsity over the course and gave them final instructions. The lake is in fine shape and the weather conditions appear ideal for the race. Crowds have been pouring into town today to witness tomorrow's principal athletic event.

DUNDEE CONSIDERS CONTRACT FOR BOUT

May Allow Kilbane to Meet Criqui if Both Post Forfeits for Match With Him.

The final obstacle to the proposed battle between Johnny Kilbane, Cleveland veteran, whose world's featherweight title was declared vacated last year by the State Athletic Commission, and Eugene Criqui, French title-holder, will be removed next week if both Kilbane and Criqui post forfeits of $10,000 each and sign contracts to box Dundee subsequent to the Polo Grounds contest which is scheduled for June 2.

Dundee yesterday visited the offices of the State Athletic Commission and discussed a suitable method of satisfying his desire to box for the world's featherweight title without interfering with the scheduled Polo Grounds contest. The Italian veteran requested time to consider the proposition. It was announced that a decision in the matter will be made known early next week.

Under the contemplated arrangement Kilbane will post $10,000 and agree to box Dundee within sixty days after his battle with Criqui, if the Cleveland veteran is successful. Criqui has been requested to post $10,000 and sign a contract agreeing to box Dundee within ninety days after his battle with Kilbane, providing the French boxer defeats the Clevelander. In each case $2,500 of the forfeits posted will act as a weight guarantee for the boxer who emerges triumphant from the bout scheduled for June 2. The date for the bout in which Dundee will be a participant is left to the convenience of the principals.

TIGER GOLFERS VICTORS.

Defeat Columbia, 6-0, and Harvard, 4-2—Knepper Stars.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., May 4.—Princeton's golf team, regarded by many as in line for the intercollegiate title, scored a double victory on the links of the Greenwich Country Club here today. In the morning the Tigers, led by Captain Rudy Knepper, smothered the Columbia linksmen, 6 points to 0, scoring clean sweeps in the singles and doubles, and in the afternoon the men from Nassau defeated Harvard, 4 points to 2.

M'GRAW TO LEAD TEAM TO AUSTRALIA

Plans Disclosed for Tour of Antipodes With Big Leaguers This Year or Next.

KORTLANG PROMOTING TRIP

Australian Friend of Giants' Manager Thinks Baseball Is Replacing Cricket Abroad.

Unless his present plans are completely reversed, John J. McGraw, manager of the Giants, will lead a party of major league players to Australia and New Zealand next Winter or during the Winter of 1924 at the latest. This was revealed yesterday by B. J. Kortlang of Sydney, who will sail today for London and Paris on a tour of the world. Mr. Kortlang witnessed one of the Giants' games at the Polo Grounds this week and conferred with McGraw on the proposed tour. McGraw expressed enthusiasm over the project and stated that he is anxious to make the trip next Winter if possible. It is probable that the team will also play in Japan, Hawaii and the Philippines.

Mr. Kortlang is a close friend of McGraw and took a leading part in welcoming the leader of the Giants to Australia when the local National League club and the Chicago White Sox visited the Antipodes during the Winter of 1913-14. He is President of the Baseball League of Australia, which consists of eight clubs and was organized this year.

Interest in baseball is growing by leaps and bounds in Australia, according to Mr. Kortlang, and the purpose of the proposed tour is to foster this interest in America's national game and to teach the fine points of the sport to the native players. McGraw plans to take about twenty or thirty players on the trip. They will be selected from various major league clubs. The leader of the Giants has already spoken to several of his own players concerning the tour.

Upon their arrival in Australia the players will be distributed among various native teams, and these teams will meet in a series of games. The purpose of this plan is to give the native players a thorough knowledge of inside baseball and to raise the quality of the game to a higher plane by giving the Australians as much help as possible in the development of baseball. Unless present plans are changed, the major leaguers themselves will at no time play as a team, but will perform with the various native aggregations.

Plans for the trip are only in the embryonic state at present, and none of the details has yet been worked out. However, McGraw has asked Mr. Kortlang to draw up an itinerary upon his return to Australia, and to make the necessary arrangements for the trip. McGraw intends to handle the details in this country, such as signing the players and arranging for the party's departure. It will be necessary, of course, to obtain permission for the trip from Commissioner Landis, but no difficulty is anticipated in that regard. The baseball ruler heartily endorsed the trip of a party of major league players to the Orient last Winter, and it is almost certain that he will gladly sanction the proposed trip to Australia.

To Sail in October or November.

If present plans are carried out, McGraw and his party will visit a number of cities in Australia, and the party will then visit New Zealand before returning to the United States. The party will probably start its trip shortly after the world's series. That means that the tourists will sail from the Pacific Coast late in October or early in November, probably going first to Japan, Hawaii and the Philippines. They will return several weeks before the start of the Spring training campaign.

If McGraw is unable to make the trip next Winter, it is certain that he will take the party of major league stars to Australia during the Winter of 1924. As far as the trip this year is concerned, much depends upon the proposed visit of an English cricket team to the Antipodes. In the event that the English team makes the trip during the coming Winter, McGraw will probably defer his tour until the following year, as he and Mr. Kortlang are anxious that nothing be permitted to interfere with the success of the Americans' visit. According to Mr. Kortlang, McGraw will be back of the project financially.

Baseball has taken a tremendous hold upon Australia, Mr. Kortlang declared. The game was first introduced in the Antipodes as preliminary contests to the cricket matches. The interest in the American game soon developed to such an extent that the baseball teams were later able to obtain their own fields and to draw large crowds. Within the last year as many as 25,000 have turned out for a single game. The City of Sydney has a cricket stadium with a seating capacity of 80,000 persons and room for 20,000 standees. In the event that the major leaguers play there, it is not unlikely, according to Mr. Kortlang, that the record baseball attendance of 74,200, recently established at the dedication of the new Yankee Stadium, will be surpassed.

Baseball is fast supplanting cricket as Australia's national game, Mr. Kortlang stated. The small boys of today are practicing baseball instead of cricket. Mr. Kortlang added that the game has developed to such a degree that it is now only a question of time before Australia will be in a position to send a team here for a tour of the United States.

ATHLETICS DEFEAT YANKS IN 10TH, 8-6

RUTH IN ACROBATIC PLAY

Falls Into Box, Cuts Arm, but Throws Out Galloway, Who Is Hurt Sliding Into Plate.

The Yankees returned home yesterday for a grapple with Connie Mack's once pallid Athletics and played ducks and drakes with a ball game that went into ten innings before the Philadelphia delegation won, 8 to 6. The game had no right to go past the legal limit and the Yanks had no license to lose it—all of which made it a very depressing afternoon for the 20,000 faithful fans who turned out to welcome Miller Huggins's warriors to the home lot.

The trouble with the Yanks was that they disregarded the ancient axiom about counting chickens until they are hatched. Going into the eighth with a nice, imposing three-run lead, Waite Hoyt, the perennial schoolboy from Flatbush, allowed prosperity to go to his head. With the first two batters safely retired Waite let his mind wander to the elysian fields of Flatbush, and before he knew it the Athletics had scored two runs, were only one tally away from a tie and Carl Mays had succeeded him in the box.

Even then Mays might have got away with the game in the ninth. But McGowan, the first batter, poked a ground hit to right which rolled up the embankment in front of the bleachers and then hopped over the foolish-looking low fence for a horror. It was no more of a homer than a pop fly to the outfield, but as long as the stadium architects, engineers and custodians insist on keeping that low barricade in front of the short pocket in right field anything that goes over the first baseman's head is likely to become a four-base drive.

At any rate, McGowan circled the bases and carried with him the tying run. When Ogden and Matthews followed with singles Mays was yanked, and Sam Jones rushed in to see what could be done about it. For the time being Sam was just what the doctor had ordered, for he tossed Perkins out at first, retiring the side and making an extra inning necessary.

McGowan Breaks Up Game.

Schang started the Yankee ninth with a safe bunt and Ward sacrificed him to second, but Scott and Jones were impotent with the wagon tongue. Then the Athletics stepped out and won the game. Hauser singled to right, with one out. Jones clipped Bing Miller in the arm with a pitched ball, and the two runners moved up on Galloway's infield out. McGowan the home-run king of the preceding inning, stood between Jones and defeat, and he shot a line single over Scott's head which spelt ruin. Hauser and Miller flowed over the plate, and the fans got up and went home.

Babe Ruth had his troubles in right field. In the sixth he performed one of the neatest bits of acrobatic work ever seen on a ball field. With two out and none on, Galloway hit a fly near the edge of the stand and Ruth sprinted over after the ball. But his momentum was so great that the Babe didn't stop when he hit the railing in front of the boxes. He kept right on going, and turned a complete somersault that would have won applause in any vaudeville show. The last seen of the home-run king was a pair of royal legs high in the air and descending rapidly into the box. Meanwhile the ball rolled on and on, and Galloway scurried desperately around the bases. After a few seconds Ruth emerged from his hiding place, chased the ball, caught it and then uncorked a beautiful throw that cut the runner down at the plate. Sliding past Schang, Galloway hurt his arm, and the casualty list was enlarged when Ruth ran into the bench with his left arm stiff at his side and blotches of blood on his left hand.

Both players revived under treatment and kept in the game. Ruth got a tremendous hand on his next trip to the plate, and he deserved it, for the Babe's play was one of the grittiest and most spectacular he has ever made in a New York uniform.

Athletics First to Score.

Hoyt's troubles began in the first inning when Matthews singled and Hauser walked. With two out Miller singled to right, scoring Hale, who had forced Matthews. Schang let Ruth's throw filter through him, and when Hoyt retrieved the ball and tossed it to the plate to stop Hauser Wally dropped the ball again.

In their half the Yanks filled the bases but couldn't score. They also got three aboard with none out in the third, but this time Pipp slashed a double to left, scoring Witt and Dugan. Ruth came over on Meusel's sacrifice fly, and the fourth run resulted from singles by Scott and Ward.

The two-run advantage was pared in half when Hauser lifted a homer into the right field bleachers to start the fourth, but the Yanks scored twice more in the seventh. Walter Kinney, the southpaw, who had succeeded Bryan Harris when the latter was banished in the fourth, walked Pipp, Meusel, Schang and Ward with two out, forcing Pipp over the plate. Kinney was then hastily withdrawn and Ogden, racing to the rescue, also passed Scott, admitting Meusel to the plate. Then Ogden calmed down and stopped Hoyt on a pop fly.

There were two out when the Athletics began packing their big punch in the eighth. Hale shot a triple to right, Hauser singled to centre and took an extra base on Witt's fumble. Miller scored Hauser with a double to right, which Ruth fumbled long enough for the batter to get to third. At this point Mays was introduced, and he fanned Galloway for the third out. In the next inning Carl exploded with a hollow thud, and the Yanks were soon scattered over the landscape.

KEN WILLIAMS HITS HIS 6TH HOME RUN

Speaker Knocks One and Durst Makes Two as Browns Beat Indians, 9-5.

CLEVELAND, May 4.—Four home runs featured today's game between St. Louis and the Cleveland Indians which the Browns won, 9 to 5. Ken Williams made his sixth circuit drive of the season, scoring Foster and Jacobson in the seventh inning. Durst, who followed, also put the ball over the right field wall, duplicating his feat of the previous inning.

In the first inning Speaker hit the first homer of the season on the local grounds, sending Wamby home ahead of him. Durst broke into the game when McManus was banished in the fourth inning for arguing with Umpire Hildebrand when the latter called him out at the plate.

DOUBLE BY YOUNG WINS FOR GIANTS

NEHF IS DRIVEN TO COVER

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, May 4.—A two-base hit by Ross Young that sent Frank Frisch over the plate broke up a game between the Giants and the Phillies in the thirteenth inning today, the Giants winning by a score of 11 to 9. Young followed Frisch over the plate a few minutes later on a wild pitch by Wilbur Hubbell, but as the Phillies could not score off Jack Scott in their half of the inning this second run was superfluous, and Young's hit was the deciding factor in the winning of the game.

Art Nehf and Lee Meadows, the opposing pitchers at the outset of the fray, met with a horrible fate, Nehf being batted out of the box in the second inning when the Phillies bunched seven hits, including homers by Meadows and Cy Williams, for seven runs, and Meadows following the Giants's left-hander into retirement in the third inning. Claude Jonnard, who replaced Nehf, was pulled out for a pinch hitter in the seventh, and Scott was called in to finish the game. Following Meadows for the Phillies were Pete Behan, Hubbell and Phil Weinert.

Cy Williams was the leading cloutor of the day, gathering a home run, two doubles and a single.

No time was lost by the Giants in piling up three runs in the opening inning, an error by Sand figuring prominently in their scoring. Bancroft led off by drawing a pass, and Groh, saying a sacrifice, bunted to Meadows. The pitcher wheeled and threw to second for a force play on Bancroft, but Sand was slow in covering the bag and muffed the ball. Frisch dropped a single in short left field and the bases were filled.

Stengel's Hit Scores Three.

Stengel then came through with a timely blow. He slammed the ball to the fence in left centre for two bases, scoring Bancroft, Groh and Frisch. Young moved Stengel along to third base with a sacrifice, but Meadows tightened up, fanning Kelly and tossing out O'Connell.

Two were out in the second inning when the Giants dented Meadows's offerings for another run. Again Bancroft walked and this time he scored all the way from first base when Groh drove a long double to left.

Then in the Phillies' half of the second came the deluge of hits which swept Nehf from the mound. To start the inning Frisch went into Young's territory for a high fly from Lee's bat. The ball, which would have been caught by Young, got away from Frisch and went for a scratch three-base hit. Sand walked and Parkinson singled to right, scoring Lee and sending Sand to third. Sand was run down between third base and the plate when Henline hit to Groh, but Meadows lifted the ball over the right field, scoring Parkinson and Henline ahead of him. Rapp hit the ball in right centre for two bases and dashed to third when Holke beat out a bunt. Williams then crashed the ball over the wall in right centre for the circuit, scoring Rapp and Holke ahead of him and bringing the total of Philadelphia runs for the inning up to seven. This blow marked the passing of the Giants' star southpaw. Jonnard came in and retired the side, though Walker first nicked him for a single to right. Walker tried to steal second and was thrown out, after which Jonnard tossed out Lee, up for the second time in the inning.

Undismayed, the Giants returned to the attack in the third inning and forced Meadows to seek the shelter of the club house. Stengel started by drawing a base on balls and Young followed with a single to right centre on which Stengel stopped at second. Kelly fanned again but O'Connell doubled to left centre, scoring Stengel and Young. Snyder singled to right centre, scoring O'Connell and putting the Giants on an even basis with the enemy. Behan, who replaced Meadows, fanned Jonnard and walked Bancroft. Groh then raised a short fly to Williams.

Phils Again Take Lead.

The Phillies took the lead again in the fourth inning. Behan doubled to left centre and Rapp beat out a hit that was too hot for Groh to handle, Behan being compelled to remain at second base. Holke tried to sacrifice but forced Behan at third. Williams pulled the ball into left field for two bases, scoring Rapp and sending Holke to third. Walker fouled to Snyder and Lee ended the round with a fly to O'Connell.

Behan's wildness and a single by Earl Smith, a pinch hitter for Jonnard, netted the Giants a pair of runs in the seventh inning and put them in the lead again. Young drew a pass and Kelly was nicked by a pitched ball. After O'Connell had filled to Williams, the bases were filled when Snyder was purposely passed. Smith then rapped a single to right, scoring Young. Kelly was forced at the plate when Bancroft hit to Behan, but Groh strolled and Snyder ambled home. Further damage was prevented when Rapp went to the edge of the field boxes close to the Phillies' bench and caught Frisch's high foul.

Bancroft bounced the ball off the top of the scoreboard on the fence in right centre for three bases after two were out in the ninth inning but Groh popped to Parkinson.

Walker beat out a hit to Frisch to start the Phillies' half of the ninth and raced to third when Dennehy dropped a double in short left. Sand struck out, but Wrightstone, tossed into the game as a pinch hitter for Parkinson, lifted a sacrifice fly to O'Connell, on which Walker scored with the tying run.

Bands Play and Crowds Wait; Opposing Nines Fail to Appear

TRENTON, N. J., May 4.—A mixup in the schedule resulted in no game between the Trenton (N. J.) and Pottsville (Pa.) teams of the newly organized Atlantic League today. The Pottsville management thought Trenton was to open the season in Pottsville today, while Trenton expected to play Pottsville here. On each ground the sun was shining brightly, the band was playing and the crowd was there to root, but the visiting players did not appear. Trenton being the home team under the rearranged schedule, the game was awarded to it by 9 to 0 by Umpire Davis.

BRAVES VANQUISH ROBINS IN 13TH, 1-0

McInnis Drives In Lone Run, Enabling Marquard to Best Ruether and Smith.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, May 4.—A single by Stuffy McInnis with two out in the thirteenth inning scored Southworth from second base and enabled the Boston Braves to defeat the Brooklyn Robins by a score of 1 to 0 in the opening game of the series here this afternoon. Rube Marquard went the route for the Braves, allowing only six hits. His work in the pinches was excellent. Marquard received splendid support, McInnis, Kopf and Conlon contributing thrilling plays.

Dutch Ruether started for the Robins and twirled shutout ball until the eleventh. When Southworth opened the eleventh with a single, George Smith was called in to take the place of Ruether. Smith went well until the thirteenth and for a time in that frame it appeared as though he would come through without suffering any damage.

Here are the details of the deciding thirteenth: Marquard opened with a single and Southworth was walked purposely. With the count two and three on Boeckel, Henry was sent to second to run for Marquard. Henry, however, was caught napping off second on a throw from Smith to Johnston. Boeckel was walked and on the first ball pitched McInnis sent a single to left and Southworth beat the throw to the plate.

Rallies Checked in Ninth.

Both Marquard and Ruether twirled excellent ball in the pinches but it was the ninth frame in which each southpaw gave an exhibition of air-tight work. Ruether opened the ninth for the Robins with a fly to Southworth which the Braves' outfielder muffed. Olson tried to sacrifice, missed, and Ruether was caught off first. O'Neil to McInnis. Olson followed with a single. Johnston was safe on Boeckel's fumble. DeBerry batted for Tom Griffith and walked, filling the bases. Marquard then fanned Nels and Bailey forced DeBerry at second for the third out.

Boeckel opened the Braves' half of the ninth with a single, McInnis beat out a bunt down the first base line. Boeckel tried to reach third on the bunt, but was trapped between the bases and was retired on Taylor's throw to Johnston. Felix forced McInnis at second. Conlon then forced Felix for the out which ended the inning.

With two out in the eleventh Johnston singled over second, and Manager Robbie sent Leon Cadore up to hit for Wheat, who has a lame shoulder and is unable to swing at a ball. Cadore ended the inning by forcing Johnston. The slight of Cadore as pitcher pinch-hitting for the Robins' slugging captain was something of a treat. It was Cadore's first appearance in a game this season.

Smith Relieves Ruether.

Billy Southworth opened the eleventh with a single to centre, and the blow caused Ruether's departure. The left-hander turned the pitching burden over to Columbia George Smith. The relief hurler got rid of Boeckel and McInnis and then Southworth stole second. Bagwell batted for Felix and struck out.

SIEBERT CAPTURES PRELIMINARY SHOOT

CHAMPIONSHIP EVENT TODAY

Travers Island to Be Scene of Eighteenth Annual Trap-shooting Contest.

F. A. Siebert, one of the best gunners in the New York Athletic Club, won the preliminary shoot to the eighteenth annual championship of America at clay targets over the traps of the New York Athletic Club, yesterday. The popular Winged Foot marksman led a field of 98 gunners with a card of 196 targets. His individual strings were 24, 24, 23 and 24 for the first round. In the second string Siebert broke 25, 25, 23 and 24 targets.

The day was excellent for shooting, and as a result a majority of the large field returned splendid scores. The second high price went to G. S. McCarty of Philadelphia, who has won the national championship for the last two years, besides taking the title in 1908 and 1909. He finished with a card of 193 targets yesterday.

There was a tie for third prize among A. L. Burns, H. J. Yoder and H. Bonser. All had 192 targets the first time on the firing line. On the shoot-off Burns took second prize with a perfect score, Yoder was second. The third gunner did not take part in the shoot-off and was awarded fifth prize.

In Class B the winners were H. E. Partridge, who led with 191 targets, Dr. Toleman was second, followed by H. C. Barstow. The Class C winner was C. J. Burghard, who finished with a score of 187,

JOCKEY BADLY HURT IN JAMAICA SPILL

Nolan Suffers Concussion of Brain—Taplin, Blamed for Accident, Is Suspended.

ANOTHER RIDER SET DOWN

Accardy Charged With Misbehavior at Post—Aviack Wins Manhattan Handicap.

Two jockeys were set down and one was injured during the third day of the meeting of the Metropolitan Jockey Club at the Jamaica track yesterday afternoon. One of the suspensions was the result of an accident in the second race which sent Jockey Nolan to St. Mary's Hospital in Jamaica suffering from a concussion of the brain. On Jockey E. Taplin, who had the mount on Monday Morning, the Greentree Stable's colt, was placed the responsibility for the accident, and he was suspended by the Stewards of the meeting for six racing days. The other suspension was meted out to Jockey A. Accardy, a penalty of five days being inflicted by Starter Mars Cassidy for misbehavior at the post.

The accident in the second race happened like a flash after the horses in the six-furlong event, The Breeze, had gone less than three furlongs. Good Time, on which Nolan had the mount, Whirlwind and Monday Morning were racing as a team in that order from the rail. Taplin apparently pulled Monday Morning over, forcing the other two to pull up. Good Time crossing his legs and going down. Whether Nolan hit a post or was kicked was not known, but he was unconscious when picked up. He was rushed to St. Mary's Hospital.

Jockey Thomas Nolan is 28 years old and was born in Hartford. He has been riding since he was 16 years old and has been in the employ of Commander J. K. L. Ross, Samuel D. Riddle, the Beverwyck Stable and other leading establishments.

At a late hour last night Nolan's condition was reported to be very serious. He has a wound on the right side of the face below the eye, which is the only outward sign of the severe concussion of the brain from which he is suffering. At that hour Nolan had only partly regained consciousness.

Aviack in Front.

A rather ordinary afternoon of racing had for its featured number the Manhattan Handicap, a claiming event at six furlongs, in which six went to the post. This was won by N. Loscalzo's chestnut filly Aviack, by Jack Atkin—Avia, and the manner in which she begsome fast sprinting platers would indicate that the miss possesses a lot of class. The filly was not greatly pressed, although she was ridden out to win by a length and a half from Saddle and Boots, which was a length in front of Mawcoron. Aviack was at 5 to 1 in the betting, while the next two were at 12 to 1. Modo, the heavily backed favorite, was fourth. Aviack gave nine pounds to Saddle and Boots.

The Breeze, after the accident had given Monday Morning an opportunity to go on, resulted in a stretch battle among Monday Morning, Romping Home and Story Teller. Monday Morning, unable to hold the pace, succumbed first to Romping Home and then to Story Teller, which came fast on the outside to beat Romping Home in the final strides. The disqualification of Monday Morning gave Whirlwind the short end of the purse.

The opening dash of five furlongs for two-year-old maiden fillies went to the Keystone Stable's Lady Audrey, which came fast on the outside in the last furlong to wear down James Butler's Hard Bargain and G. D. Widener's Spontaneous, the latter tiring from the early pace-making. Spontaneous was the well-played favorite, closing at 9 to 10.

Manna made all the pace in the third race at a mile and a sixteenth, after the field had been held three minutes at the post as the result of the misbehavior of the gelding and his jockey, Accardy, until the homestretch was reached, where J. H. Tevis's Scourgeman came up on the outside with a burst of speed to nip Manna by a head at the wire, Copyright, which had been next to the pace all the way, finishing a length back. Copyright was the 8 to 5 favorite, Scourgeman closing at 18 to 5.

Babbling Wins Fifth.

J. S. Cosden's Sea King filly Babbling took the five-furlong claiming event for two-year-olds, fifth on the card, handily beating Goldmark by three lengths, the latter getting the place money by a neck from Lady Choco. Babbling was the favorite, being backed down from 8 to 5 to 11 to 10.

KEARNS TO PLEDGE BOND FOR MATCH

Will Sign for Dempsey's Bout on July 4 Today if He Protects Guarantee.

CHICAGO, May 4 (Associated Press).—Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, will receive $300,000 for risking his title against Tom Gibbons, the St. Paul challenger, in a fifteen-round contest to a decision at Shelby, Mont., on July 4, while Gibbons will gamble with the promoters for his share of the receipts.

This was revealed tonight when all obstacles for the match were overcome to the satisfaction of Jack Kearns, manager of the champion. Kearns will receive $100,000 in cash tomorrow as a first instalment of the $300,000 guarantee, and he will attach his signature to the articles closing the match.

The only angle preventing the signing of articles today was the releasing of the first instalment of money deposited in a Chicago bank by the Montana promoters. Loy Molumby, representing the promoters, was in long distance telephone conversation with bankers in Great Falls, Mont., who agreed to release the money tomorrow, provided Kearns arranged for a $100,000 bond guaranteeing Dempsey's appearance on July 4. Kearns was negotiating for this bond tonight and hoped to have it ready tomorrow, so the articles could be signed.

YALE WINS FIRST COLLEGE POLO GAME

BALDWIN IN FINE FORM

No. 1 of Yale Four Accounts for 12 Goals and Shows Brilliant All-Around Ability.

TODAY'S POLO PROGRAM.

West Point vs. Virginia Military Institute.

Play to start at 4 o'clock.

Special steamer Sea Gate will leave Battery for Fort Hamilton at 3:15 o'clock.

The Yale polo four, excellently mounted, outclassed the Cornell team in stickwork and general ability in the opening game of the intercollegiate polo tournament for the Major Gen. Robert Lee Bullard trophy at Fort Hamilton yesterday, winning the contest by a score of 23 to 3. Although several of the eight institutions which have entered teams in the tournament have had polo quartets before, this is the first time that they have met in an intercollegiate outdoor series.

More than 2,500 spectators were in the boxes and grandstand at the parade grounds of the Government reservation when Major Gen. Bullard presented the polo ball, which in a few moments was to be tossed into play, to the referee, Captain John T. Neu. President and Mrs. Farrand of Cornell were among the guests in General Bullard's box. A large number of officers and men, including 100 disabled veterans, who were guests of a dozen of the box holders, added to the color of the crowd. The Fort Hancock band, placed at the west end of the parade ground, played during the game. After the fifth period retreat was sounded at the fort, and the audience stood at attention while the colors were lowered in the distance and the band played.

The Yale players showed excellent ability in driving, and they missed and over-rode much less frequently than did the Red and White horsemen. The drives and general brilliant playing of Baldwin stood out conspicuously, although his teammates did their share in passing the ball to him and working it into position. On several occasions, however, Baldwin, carried the ball, unaided, through the entire Cornell team and tallied as a result. The Yale defense proved itself to be efficient, too, when occasion arose. The Eli players managed their fast ponies in expert style, and beat the Ithaca riders in turning and manoeuvring. Faster on the get-away and quicker to stop, the Eli riders used these seconds to good advantage as it gave them time to judge their shots accurately and shoot more surely than could Cornell.

Attractive Scene as Play Starts.

The Yale players, clad in blue jackets and wearing blue polo helmets, and the Cornell horsemen, in their red coats and white hats, made an attractive picture as they rode down the field, eight abreast behind the referee. They drew up before General Bullard's box at the centre of the field, the ball was presented, and the opening play of the tournament began.

Henry P. Baldwin, playing No. 1 for Yale, scored twelve of the twenty goals secured by the Elis. Benefited by the well-timed team work on the part of his back and Nos. 2 and 3 men, he made a succession of brilliant drives which resulted in tallies. Roland L. Dean, who, although a veteran at the game, played at No. 2 and S. C. Hopkins Jr., captain of the Blue four, was at No. 3. William K. Muir was at back. The last-named player showed unusual skill in warding off the Cornell offense and broke up a number of passes and combinations.

For Cornell, H. Headden played at No. 1, with R. H. White at No. 2, Caesar Grasselli, captain of the four, at No. 3 and T. L. Turner at back. Headden scored the first Cornell goal, at the beginning of the third period, and White made the other two tallies—one in the fourth period and the other in the fifth. The Red and White quartet was forced to resort to a defensive style of play in view of the prowess of the Yale forwards. Even when the Cornell team did break away, however, its members found difficulty in getting off the long, clean drives which characterized the Yale play. This fault was due in part to the fact that Cornell's four has had but limited practice so far this season because of the late Spring and the lack of an adequate indoor rink in which to practice during the Winter.

But Two Fouls Mar Play.

The only two fouls of the game were committed during the first five minutes of play. When Dean crossed the forelegs of the pony ridden by Captain Grasselli, the first foul was called, but the Cornell leader missed his free try at the goal. A few moments later White of the Ithaca team committed the same error, but Baldwin made his goal post and veered off. Captain Hopkins made the first goal thirty seconds later, when he scored with a forehander from the left of the goal posts at the west end of the field. The play at this time was fast, both of the teams charging up and down the field on their fresh mounts. Taking the ball from a scrimmage, twenty yards in front of the goal markers, Baldwin scored the second tally for Yale. Fifteen seconds later he drove the ball from nearly midfield to within fifteen yards of the goal by a stiff fore-hand stroke and then followed the drive up himself, scoring with another forehand shot. Muir hooked the ball out of a melee and passed it to Dean, who shot the last tally of the period for the Yale team.

Cornell, exercising better team-play, tightened its defense in the second period, holding the Yale team to two goals, both by Baldwin, one scored early in the period and the other thirty seconds before the whistle. After a couple of minutes of hard play the Yale No. 1 tallied his first goal with a backhander. The play then was centered largely around the east goal which Cornell was defending. Captain Grasselli stole the ball which was less than a yard away from the uprights on one occasion, and Turner thwarted another drive which seemed certain to travel between the posts. Baldwin, however, working the ball from a scrimmage at the left of the east goal, scored his second tally on an easy forehander.

The third period had been under way at least a minute before Captain Hopkins appeared on the field. He dashed down to the play near the westerly end of the parade, but he had not been there more than a quarter of a minute when Headden, Cornell's No. 1, took the ball away from Dean and sent it toward the goal. He was down first on his own ball and scored on a forehand shot which went squarely between the posts. Dean then tallied for Yale on a backhander made from a scrimmage in front of the goal. After Grasselli had taken the ball nearly to the boards at the left of the goal, Baldwin came through and scored from this difficult angle, and repeated with another counter shortly after. The score at the end of the third period was Yale 9, Cornell 1.

Baldwin Continues to Score.

Baldwin opened the fourth period with a long forehand shot that drew a round of applause. From the right of the markers, a few moments later, he scored on another of his powerful forehand swings. Not to be outdone on carrying a long ball, White, the Cornell No. 2, scored with a drive of fully sixty yards from the right of the goal. After his attempted tally had bounded off one of the goal posts, Muir rode up on his own drive and sent the ball through for the twelfth Yale score. Baldwin, by dint of hard riding and clever stickwork, made the last goal of the period.

The redoubtable Baldwin, by this time the individual star of the game, tallied in a quarter of a minute at the start of the fifth period. Here the Cornell defense failed to stem the tide of Yale goals, and Ithaca forwards carried the ball into Yale territory, and White scored on a hard-hit forehander. The next Yale counter was registered when Hopkins drove from the near side of his pony from a point in front of the goal. Muir accounted for the last Yale point this period.

Richard Hartshorne replaced Turner at back for Yale and Sanford Hewitt replaced Dean at No. 2 at the beginning of the sixth period. The new forward accounted for two goals, the remainder of the points in the last period being made by Baldwin, who scored the first goal entirely by himself, carrying the ball the length of the field with three drives, the last one sending the sphere through. Hewitt's pony aided him in scoring his first goal, but his second was the result of a clean shot from thirty yards away from the line. Baldwin accounted for his next goal on a shot following a safety, and his last was the result of a hard drive from an angle.

Crowds Pour Into Princeton For Four Athletic Events

PRINCETON, N. J., May 4.—Not since the Yale football game last November has Princeton seen such crowds as are arriving for the four important athletic events scheduled for tomorrow afternoon. The four athletic events are the triangular regatta to be rowed on Lake Carnegie against the Navy and Harvard, the Amherst baseball game, the Yale track meet and the tennis match against Columbia. The midshipmen from Annapolis who have come with the crew are in evidence, and their smart uniforms give the historic Princeton campus a holiday air. Fully 10,000 persons are already here, with more arriving by every train.

SOCIETY TURNS OUT FOR POLO TOURNEY

There was an interesting social side to the first game of the intercollegiate polo tournament between Yale and Cornell yesterday afternoon at Fort Hamilton. The graduates of the city formed a large portion of the attendance, as did also the khaki-clad members of the United States Army, under whose auspices this tourney is being held.

Ideal weather conditions brought out a brilliant showing of Spring fashions, and the vivid green of nature proved to be a splendid background for all the variegated colors of feminine finery. It was not a social pageant of clothes, however, for everybody in boxes was there for the excitement of the game, and there was a snap and go to the tournament, with the crashing of the military band now and then, that kept everybody's interest on the field and the college teams.

Major Gen. Robert Lee Bullard, who opened the tourney by tossing the ball, much in the same manner as the baseball season is inaugurated, entertained a large box party. His box was in the centre of the long line of boxes on the west side of the field.

His guests included Mr. and Mrs. R. Horace Gallatin, Mr. and Mrs. Newbold Morris, President Livingston Farrand and his family from Cornell University, Colonel William M. Dykman, Captain and Mrs. Simonton, Mrs. Butler and Mrs. Smith.

The policing of the inside of the field was looked after by the Army, and traffic regulations were very systematic, the motors extending almost around the entire field in a single line. The box-holders stepped from their cars at the main entrance, where First Lieut. E. T. Wheatley of the Eighteenth Infantry was in charge of the traffic and ushers.

The event brought an outpouring of army officers and their wives, and the navy was also well represented socially.

Brig. Gen. William Weigel attended. Captain J. T. Neu was the polo representative of the army post, and Captain T. E. McMahon of the Sixty-fifth Infantry, the football coach at West Point, was in charge of the selling of tickets. Others from the army were Captain Methven and Mrs. Methven, First Lieutenant William F. Johnson and Mrs. Johnson, Captain John Cotton and Mrs. Cotton, First Lieutenant Richard Welsh and Mrs. Welsh, Captain and Mrs. MacGregor, Lieutenant Henry D. Fanslar, Major Rutherford and Mrs. Rutherford, Captain Merkle of the Signal Corps and Mrs. Merkle, First Lieutenant Cassard, Major A. G. Rudd from Governors Island, Captain C. W. Tuill, General Bullard's aid, and Captain A. B. Heisley, D. S. C.

Many of the subscribers for the boxes were present, but the majority of them will attend during the later games. Among the subscribers are H. C. Folger, Joseph P. Grace, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. FENCING TITLES GO TO NEW CHAMPIONS

SABRE EVENT IS CLOSE

Schoonmaker Victor Over Dimond in Final Bout—Percy Supreme With Foils.

Leon M. Schoonmaker of the Fencers Club, René Percy of the Fencers' Club and Lieutenant George Calnan of the United States Navy, now studying at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, are the new national fencing champions with sabres, foils and épée respectively. They were established last night in the final round of the championships staged in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Astor. Percy succeeds to the title of Major Harold F. Raynor of the Washington Officers' Club, who won the foils championship in 1922, but did not defend this year, being stationed abroad at the French Cavalry School at Saumur, France. Schoonmaker and Calnan succeed to the honors of Leo Nunes of the New York A. C., who won both the épée and sabre titles last year. Nunes is now in Italy on business.

Schoonmaker won with the sabre after the stiffest competition offered in the three classes. Not until the last bout had been fenced was he established as champion. In the final he faced Warrant Officer John W. Dimond of the United States Army. Schoonmaker and Dimond both had won five bouts up to that time and lost one. The spectators were thoroughly keyed up for the match and the bout proved to be the most exciting, as well as closest of the night. When the New York fencer was declared the winner the applause testified to the popularity of the victory, and Schoonmaker was showered with congratulations. At last the New York A. C. representative, after years of competition, found his efforts crowned with success. Last year he was tied with Nunes in bouts won and lost, but lost the championship on the point system. Both Schoonmaker and Dimond were members of the 1920 Olympic fencing team.

Percy, in winning the foils championship, added a fitting crown to a season of the most unusual success. During the year the Fencers Club representative has swept through all the classes, winning the national junior foils and sabre championship, and also the senior three weapon title, in addition to last night's honors. In capturing the foils championship, Percy won every one of his bouts in the final round, his standing showing seven won and none lost. In the beginning of the finals, on Wednesday night, he had won five straight bouts, and had but two more to fence last night, with Harold Bloomer of Columbia University and Harold Van Buskirk of the Fencers Club. As he had beaten Henry C. Breckenridge, a clubmate, on Wednesday night in an extremely close bout, he had practically clinched the title, and last night's bouts were regarded as only a matter of finishing the round.

Breckenridge took second honors with six bouts won and one lost. Bloomer surprised by making an unexpectedly good showing against Breckenridge, and for a time it looked as though he would administer the second defeat of the Fencers Club representative when he led at four touches to two. Breckenridge set himself to the task at this point and made three straight touches. Burke Boyce of the Harvard Fencers Club won third honors with the foils, winning five bouts and losing two.

Lieutenant Calnan's victory with the epee was unexpected. The United States Navy fencer had experienced the utmost difficulty in qualifying for the semi-finals and managed to come through in second man in his strip only after four fence-offs. The disappointment of the class was the failure of Henrique de Aguiar Vallim, attaché of the Brazilian Legation, stationed at Philadelphia.

Medals were presented to the winners of the first, second and third places in each event and in addition, one was presented to Dr. J. B. Clemens of this city by the A. F. L. A. for the most meritorious service on behalf of fencing. Dr. Clemens offers a medal annually for the novice tournament that acts as a curtain-raiser to the intercollegiate championships.

NEW YORK, SATURDAY, MAY 5, 1923.

THE INEVITABLE RESULT.

Governor SMITH went to Albany with high purposes and hopes, but he was doubly handicapped. It was certain from the first that the Assembly would undo what the Senate did, and vice versa. It was impossible that much legislation, however meritorious, should be passed by both houses. Further, the Governor was overwhelmed by the great mass of mostly mythical "mandates" imagined to have been given to him in that bouncing, motley and overgrown majority of his. A great many people voted for "AL"; a great many for reasons that can only be guessed at. Some measures that most people never heard discussed or cared a rap for were set forth as "mandates." The curious Syracuse platform weighed the Governor down. Contrary to his courageous and independent habit, he had to show solicitude for Mr. HYLAN and his amens and scrupulous inventor.

The Governor has been a little nervous, as a number of his messages have shown. But what could be expected? People have watched with cynical amusement the case, so ably tried, of MACHOLD v. WALKER, with the Mayor occasionally appearing, not as a friend of the court, but as a friend of the people. The Governor ought to have got his whole program of constitutional reconstruction, but at present there appears to be no exceptional fervor about it among the voters. He may be able to stir that up later. If a lot of worthy bills failed, so did a lot of doubtful ones; and some laws were put through merely for local political purposes. The chieftains of both sides are now blazing at one another. The session has been a fight, preliminary to a longer or hotter one.

After all, a Legislature that can't do much of anything is no great evil. Let us wait and see what the popular response will be to all these burning political indignations on both sides. It will take time to get an informed notion of the effect of this legislative shindy upon the voters.

A FEW TRANSIT FACTS.

Failure of rapid transit legislation at Albany is accompanied by all kinds of dolorous comment. It is said that "relief" is again denied to this suffering city. Nothing can be done, it is asserted in a kind of hopeless grief, until the next Legislature meets. If by that time the Governor and the Mayor have succeeded in overturning the Republican majority in the Assembly, the city may breathe again. But if that sole remedy should fail, the picture drawn is of a great metropolis checked in its growth and condemned to intolerable conditions of rapid transit indefinitely, owing to the lack of some law or other which, it is imagined, would clear away all difficulties.

All this is fantastic misrepresentation. We already have all the law we need. Under no conceivable statute could the Mayor do more in the way of relief by regulating the service of existing companies than can be done—than, in fact, has been done—by the present Transit Commission. Moreover, that body has long had ready plans for a large extension of our rapid transit facilities with a five-cent fare guaranteed. Those plans have passed every engineering and financial test. They could be put into effect tomorrow if the city authorities would withdraw their brute opposition and allow the existing law to function for the benefit of the people and the upbuilding of the city as it was intended to do.

The sole question now before our citizens is whether they will consent to submit longer to such denial of their rights. If there is civic spirit enough, if commercial and industrial and real estate organizations, together with groups of householders anxiously awaiting new means of transit, have sufficient determination, such a pressure of public opinion can be brought to bear upon the obstinate Mayor and Board of Estimate as to lead them to reconsider their persistent refusal to co-operate with the Transit Commission. They have co-operated with it in some minor affairs. They have agreed to a few small contracts for links in the transportation system of the city. When this has been the case and a new subway line is to be begun, the Mayor has gone with a great flourish to turn the first spadeful of earth and has taken all the glory for his Administration.

The glory does not matter. Mayor HYLAN could appropriate a great deal more of it if he would simply go on with the contracts ready for approval, and the Transit Commission wouldn't care who got the réclame if only the city got the subways. But the main point for us all to keep in mind is that we don't require new legislation. All that we need is a new spirit in the authorities of the city. That is the great fact to be pressed home upon them by every means available. And if the city lies down in hopeless despair of any practical result from efforts to induce the Mayor to do his duty by the public, it will deserve what it gets.

THE CURSE OF A SCRAP OF PAPER.

Dissatisfaction with the German offer is echoed even in Germany. Instead of the united front with which we had been told all Germany would support the Cuno proposals, there are plentiful indications that many Germans consider the note to have been inexpedient. No greater condemnation than this can be expressed by a German mind. Inexpediency is the unpardonable crime. Already, therefore, there is talk of ousting CUNO and of putting in some one who will make a better job of it. There are complaints that the note did not offer enough, that it was vague, that it was neither clear nor satisfactory to France in the matter of guarantees. Others, of course, say that it offers too much. But most significant of all is the indication that both the Socialists and the industrialists believe that Germany could and should do more than was offered in the Cuno note.

It goes without saying that this lack of confidence at home, confidence in the Government, confidence in the Cuno offer, confidence in the German finances, reacts unfavorably abroad. Without restored credit Germany will never get the assistance which she demands. This is one of the absurdities about the present offer. Germany expects to raise large loans, but not a word is said about German subscriptions to them. Everything is to come from abroad. But why, when Germans did not even trust their Government enough to subscribe $50,000,000 to a loan to help Germany's cherished plans of passive resistance, should foreigners take one hundred times that sum in a loan to help the German Government do what it has steadily sought to avoid doing—pay reparations?

Germany is suffering from the curse of a scrap of paper. The blow which she struck at her credit when she invaded Belgium is being returned upon her. To retrieve her good faith is her greatest task. If, however, instead of appearing to make concessions as if she had won the war, Germany should freely and frankly confess defeat and admit that she must pay the penalty; if, instead of lamenting about what she couldn't pay, instead of attempting evasion, instead of pretending bankruptcy which is really manufactured, she should talk of what she could and would pay; if in place of passive resistance she resorted to active deliveries; if, instead of blaming the entire world except herself for her troubles, she diligently set about curing them by her own acts, then Germany would begin to restore confidence in her good-will—that confidence which alone can procure for her the outside aid which she needs.

CENTRAL PARK AS A "SITE."

Mayor HYLAN fraternized delightfully with the National Sculpture Society on Thursday afternoon. In the enthusiasm stirred in him by this artistic intercourse he broached his latest plan to give the city a great centre for art and music and related luxuries of the spirit. As will be remembered, the last Legislature passed an act empowering the city to condemn land for such a purpose. Various locations were proposed, but it has been discovered that even the cheapest of them involves the outlay of so many millions that the Mayor has reluctantly concluded that the cost would be, in the present state of municipal finances, "prohibitive." So, as usual with officials in such a plight, he turns longing eyes to a parcel of ground that could be had for nothing—namely, Central Park.

To the innocent Mayoral mind this seems the happiest of solutions. He even thinks that the city would be getting a great bargain. About thirty-seven acres are to be added to Central Park through the removal of the old reservoir. As these reclaimed acres would be under the jurisdiction of the Water Commission, it might be possible, the Mayor holds, to use them for other than park purposes. He might build a garbage incinerator there. But he generously offers to turn the land over to the Park Commissioner. In return, he merely asks for four beggarly acres, mostly rocks, at Sixth Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street, to be used as a fitting site for the proposed art centre. With a clear gain thus demonstrated of thirty-three acres for Central Park, what possible objection could there be?

The Mayor will find out if he seriously urges this project. Nothing will be attempted immediately. Not even the first step could be taken without getting authority from the Legislature. Even that might not be able to get around the judicial decision now binding that no part of Central Park can be used for other than "park purposes." As such it would be hard to define, to the satisfaction of the court, a series of great buildings thrust into the Park with the professed object of entertaining and instructing the people, but with the real object of saving money. In any case, it is best that an emphatic public opinion be registered against this latest plan to invade Central Park before it gets under way.

The people of this city have on many occasions evinced their determination to keep Central Park free from despoilers of all kinds, even if they announce the most excellent intentions. As a beauty spot, a refuge for tired men and women eager for a breath of pure air amid scenes which satisfy eye and mind alike, Central Park has become one of the most cherished possessions of New York. Let those who envy its stretches of land as an inviting site for building operations make up their minds from the very beginning that no such intrusion and perversion will ever be permitted.

COMPULSORY EDUCATION OF THE BOARD OF ESTIMATE.

Doubtless from its well-known attachment to "the people," the Board of Estimate attempted to starve the College of the City of New York and Hunter College. Justice MULLAN of the Supreme Court issued a peremptory mandamus order directing the board to revise the city budget of 1923 and make a larger appropriation to pay the salaries of the Faculty and employes of the two institutions. In their appeal, the city authorities put forward the extraordinary theory that not a cent can be legally appropriated for the support of the two colleges. A tax laid for colleges is not, it was claimed, a tax for "a city purpose." That is, only elementary education can be supported by the city. In the unanimous opinion of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court affirming the mandamus order, written by Justice PAGE, the doctrine of Judge COOLEY of Michigan, maintaining the right of the State to give "a liberal education to the youth of the State "in schools brought within the reach "of all classes," is sustained.

It is the duty of the State "to bring "a sound education within the reach "of all the inhabitants." How far that education should extend is a matter "of public policy, and addresses "itself to the Legislature and people, "not to the court." Judge COOLEY's statement, Judge PAGE says, "has "been generally accepted as a fundamental principle of taxation for "the purpose of free education." He then reviews lucidly what the Legislature and the people of New York have done to define that policy with reference to the two colleges. He recites the history of the Free Academy, authority to establish which was given to the Board of Education of the City and County of New York by the Legislature in 1847, with the direction to the Board of Supervisors to raise for its support the amount fixed by the Board of Education. Provision was made for a referendum. The people voted nearly 6 to 1 for the establishment of the Free Academy. Thus, not only the Legislature but the people authorized a school where a liberal education could be maintained at the expense of the taxpayers.

An act passed in 1851 recognized "that the Free Academy was a part "of the common school system of the "City of New York." Its incorporation in 1866 as the College of the City of New York made no essential difference in its status. It continued to be "an agency of the city, acting "through the Board of Education, to "secure to the children of the city "the benefit of a free collegiate education." The Normal College of the City of New York, called Hunter College since 1914, was similarly established to give a free liberal education to girls. Taxation for schools is universally recognized to be a "county, city, town or village purpose," within the language of the State Constitution. The action of the Legislature and people and of city officials for seventy years has shown in practice that taxation for the two free colleges is taxation for a city purpose.

The courts must uphold it in the absence of "some limitation upon the "extension of free education beyond "that provided by the common "schools." A direction in the State Constitution that "the Legislature "shall provide for the maintenance "and support of a system of free "schools, wherein all the children of "this State may be educated," is "not the limitation of authority but "the imposition of a duty." That the legislation requiring the Board of Estimate to appropriate the sum asked by the trustees of the colleges for salaries and expenses was mandatory makes it none the less valid. The two colleges can't fulfill their educational functions if they are to be subject to an interested or hostile control, withholding or cutting off the funds for their operation. Justice MULLAN effectually disposed of the gracious attempt of the board to charge against President MEZES's salary the rental value of the President's residence. The opinion of the court is a strong reaffirmation of the right of the city to furnish a liberal as well as a common school education.

PENSION BILLIONS AFTER BONUS BILLIONS.

It is Senator SMOOT's belief that only a few years will pass before Congress provides pensions for veterans of the World War. A bonus would not be accepted in their stead. It is regarded merely as an honorarium. Pensions would come after, following the Civil War precedents. Senator SMOOT is saying what is in the mind of most veterans who want a bonus now. Pensions for 4,000,000, not including dependents, who in their turn would have to be cared for, will be demanded. When President HARDING vetoed the Bonus bill on Sept. 19, 1922, he said:

> It is essential to remember that a more than four-billion-dollar pledge to the able-bodied ex-service men now will not diminish the later obligations which will have to be met when the younger veterans of today shall contribute to the rolls of the aged, indigent and dependent.

Mr. HARDING added that it would cost more billions than "I venture to suggest." Billions upon billions: billions for insurance, hospitalization and vocational training; billions for bonuses, if the next Congress can pass its bill over the President's veto; and looking down the vista of time still more and more billions for pensions so long as a veteran lives or his widow survives. Down to 1917 the United States had paid out $5,215,525,780 in pensions for the War of the Revolution, the War of 1812, Indian wars, war with Mexico, Civil War, war with Spain, regular establishment and "unclassified." Of that amount the Civil War cost the nation $4,017,245,599. How much will the nation be paying the veterans of the World War by 1970? Posterity will have to stagger on as best it can under the burden.

How is the money for bonuses to be raised if the next Congress, on the eve of a Presidential election, passes a bill and Mr. HARDING signs it, or if it is passed over his veto? Senator SMOOT favors a sales tax—so did President HARDING; but Congress rejected it. The bonus advocates suggest a bond issue, British debt payments to meet the interest. Also, they propose to restore excess profits taxes, the higher bracket surtaxes, and provide a graduated luxury tax. It may be doubted whether such legislation could be forced through Congress.

President HARDING is pledged to veto any bill that does not provide satisfactory means of paying bonuses. Opponents of the bonus have not given up the fight. Their cause is as strong as ever. It is just as true now as when Mr. HARDING said it that "a "peace bestowal on the ex-service "men, as though the supreme offering "could be paid for in cash, is a perversion of public funds, a reversal of "the policy which exalted patriotic "service in the past, and suggests that "future defense is to be inspired by "compensation rather than consciousness of duty to flag and country."

BOLSHEVISM SWALLOWS THE CHURCH.

The deposition of the Patriarch TIKHON and the inclusion of capitalism among the seven deadly sins, by the All-Russian Church Council meeting in Moscow, completes the ecclesiastical parallel to the cycle of Russian political revolution. In 1917 the moderates displaced the imperialist reactionaries in control of the Russian Church, as shortly before they had driven them from control of the Government. Now the Bolsheviki displace the moderates. It is true that the Church is disestablished, and that the leaders of Bolshevism are actively or passively anti-religious. But a group of clergy subservient to the Bolsheviki, doubtless in part from genuine sympathy with communism and in part from less disinterested motives, have got possession of the Church machinery. Until somebody else throws them out, they are the Russian Church.

No doubt this seizure of the ecclesiastical organization is going to be useful to the atheists at the head of the Government, though probably not so much so as enthusiasts hope. A church consists of something besides machinery. Beneath the deadening hand of political authority there was a living force in the old Russian Church. It received an immense impetus between the first and second revolutions, and friendly observers report that it has been strengthened by the subsequent persecutions. It is true that you cannot kill an idea, but sometimes you can attain the same end by killing all the people who hold it. Bolshevist persecution of the Church, however, has not been very severe judged by the standards of past ages, though sufficiently so to startle an age which supposed we had got past that sort of thing. It doesn't seem that a church favored by an atheist Government and embodying in its doctrine purely practical propositions of economics is likely to attract much of the religious spirit latent in the church, but it can disorganize any rival association which attempts to foster that spirit.

It would be easy to take too seriously the remarks made to the congress by the American Methodist Bishop BLAKE, who has been seeing Moscow under the guidance of a pro-Bolshevist American clergyman. The Methodists are expert at putting religion into politics, and Bishop BLAKE probably wanted to see how the Bolsheviki put politics into religion. If his phrases suggest that he regarded the meeting as a sort of combination of July 4, 1776, and the Day of Pentecost, it must be remembered that he was a distinguished foreign guest called on to say something, who couldn't be impolite, or even cold. For the present his enthusiasm must be taken with polite reservations, like that of the eminent European who tells ship news reporters that he is delighted with America as his liner comes up the bay.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

He Was Credited With More Courage.

Governor GIFFORD PINCHOT has signed the Derrick bill, passed by legislators who walk in fear of the "farmer vote," and it is now illegal for any city or town in the State of Pennsylvania to "save daylight" under the authorization or command of a municipal ordinance.

Thus is produced what is probably the most flagrant violation of the home-rule principle that American history presents—a violation that has no slightest justification of any kind, and no explanation except the curious animosity, based partly on jealousy and partly on envy, which rural populations everywhere feel for those that are urban.

As excuse for signing the bill Governor PINCHOT is quoted as saying that it expressed the popular will and he did not care to ignore it. By necessary implication, in his judgment the bill is bad. If that is so, he will have hard work in proving to himself the rightness of his course in this instance, and he will fail utterly in proving it to anybody who realizes that our elected officials have a higher duty than that of yielding to the popular will in all matters and at all times.

That is neither the accepted nor the right theory of our government, which is, indeed, that supreme and ultimate power lies in the people, but very distinctly provides that, once elected, officials are to use their own judgment.

If Governor PINCHOT thought the Derrick bill a bad one—and, being a man of sense, that must have been his opinion—he should have vetoed it, leaving the Legislature to pass it over his veto if it chose.

They Do It Just the Same!

There should be instruction for Governor PINCHOT and other officials with like views as to the popular will in the fact that, in spite of the new law forbidding the adoption of local daylight-saving ordinances, the cities of the State, or the larger ones, at any rate, have calmly gone ahead with the readjustment of their habits in due regard to the longer days of Summer and the desire of their inhabitants for the enjoyment of an extra hour of sunlight.

In both Philadelphia and Pittsburgh the people have done what they were told they would be punished for doing, and nothing will happen to them, for they have avoided breaking the letter of the law. This has been accomplished through the simple expedient of acting in accord with the ordinance which the local authorities would have adopted if the Legislature had not told them not to do it.

The method is clumsy, with some incidental inconvenience and confusion—for which the rustics are to be thanked, and will be—but daylight is saved by those who want to save it, and that is the important consideration. Also, the popular will is demonstrating its potency, for, as not infrequently happens, there was and is in Pennsylvania a division in that will. The anxious politician had to measure or weigh the two parts before he acted, and he was confronted with the embarrassing necessity to offend one or the other of two large groups of voters. Grave mistakes are possible when that is the case, and—well, the Governor's friends must be a little worried as to the effect of his signing the Derrick bill. It will be remembered in the big cities—later.

Appreciated by an Old Journalist.

Besides fuel, oil and food—and the two aviators—there was carried in the T-2 on its trip across the continent next to nothing except a few copies of THE NEW YORK TIMES, printed on the morning when the wondrous journey started. As everybody knows now, the papers were delivered in San Diego just a little more than a day later. One "reaction" to that part of the great achievement was in the form of the following telegram from a veteran journalist, received here Thursday afternoon:

> San Diego, Cal., May 3, 1923.
> To THE NEW YORK TIMES:
> At 2 o'clock, San Diego time, today I had the pleasure of reading THE NEW YORK TIMES of May 2, yesterday's issue, delivered here by airplane. I congratulate you on this extraordinary achievement in delivering THE NEW YORK TIMES in San Diego the day following its publication. As a newspaper publisher, I never expected such a thing could be possible.

Great, indeed, is the change from the days when the pony express was regarded as fast transportation across a considerable part of the route followed by Lieutenants KELLY and MACREADY!

Nation-Wide Anxiety Terminated.

It would be hard to tell which was the more thrilling of two events recorded in yesterday's papers—the triumphant arrival of the fliers at San Diego or the finding, safe and well, of little VERNER ALEXANDERSON, after he had been, since early Monday morning, in the hands of kidnappers.

The two events were too different for real comparison between them to be possible, but there is no doubt that the recovery of the boy caused joy and relief in innumerable hearts all over the country. His adventure so easily might have had a different and terrible termination!

Every villain capable of trying to make money by exploiting the most tender of parental love is also quite capable of murder if it promises advantage to him, and that often demonstrated fact is full justification for punishing such crimes with death.

Seemingly He Hates This Town.

Mayor HYLAN continues to utilize every opportunity he can find or make for accusing the city of whose reputation he claims to be chief defender of being characterized by the vicious stupidity of maintaining a "reptile press"—a press in league with criminals of various sorts and in continuous opposition to all that is good and noble.

His latest exhibition of his contempt for New York and its people was given when he addressed the assembled police chiefs on Thursday, and his auditors must have wondered why, if the Mayor knows of so much criminality going on in newspaper offices, he does not do something about it in the way of formal and definite accusation and indictment.

Until he gives names and specifies evil deeds it is the whole town that suffers from his frequent denunciations of its papers. Generally, "like press, like people," is true, and, whether New York's newspapers are good, bad or indifferent, they are of the kind its inhabitants like to read, else would they not be read and maintained.

THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Presbyterian General Assembly, which will meet in Indianapolis the middle of May, will be one of the most important meetings ever conducted by this body. The assembly represents nearly 10,000 different churches, having nearly 2,000,000 members. Many of the problems to be discussed will have to do with the interests of the city, where the Church is grappling with modern social questions as well as with modern theological problems.

The Presbyterian Church is essentially a city church, for two-thirds of its membership is in places of more than 2,500 inhabitants. But two-thirds of the churches of the denomination are in places of less than 2,500 inhabitants, and, as the basis of representation at the General Assembly is according to the number of individual churches and ministers in a particular presbytery, and not according to the membership in the churches, it can easily be seen that the minority in the country dominates the majority in the city, for the smaller and more numerous churches in the country outnumber the larger but fewer churches in the city.

It has been repeatedly demonstrated that it is the man from the country and the small town who dominates in the deliberations of this ecclesiastical organization. Therefore, whenever a theological or sociological question is the issue before the General Assembly, it is the conservative from the small town or country who wins out. And he does not represent the position of the national Presbyterian Church at all. It will be seen, therefore, that the Fosdick issue, forced upon the Church at large by the ultra-conservative Presbytery of Philadelphia, may result far more seriously than is generally imagined, and while technically the General Assembly has no jurisdiction over Dr. Fosdick, it may make it mighty uncomfortable for the First Church and for New York Presbytery.

With the increasing cleavage between the conservatives and the progressives, not only in the Presbyterian Church but in practically every other Protestant denomination, and the frequent declarations that an entirely new denomination will be formed by the conservatives, the religious bodies of this country are undoubtedly heading for a schism which, while it may not wreck the Church, undoubtedly will cause it to use up a tremendous amount of energy and spiritual force which should be expended in the betterment of mankind.

Anderson and the Supreme Court.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Since the Supreme Court decides the Volstead act cannot be enforced outside the three-mile limit, Superintendent W. H. Anderson of the Anti-Saloon League announces that the decision may result in Congress hastening the extension of the three-mile limit to eighteen or twenty-five miles. We hope that Superintendent Anderson will not try to hold his breath until that happens. Congress has no more power to extend the boundary of the "high seas" than Mr. Anderson has.

But how ungracious and almost belligerent the Anti-Saloon League head is toward the Supreme Court at this very first opinion which runs athwart the unreasonable twist the prohibitionists put on the Volstead act. Referring to the three-mile decision, Mr. Anderson says: "This decision, however, was expected because of the knowledge of the slant taken by various members of the court on some phases of the prohibition question."

Just so long as the courts sustain every plank of the dry platform the courts are righteous and must be upheld. But let any court disagree with a prohibitionist and that court ceases to be upright, and immediately has a "slant." If the "slants" are dry, well and good. If the "slants" are wet, then another amendment can easily be adopted abolishing the Supreme Court.

Da Vinci's Smiles.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In a recent magazine article the Mona Lisa smile is interpreted operatically! Much has been written of this enigmatic smile, and many who love a touch of the mysterious have found in the famous portrait of Leonardo da Vinci's a fruitful theme for play of the imagination forces. However, may I suggest that the various interpreters of the meaning of the smile go to the Louvre and examine several other portraits by da Vinci there to be found in company with that of the Mona Lisa. They will, perhaps, be disposed to revise their imaginative effusions on perceiving that practically every one of Mona Lisa's associates in the gallery wears on his or her face the same "mysterious" smile. One is led to conclude that this smile is merely an idiosyncrasy of the artist—his attempt, possibly, to achieve the object of the photographer's "look pleasant, please."

USELESS WARNING.

Love and Heartbreak once made a pact—
As you, perchance, may know—
That where one went, invariably
The other one should go.

Love first, with torch to blind the world,
Then closely in his wake,
Bearing a cruel two-edged sword,
Should follow on Heartbreak.

Thus it has been since time began,
And he who would be free
Of wounds that only Heartbreak gives
Love's face must never see.

But though this truth were writ in fire
Upon the heavens above,
The world would still go gayly forth

THE TRAFFIC PROBLEM.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The plan of Borough President Julius Miller for easing traffic congestion in Manhattan, published in your Monday issue, offers many interesting suggestions. It has evidently been thought out with much care and deserves sympathetic consideration. Any extended comment would be out of place without a thorough study of the proposals made, and even then should come from an expert engineer to be of any substantial value. I wish, however, to suggest for such consideration as it may deserve, the extension of one of his proposals which, when extended, would, I think, go some distance towards accomplishing the important and appealing object the Borough President had in mind.

The proposal to which I refer is, in the words of your article, that "at the world-renowned Fifth Avenue crossing at Forty-Second Street a double-decked street be provided for both pedestrians and vehicles." If such a plan is feasible at that point, where conditions are especially difficult because of the cross-town cars and the subway, it should be possible to adopt a similar plan at Fifty-ninth Street, at Thirty-fourth Street, and at convenient intervals in between, let us say three or four blocks apart, which would, no doubt, be sufficient because of the relative scarcity of east and west traffic. It would then call for tunnels under Fifth Avenue at places indicated and for the forbidding of traffic across Fifth Avenue throughout the stretch between Sixtieth and Thirty-third Streets, thus allowing a clean sweep of north and south traffic between those points in the region where vehicular traffic is now most constantly impeded and where delay is greatest. The tunnels suggested, carrying both vehicular and pedestrians, need not occupy more than twenty, or at most thirty, feet of the roadway on each street, leaving free, in case of eighty-foot streets, fifty to sixty feet, of between twenty-five and thirty feet from each curb to the tunnel, for other uses. A part of the plan would, of course, be that traffic could leave and join the Fifth Avenue stream at any street but could not cross that street, vehicles and pedestrians desiring to cross it being limited to the tunnels.

The chief advantage of the plan is that it attacks and excises the heart of the difficulty, the repeated stoppage of north-south and east-west traffic and vice versa; with the plan in operation each of the conflicting streams would flow on unimpeded. Moreover, the beauty of Fifth Avenue would remain unimpaired.

It may be further suggested that the same device could be used in other regions of congestion, thus freeing, maybe, in addition to Fifth Avenue, one or two more north and south avenues for unimpeded streams of traffic in their most congested regions.

I am mentioning this plan in a tentative way at the present time because of the proposal of Borough President Miller, and because it happens that a short time ago the Engineering School of City College began a study with a view of estimating the feasibility of the tunnel plan outlined above. The study has not gone far enough to justify speaking with assurance, but it has gone sufficiently far to indicate that some such plan is worth serious consideration. It may be said in passing that decidedly slightly tunnels are used in the lower ranges of the Grand Concourse in the Bronx with excellent results, as any one who has driven along that splendid thoroughfare will testify.

I need hardly say that Dean Skene and the Engineering Department of the college stand ready to co-operate with the Borough President and his force in any way that they may desire.

FOR NAVAL WAR ON LIQUOR.

Retired Bootlegger Says It Would Help American-Made Product.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I think the use of the army and the navy to stop the smuggling of imported liquor will prove a decided boon for the American amateur distillers, as it would wipe out terrific competition against the home product.

There has always been plenty of fair "Scotch" manufactured in the Carolinas, and the supply has increased a thousandfold. New York State cider, two years old, is selling at $8 a gallon, forcing cider apples up to $1.75 a barrel, and the supply is practically unlimited. By all means have the army and the navy drafted into the game.

Jefferson's Monument.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In THE NEW YORK TIMES of Sunday, April 15, in the article "Thomas Jefferson, Housekeeper," by W. G. Holland, is an error which in the interest of historical truth should be corrected. Mr. Holland says: "What was left of the original monument over the grave of Jefferson was given to the Jefferson Club of St. Louis." Mr. Holland is in error here. The old original monument made in accordance with Mr. Jefferson's direction, "a plain die, three feet square, without mouldings, surmounted by an obelisk of six feet height, each of a single stone," with the marble slab set in a niche on the front of the obelisk, and on which is inscribed the memorable epitaph prepared by Mr. Jefferson a short time before his death, stands on the West Campus of the University of Missouri.

In 1883 Congress replaced the old monument, which had marked the grave of Mr. Jefferson at Monticello for fifty years, with a new one. The Board of Curators of the University of Missouri, of which my father was President at the time, got into communication with Mary A. Randolph, Sarah A. Randolph, Carrie R. Randolph, Ellen W. Harrison, Marie Mason and Dr. W. C. N. Randolph, residing in Albemarle County, Va., all of them great-grandchildren of Thomas Jefferson, and requested them to present the old monument to the University of Missouri. This they very graciously did. The board urged that here on the beautiful campus of the university, in the very centre of the Louisiana Purchase, one of the master strokes of Jefferson's Administration in 1803, was the most fitting place for the old monument to find its resting place. And here it stands today.

Uniform Game Laws.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your editorial on "Moss Game and Fish" is sound and I know will be a help to the cause. We have advanced in conservation and protection during the past ten or fifteen years, but there is a big gap to fill. The feeling you speak of in regard to infringement of personal rights and liberty was found in the South for years, but is gradually dying out and the farmers see the light.

Educational articles will go a long way toward the support and passage of uniform game laws for the various zones. Imaginary county and State lines do not change the habits of birds. The legislators evidently think they do. But this must be overcome if the laws are to have a punch.

REDISTRIBUTE GOLD, GOODENOUGH URGES

Proposes That Americans Buy Foreign Securities, Including German Reparation Bonds.

WOULD STABILIZE PRICES

Better to Invest Abroad Than Lose by an Adverse Trade Balance, Englishman Tells Bond Club.

A redistribution of the world's gold, to be accomplished by investors of the United States purchasing foreign securities, including German reparation bonds, was the method of stabilizing the world's price levels and preventing overexpansion in this country urged on the members of the Bond Club of New York by Frederick C. Goodenough, Chairman of Barclays Bank, Ltd., England, at the monthly luncheon yesterday.

Such a policy, he pointed out, would accomplish in a short time what it would require many years for the natural laws of supply and demand to perform, with less risk to the American funds than if they were employed to a great extent in trade.

The present expansion of credit in this country, he asserted, might to some extent be due to the Fordney tariff, but it was due principally to the increase of gold. It is possible for no greater expansion to take place, which may lead to higher prices, with far-reaching effect on the real value of money and the consequent effect upon investments and time obligations.

Taking into account the cheapness of London money, he said, it would be difficult for the United States to compete with London in the purchase of foreign securities, but the proposed reparation bonds of Germany offered a solution of this problem.

"It seems to me," he said, "that a redistribution of the world's gold could not fail to be advantageous to America, as well as to those countries which formerly held the gold and are at present unable to resume their normal trade because of their unsound currency.

Stabilizing of Prices.

"A redistribution would lead more than any other thing to stability of prices and of the real value of money. It is true that economic stability would be attained sooner or later if the natural laws of supply and demand and the natural force of human requirements be allowed to work out their own remedies. The outcome would, doubtless, be stabilization until some fresh occurrence which would again disturb the world's economic tranquillity, but if we are to wait for stabilization through the operation of natural laws, it would mean a long period, seeing how great has been the dislocation and upheaval of the war.

"We can get stabilization more quickly by doing something ourselves to help toward it. I feel, myself, that if America will come to the decision that it is better for her investors to make foreign investments and to spend some of her gold in exchange for good foreign bonds, stability of prices will come more quickly and with less risk than if her surplus funds are employed to too great an extent in trade. In the alternative, America may gradually lose her ability to retain much of her foreign trade through the rising cost of production, and she may then lose gold, owing to an adverse trade balance. This would mean that she would find exchanges moving against her. She would no longer be in a position to exchange her surplus gold for investments, as she is today.

"How can prices levels be stabilized? By creditor nations making foreign investments, and so causing an adjustment of prices to a common level, by economy of living, by economy of production and by control of credit, so as to check undue expansion.

Redistribution of Gold.

"These results can be greatly assisted by redistribution of the world's gold. Owing to the relative cheapness in the London money market, it may be difficult for America to compete with London in most cases as regards securing foreign issues. But there may be cases where this can be done, and there may also be in the future the question of dealing with the reparation bonds, which Germany will probably give in respect of the claims against her. I think it would be a good thing if bonds given over by Germany were secured upon selected German assets, and if then some part of these bonds, endorsed by the nations which are to receive them, should be gradually offered and placed in the investment markets of the world. I think that here would be America's opportunity, and England's opportunity, for employing their surplus balances of credit or gold for their own and the world's good. Such bonds would, I believe, act as an international security, and international securities will be needed at some time in the future to play the part which they have played in the past, for the equalization of trade balances between countries. Such international securities would come to and fro freely in the international money markets, and would act as a brake on shipments of gold from one country to another.

"Regarding conditions before the war, when the value of money was more or less stabilized, Mr. Goodenough said:

"World prices were therefore stabilized in terms of gold, except in so far as they were subject to alteration through the laws of supply and demand and causes affecting local markets and cheap of production. It was not necessary, at that time, to take into account the possibilities of fundamental changes in price levels, such as might arise from an alteration in the distribution of the world's supply of gold.

"During and since the war," he continued, "gold has moved to this country in great volume, and this has led to expansion here, and there are possibilities of yet further expansion. I know that the ratio of gold in your Federal Reserve banks has not decreased but about $200,000,000 of gold has come into the country during the past year, and this has rendered possible an expansion of current and time deposits in the hands of the banks, and it has also enabled advances to be made. Correspondingly, prices have risen and seem likely to rise through this great power to expand.

Paper Currency.

"On the other hand, in those countries which have lost gold there has been a similar rise in prices, due to opposite causes. These countries have been driven to paper currency, or promises to pay, unbacked by real value, and as their credit has fallen prices have taken an upward course. Steps are being taken in many of those countries to restore their currencies to a gold basis, but it will take many years to bring them back to the ratios which were ruling before the war. Even if that can ever take place. In the meantime, where foreign currencies have improved and there has been a deflation prices have to some extent responded and there has been some fall.

"During the recent months there has been a steady decrease in the quoted value of your first-phase bonds, and there is, as we know, a direct connection between the commodity price level and that of investments, because money is attracted from the stock markets to carry trade when the volume of the

The estate of Major S. Ellis Briggs, who for nine years was Commander of the Old Guard, and for many years member of the Twenty-second Regiment, and who died Oct. 1, 1921, was appraised yesterday at $1,749 gross and $1,186 net. The appraisal shows that he had a half interest in bonds having a face value of $1,500,000 of the Toledo Marshall & Northern Railroad, but the papers in the case show that these bonds covered the right of way of a railroad projected in Michigan thirty years ago and never built. At the present time the right of way is being used by farmers through whose land the railroad was to run.

TO AMEND GREENWICH BILL,

Connecticut Senator Aims to Cut Out Any Chance for Race Track.

Special to the New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., May 4.—Senator John N. Brooks of Torrington, who is holding up Senate concurrence on a House bill incorporating Colby M. Chester Jr. and nineteen other wealthy New Yorkers living in Greenwich as the Owenoke Country Club, said tonight he would offer an amendment Tuesday omitting objectionable clauses in the bill which, it is said, would enable the club to conduct a race track in Connecticut without legal interference. The amendment will permit the club's activities to a point "not inconsistent with the laws of Connecticut."

The bill, as it stands, authorizes the club "to establish and maintain a club house, golf course, tennis courts and stables; to provide and maintain for its members the activities of golf, tennis, riding and other sports; to cultivate a social spirit among its members, and to do generally whatever may seem for the advancement, benefit, diversion or pleasure of the members; and to exercise and use the powers, privileges and immunity which may be necessary or convenient to carry into effect the purposes and objects of this act."

It was said at the Capitol today that an initiation fee of $1,000 would be charged by the club to raise $250,000 for the purchase of land selected as the club property. Because of an attempt several months ago to put a race-track bill through the Legislature under the guise of an act to encourage the breeding of pedigreed animals, the legislators were interested today in an investigation of the actual motives of the authors of the Owenoke bill.

ELKS EQUIP PLAYGROUND.

Open First of Sixteen Parks Provided With Paraphernalia.

Annunciation Park, at 135th Street and Amsterdam Avenue, formerly Watergate, the first to be equipped by the Social and Community Welfare Committee of New York Lodge of Elks No. 1 with playground paraphernalia, was opened yesterday afternoon with music, oratory and the cheers of 1,000 children.

Frank Fallon, Past Exalted Ruler of the lodge, made the presentation, emphasizing that in the performance of this civic duty the Elks pointed with pride to the plan for repeating within two weeks the opening in the Greater City of fifteen other playgrounds similarly equipped by the order.

Park Commissioner Frank Gallatin, in behalf of New York, expressed gratefulness for the generosity of the Elks. Murray Hulbert, President of the Board of Aldermen, and Bishop John J. Dunn also spoke.

LAUDS MODERN GIRL, CRITICISES WOMAN

Rachel Crothers, Dramatist, Says Young Person Is Best Thing We Are Turning Out.

WOMEN OF TODAY TOO FAT

"Does the woman of today know that she is responsible for making the 'modern girl?' And does she know that she is much more vulgar for she is fatter and bigger and looks infinitely worse than the little slender slips of things we talk so much about?" asked Rachel Crothers, the dramatist, yesterday, speaking upon "How I came to Write 'Mary the Third.'" She opened a symposium upon the "Modern Girl" at the afternoon session of the sixty-first convention of the New York City Federation of Women's Clubs at the Hotel Astor.

Six other speakers discussed the girl from other standpoints in six minutes each, and the girl did not come off badly at their hands.

"There always has been a young person, though she wasn't called the modern girl—in all generations, and very much over-advertised," said Miss Crothers, "because she was easy to write about. And she is such a little thing in the world compared to the woman.

"I didn't write about the New York girl in the play, but about the girls in all parts of the country, and there was nothing original about it. A dramatist is merely a sounding board resounding the things that are going on in the world. The mother is the tragedy in that play. Why don't the mothers say to the daughters: 'Lets talk this over. There are some things you know more about than I do.' If the mother in the play had done that, Mary would not have come as near trouble as she did. Why do we put the responsibility in the wrong place?

"The girl of today is the best thing we are turning out. She is really thinking for herself and refusing to follow orthodox stunts handed out to her."

Passing resolutions was the important business of the morning session. In one, which was reached after a discussion in which hisses mingled with applause for all of the speakers, the Federation "earnestly hopes that the Senate of the United States will at the earliest opportunity consent to the acceptance of the Permanent Court of International Justice according to the conditions proposed by the Secretary of State and submitted to the Senate by the President in his message of February 24."

This was proposed by Mrs. Peter Zucker of the Woman's Harding and Coolidge Club. Mrs. Oliver Stott Gabriel opposed it because Wilson's name was not mentioned.

A resolution on the sugar question met with the women's full approval. It called upon President Harding to "see that no effort was spared to accomplish the full object of the governmental investigation," and the women voted to reduce their own purchases of sugar to a minimum.

It was announced that with the receipt of $1,000 from Mrs. Harry Lilly, past President of the Federation, the amount raised for the proposed new City Federation Hotel for Working Girls amounted to $36,000. Mrs. Thomas Slack, the President, presided.

HILO EXPECTS VISIT FROM BIG TIDAL WAVE

Prepares to 'Entertain' It After Seismograph Warning of Heavy Earth Shocks.

HILO, Hawaii, May 4 (Associated Press).—This city is making preparations to entertain a tidal wave this afternoon, along about late luncheon time. The invitations were sent out today by Professor Thomas A. Jaggar Jr., in charge of the Observatory at Kilauea volcano, thirty miles from Hilo.

The professor's seismograph told him that there had been a heavy earthquake 2,600 miles from Hilo, either off the northern Mexican coast or near the Aleutian archipelago.

Remembering what happened in Hilo in February when the bed of the ocean shook, Professor Jaggar announced that he expected another tidal wave about 1:30 o'clock this afternoon, but he did not think it would be so serious as those of February.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—The Georgetown University seismograph today recorded an earth tremor which began at 11:36 A. M., and continued about two hours, reaching its greatest intensity between 11:56 A. M. and 12:04 P. M. Father Tondorf, in charge of the instrument, described the shock as "moderately severe," and estimated that it centred about 8,700 miles from Washington.

Professor J. J. Lynch of the Physics Department at Fordham University said yesterday that the seismograph in that institution recorded earth tremors beginning at 11:36 o'clock and lasting until the main shock at 11:57. The earthquake was described by Professor Lynch as about as severe as that which shook Chile on Feb. 24. He estimated the distance of the centre of the disturbance from New York as 3,600 miles.

URGE A WATER TRIP FOR HARDING'S RETURN

Denby Suggests That He Come Back From Alaska on Cruiser Through Canal.

WASHINGTON, May 4. — President Harding has under consideration among other plans for his Western trip a proposal made by Secretary Denby that he return from Alaska on a naval vessel by way of the Panama Canal and Porto Rico.

Secretary Denby said today that he had outlined such a trip for its own sake, and had pointed out the advantages which would accrue not only in the way of rest for the Executive and Mrs. Harding, but also in that it would afford an opportunity for them to visit Porto Rico. So far as could be learned at the White House today, however, the President is more inclined to return overland after landing at Seattle and to take advantage of the return transcontinental trip to enunciate the policies of his Administration and to report to the people on its accomplishments.

The proposal made by the Secretary of the Navy is understood to contemplate the use possibly of one of the new naval vessels, for example, the Detroit or the Omaha, which have just been completed. In the event of a return by water, the President might, if he chose, use one of the Shipping Board vessels, and it is understood that he has discussed that possibility within the last few days with Chairman Lasker.

Mr. Harding in discussing with visitors his Western trip has always made it plain that its chief object was not the speeches to be made, but the study of conditions in Alaska.

Chauve Souris Scenery Attached in Claim for Breach of Contract 'Without Merit,' Says Gest.

The scenery of the Chauve Souris at the Century Theatre roof was attached last night by Deputy Sheriff Conlon in a suit brought against Nikita Balieff, head of the Russian organization, by Oscar M. Carter to recover $14,000 for breach of contract. The attachment was granted by Supreme Court Justice Wasservogel on an affidavit by Carter who says that unless he gets some security for his claim he will be unable to collect any judgment he may obtain against Balieff because the Chauve Souris ends its long engagement tonight and sails for Paris on Tuesday to open the Theatre Femina on May 15.

The affidavit of Mr. Carter asserting that he introduced Balieff to Morris Gest under an arrangement by which he was to get a percentage of all that Balieff earned as a result of the introduction, but the master of ceremonies of the Russian show has refused to pay.

Deputy Sheriff Conlon got to the Century Roof early in the evening, but when his purpose was made known to the management he was urged to retrain attaching the scenery until after the performance because a brother of Balieff had died of heart failure and it was possible that a sudden shock might be serious for Balieff. The Deputy Sheriff agreed.

Balieff said last night that the suit was without merit.

Morris Gest, speaking for Balieff, said last night that the claim was without merit, and that it was made at the last minute in the hope that Balieff would settle in order that he might leave the country with all his property on Tuesday. He said that the scenery would be released today by furnishing a cash bond for $16,000, and today's performances will not be interrupted.

"Carter had nothing to do with my engagement of Balieff," said Mr. Gest. "Our agents were Howe & Bough and Clifford B. Fisher in Paris."

CALLS ON WOMEN TO STUDY POLITICS

Mrs. Herbert Hoover Urges Them to Take Active Part in Civic Affairs.

PHILADELPHIA, May 4. — Women must give up some of the time devoted to pleasure for their duty as citizens by taking an active part in civic affairs, Mrs. Herbert Hoover said today in addressing the annual meeting of the Republican Women of Pennsylvania.

"Whether we are wanted in politics or not, we are here to stay, and the only force that can put us out of politics is that which gave us the vote," said Mrs. Hoover. "There is no neutral or passive place. The vote in itself is not a perfect utility. It is perfected in the way in which it is used.

"Women should put into their new duties of citizenship the same amount of serious application and study they give to their work in the schools, colleges and business of the country."

Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt, Assistant United States Attorney General, told of the difficulties in obtaining convictions in prohibition cases because of the tampering with witnesses, disappearance of evidence, and other means which, she said, were employed by violations of the Volstead law.

"In order successfully to combat the wave of lawlessness in this country," declared Mrs. Willebrandt, "there must be a revival of local responsibility. We, as women in public life, must take our stand fearlessly for right. It is idle for us to spend our time talking about affairs in Europe. No woman's club or group can excuse itself by talking of foreign or national affairs unless vital local matters are first studied."

MUSIC PATRONS JOIN TO ASSIST STUDENTS

Fund Raised to Further the Ambitions of Pupils in Public Schools.

LED BY MRS. E. H. HARRIMAN

Philharmonic and American Orchestras to Train Aspirants—School Board Asked to Aid.

Music patrons of this city, it was disclosed yesterday, have banded together to further the ambition of public school pupils who hope to become the leaders, players and patrons of the orchestras of tomorrow. A fund sufficient to carry on this free instruction has been raised privately, and plans have been completed to guide the work.

Announcement of the movement was made by Clarence H. Mackay, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Philharmonic Society, who said that the Philharmonic, the American Orchestral Society, under the Presidency of Mrs. E. H. Harriman, and the Board of Education, had combined forces to work out the plan.

Efforts last night to ascertain the total of the fund subscribed were unsuccessful. Mr. Mackay, after his announcement, could not be reached, while Mrs. Harriman, at her home in Arden, turned inquiries to Franklin W. Robinson of 506 West Fifty-seventh Street. Mr. Robinson said that it was not compatible with the idea back of the movement to disclose the amount of money involved.

Clarence H. Mackay Explains Plan.

After outlining the educational work on the part of the Philharmonic Society and the American Orchestral Society Mr. Mackay's statement said:

"By the affiliation with the Philharmonic Society, Mrs. Harriman becomes Chairman of the Educational Committee of the Philharmonic and a member of its board. The work of the American Orchestral Society will be continued as heretofore for the education of young musicians in orchestral playing, and graduates of that institution will be given first opportunity, providing their abilities warrant, to fill vacancies existing in the personnel of the Philharmonic from year to year.

"With the combination of these two organizations under the direct leadership of the Philharmonic Society and the Educational Committee under the direction of Mrs. Harriman, it has been found possible to extend the educational work, and it was felt desirable that a systematic plan for co-operation with the Board of Education be adopted.

"The purposes of this systematic plan of education in the public schools are two—to raise the standard of qualifications of conductors of the high school orchestras, and to raise the standard of student players. In order to accomplish this result it is proposed that musical programs composed of compositions selected by the Director of Music of the Board of Education, for high school orchestras to study, are to be made the subject of discussion in a conference of the conductors of the high school orchestras, presided over by the conductor of the Philharmonic, the assistant conductor of the Philharmonic, or the musical director of the American Orchestral Society.

To Train School Conductors.

"At this conference the professional teachers of the American Orchestral Society or the first men of each section of the Philharmonic, will present to the high school conductors the right bowing, and phrasing for the string choir, the right phrasing and dynamics, and tonguing of the wood, wind and brass sections, and all technical problems concerning the percussion sections will be discussed. In other words, the high school conductors are to receive the professional men of each orchestral section and to receive from them practical teaching data to be used in the training and conducting of the high school orchestras.

"In order that the students of the high school orchestras may be further educated musically in orchestral routine and ensemble playing, a standard of performance must be established for them. This is to be accomplished by group practice of all sections of the orchestra. The professional concert master of the American Orchestral Society (a professional with many years experience) will go over each phrase of the composition which the students rehearsed, and mark the bowing and the phrasing, thereby unifying the work of the first violins of all the high school orchestras."

Similar instruction in other instruments of the orchestra is contemplated.

"It is inevitable that in the public schools a large proportion of students will be listeners and not performers, in order to educate them to listen to orchestral compositions, and to enable them to become familiar with orchestral music and orchestral instruments, it is planned to have a series of lectures upon the several instruments of the orchestra, illustrated by players from either the school orchestras or from the American Orchestral Society or the Philharmonic.

After the various programs and instruments have been studied, the programs will be played by the orchestra of the school in question or by the orchestra of the American Orchestral Society. It is further planned to have this same program performed in Carnegie Hall by the Philharmonic Orchestra as the final step in the education of these young students.

"This educational plan is being undertaken without any possibility of financial return and for the students' benefit and is made possible only by the generosity of those patrons of orchestral music who are interested in matters of musical education sufficiently to contribute to the cost."

Names of Those Interested.

Mr. Robinson said that among those interested in the movement were: Mrs. E. H. Harriman, President; Mrs. August Belmont, First Vice President; Mrs. Charles Cary Rumsey, Second Vice President; Joseph W. Harriman, Treasurer; Franklin Robinson, Chairman Executive Committee.

SIR WILLIAM R. NICOLL, EDITOR-WRITER, DIES

Head of The British Weekly for 37 Years Wrote Under the Pen Name of Claudius Clear.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 4.—Sir William Robertson Nicoll, for thirty-seven years editor of The British Weekly, died tonight at his Hampstead residence after several weeks' illness.

William Robertson Nicoll, known to Free Churchmen all over the British Empire under the pen name of "Claudius Clear," was born at Lumsden, Aberdeenshire, Scotland, 72 years ago, the son of a Free Church minister. He began writing when he was 15 years old, contributing poems to journals under the pen name of "Nicholas Maitland." He studied theology at the Free Church Divinity Hall at Aberdeen and for a time preached at Dufftown.

With Dr. Nicoll literature continued to be an avocation until 1886 while he occupied pulpits in various parts of Great Britain. His writings, however, began to attract widespread attention before that time. He was a defender of Dickens. In a paper written as early as 1870 he received recognition as an authoritative critic.

As a friend of Lloyd George, Sir William supported him during the war, and throughout the life of his paper vigorously attacked those of his own sect who opposed conscription.

France's Problem

ONE of the most serious problems confronting the French Government, writes Lowell J. Ragatz in May Current History Magazine, is the high cost of living. Textiles have advanced 600 percent; food more than 400 percent, with further increases imminent. Mr. Ragatz explains fully the causes of the condition and notes an apprehension lest the franc go the way of the ruble and the mark.

MUST INCLUDE B. R. T. IN REORGANIZATION

HAVE COMMON TREASURER

Examination Reveals That Same Man Pays All Salaries and Wages.

The Rapid Transit Commission will not approve the proposed reorganization of the Brooklyn transit system unless the affairs of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, the holding company, are included in the agreement. This was stated at the hearing on the reorganization plan at the offices of the Transit Commission yesterday by Clarence J. Shearn, counsel for the commission. It was also indicated by questions asked by General John F. O'Ryan that some clause which would give the Transit Commission jurisdiction over the affairs of the B. R. T. would have to be included in the agreement.

The contention by A. N. Williams, counsel for the stockholders, that the company is a business corporation and not a railroad company was brought up again, and General O'Ryan asked what objection there could be to giving the commission jurisdiction over a company the component parts of which apparently own and operate a railroad. He was told that there was no practical objection, but that there was a legal objection, as under the present statutes a business corporation could not become a railroad corporation.

M. Maldwyn Fertig, Assistant Corporation Counsel, said that the charter of the company didn't enter into the jurisdictional question at all, that the law giving the commission jurisdiction included every company or association which owned, operated or managed railroad cars. That being the case, General O'Ryan asked why not concede jurisdiction. There was some argument over this, but the point was dropped without reaching a conclusion.

It was brought out in the examination of J. H. Bennington, Secretary of the B. R. T. and most of the subsidiary companies, that there are fourteen departments in the system, each functioning for the whole system and each paying its proportionate share of the expenses of the system. However, Mr. Bennington contended, these departments were not departments of the B. R. T., but were departments maintained by the separate companies.

The Brooklyn Heights Railroad Company was the disbursing agent for the system, and the checks for salary and cash payments to employes were made by that company to all employes of the other companies. The Treasurer of the Brooklyn Heights Company was also treasurer for the B. R. T. and each of the subsidiaries.

There were many attempts by Mr. Fertig also to learn how salaries were paid, apparently in the effort to show that the B. R. T. paid them and therefore was actually the operating company. Mr. Bennington said he could not remember on what company the payroll which he had been signing for many years was drawn.

The hearing was adjourned till Monday at 10 A. M.

'BELOVED THIEF' BREAKS HER PAROLE AGAIN

Special to The New York Times.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., May 4.—Edna B. Willsey of Owego, known as "Winsome" in her home town and as "the Beloved Thief" in New York City, disappeared suddenly from the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Campbell, in Spencer Avenue, Owego, at 8 o'clock Sunday night after having spent a week there following her parole from the Woman's Reformatory at Bedford. She left behind her eight-month-old child. Judge Tally in New York City in June, 1922, committed her to an indeterminate sentence in the Bedford Reformatory. During the last few weeks friends had interceded and a parole was granted by the Board of Managers of the institution.

On Sunday night she left her grandparents' home to call on a girl friend. She did not make the call and has not since been seen. No one has seen her leave Owego. She did not purchase a railroad ticket, and her whereabouts are a mystery. It is supposed she either left the village in a motor vehicle or walked. The Bedford officials have been notified and police authorities asked to aid in the search.

FRENCH ENGINEERS MEET.

To celebrate the seventy-fifth anniversary of the founding of the Société des Ingénieurs Civil de France, American and French engineers met last night in the Auditorium of the Engineering Societies Building, 299 West Thirty-ninth Street. Resolutions were adopted congratulating their French colleagues now in session in Paris.

Harrington Emerson, President of the American Section of the French Society, evoked a laugh by saying: "Every French frontier name in America is poetical. 'Bell Isle,' 'Eau qui Court' and 'Pend Oreille,' in strong contrast to 'Stinking Water,' 'Dead Horse Gulch' and 'Mud Flats.'" French art, French literature, French civil creations, French progress, he said, had a halo of idealism which we Americans deeply needed. Other speakers were Gaston Liebert, Director of the French Bureau of Information; Charles O. Milloux, President of the International Electro-Technical Commission; General William Barclay Parsons, Colonel Arthur S. Dwight and Henri Vigneron.

We hope you will look us up in the Commodore.

HULBERT LIKENS HYLAN TO A CRAB

"I Don't Believe in Crawling Backward," He Says, in Fight for Tri-Borough Bridge.

LOSES IN ESTIMATE BOARD

TRANSIT FIRST, SAYS HYLAN

Murray Hulbert, President of the Board of Aldermen, who has always stood by Mayor Hylan in the latter's fight on Controller Charles L. Craig, turned about at yesterday's meeting of the Board of Estimate and vigorously opposed the Mayor, even to the extent of comparing him to a crab.

The row started over an item of $50,000 which had been requested by the Aldermanic President to make surveys and borings and prepare plans for the proposed Tri-borough Bridge to connect Manhattan, the Bronx and Queens. Lined up with President Hulbert was Alderman Martin J. Healy, Democrat, of the Ninsteenth district, in which would be located the Manhattan end of the contemplated structure. Controller Craig was not present.

"I believe we should give the people of the city transit first," said the Mayor. "If we make a bluff at going ahead with this bridge now we'll be perpetrating a fraud on the people. We'll open the gates for a gang of real estate speculators by permitting them to tell prospective clients that a site has been chosen, when we have not committed ourselves to one and that a bridge will soon be built when, as a matter of fact, it cannot be built for years. I don't propose to be a party to any fraud. I am not opposed to the construction of this bridge, but I do not intend to kid the public. I am opposed to camouflage."

Asks Relief for Harlem.

President Hulbert contended that the city should make a start toward giving Harlem traffic relief.

"I believe in going forward," said Mr. Hulbert, with a glance at the Mayor. "I do not believe in crawling backward like a crab."

"I move that the matter be referred to Commissioner Whalen," said the Mayor, showing signs of anger, "and that he take it up with the new Transit Commission in connection with the new transit plans."

After some further discussion President Hulbert moved that the appropriation be made so that the preliminary work could be started, but it was lost, although Borough President Miller of Manhattan and Henry Bruckner, President of the Bronx voted for it. Borough President Lynch of Richmond and Connolly of Queens voted with the Mayor, while Borough President Marklewitz of Brooklyn did not vote. Hulbert showed resentment, but the Mayor leaned over and said with a chuckle:

Hulbert made no reply, but suggested that action be deferred at this time, inasmuch as Controller Craig was absent. The Mayor did not agree with him, pointing out that the motion to adopt had been lost, and the motion to refer the matter to Commissioner Whalen had been carried. At this point Alderman Healy stepped to the speaker's rail and informed the Mayor that the request for the appropriation was now in committee of the Board of Aldermen, and that it would be sent back to the Board of Estimate regardless of the number of times the Mayor objected.

Mayor Attacks Alderman Healy.

This thoroughly aroused the Mayor, and he shouted:

"Don't think that because you are an Alderman you can get away with that stuff here." The Mayor then called to Police Lieutenant Quinn and said:

"Step over to that man and see that he remains orderly."

"You do as you like," retorted the Tammany Alderman, "but I'll speak as much as I like."

Again Hulbert demanded that the matter be deferred, and again the Mayor ruled that his motion was lost, adding:

"Real estate speculators are not going to force me to play into their hands, and I want to serve notice to this effect right here."

"All right," shouted Hulbert, "if the cry of speculators is to be made against the Tri-borough Bridge, we'll show some people when the Ninth Street Bridge plan is submitted where Harlem stands. We'll find out just who the people are who are interested in the Ninth Street structure."

Dr. Michael C. O'Brien, representing a delegation of citizens from Harlem and Queens, protested against further delay, but the Mayor told them that nothing could be done, that the money was needed for transit.

HYLAN LOSES POINT IN SCHIEFFELIN SUIT

The Appellate Division yesterday decided against Mayor Hylan in the suit for libel brought against him by William J. Schieffelin, head of the drug firm of that name, when the Court reversed the lower court and decided that Mayor Hylan's plea of justification in his third amended answer in the suit must be stricken out. The answer in question was the fourth one filed by the Mayor, and the plea of justification was one of five defenses made.

Presiding Justice Clarke, writing the opinion said, "A clear inspection of the complaint and fourth defense demonstrates that the justification pleaded falls far short of being as broad as the charge." The Court referred to the decision in the suit of the late General Theodore A. Bingham against the late Mayor Gaynor in which a similar question arose, and in which the Court of Appeals said:

"A general allegation charging a person with something that is libellous per se cannot be successfully answered by general allegations in the answer that the charge is true. The answer is in part specific but it is not as broad as the charge. * * *"

Justice Clarke held that the decision in the Bingham case "is a precise ruling upon the question here involved." Mr. Schieffelin sued for $100,000 because of a letter written by Mayor Hylan to the Health Commissioner concerning sales of narcotics by the drug firm headed by Mr. Schieffelin, who is also head of the Citizens Union.

FAVOR WORLDWIDE FINGERPRINTING

SEE MANY ADVANTAGES

Foreign Chiefs Welcome Enright's Offer to Train Detectives in New School Here.

The proposal that every person in every civilized country be fingerprinted, so that police action might be more efficient, was made by Caesar Etcheverry, Commissioner of Identification of the Buenos Aires Police Department, at the International Police Conference yesterday. It was said that the worldwide identification system would also aid in finding missing persons and in verifying citizenship in questionable cases.

The carrying out of the plan would require legislation in many countries, it was said, including the United States. Delegates expressed their belief that the co-operation of the lawmaking bodies could be obtained.

Commissioner Enright discussed the proposal for an International Police Bureau at Washington, the details of which he announced some time ago. Membership in the bureau, under the reorganization plan proposed by the conference, would be controlled by nations, not by individual Police Department heads.

Commissioner Enright said that the new detective school in the Elizabeth Street Police Station would be open to detectives from any part of the world. He suggested that one or two of the best men in each department be sent to the school to study and later to train the members of other departments. Many delegates expressed the intention of taking advantage of the offer.

The afternoon session was spent in hearing reports and recommendations of committees on special branches of police work.

It became known yesterday at the conference that the King of Spain had conferred the decoration of Knight Commander of the Order of Isabella on Commissioner Richard E. Enright and Special Deputy Commissioner Douglas McKay.

At the election of officers yesterday Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright was re-elected President of the International Police Conference. Under a new amendment to the constitution the Commissioner's term of office will be two years.

The delegates voted to hold the next convention, which is to be a biennial hereafter, in New York City, the date being set between May and September, 1925.

Following is a complete list of the officers elected, all to serve two years: President, Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright; First Vice President, William Copelan, Chief of Police, Cincinnati, Ohio; Second Vice President, Cesar E. Etcheverry, Commissioner of Identification, Buenos Aires, Argentine; Third Vice President, S. J. Dickson, Chief Constable, Toronto, Canada; Fourth Vice President, Michael T. Long, Chief of Police of Newark, N. J.; Fifth Vice President, Guy E. Molony, Superintendent of Police, New Orleans, La.; Sixth Vice President, Frank W. Matson, Commissioner of Police, St. Paul, Minn.; Seventh Vice President, Arturo Venegas, Chief of Police, Valparaiso, Chile; Eighth Vice President, Kasue Baba, Assistant Commissioner of Police, Tokio, Japan; Secretary, Douglas I. McKay, Special Deputy Police Commissioner, New York; and Tearurer, Michael J. Healey, Chief of Police, Manchester, N. H.

On a long list of prominent foreign police officials elected as Honorary Presidents was Eoin O'Duffy, Commissioner of the Civic Guard of the Irish Free State. This tribute was paid to the popularity which Commissioner O'Duffy attained during the convention.

C. J. RYAN DENIES LIFE ANNUITY COMPACT

Admits Offering Muriel Sharp Conditional Allowances for 6 or 12 Months.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., May 4.—A general denial of an alleged agreement to provide a "life annuity" for Muriel Sharp was made in an answer filed in the Supreme Court today by Cledenin J. Ryan, son of Thomas Fortune Ryan, through his attorneys, Nicoll, Anable, Fuller & Sullivan. The plaintiff is suing to recover $500 and to enforce an alleged contract whereby Ryan was to continue to pay that amount to her monthly, to be accepted as rent of an apartment in which he was to have a library for his personal use.

Ryan's answer challenges Miss Sharp's allegation that she had been induced to leave the home of her parents, and to lease an apartment. He states that on or about Feb. 15, 1921, when he and the plaintiff became acquainted, she was living alone in an apartment at 517 Madison Avenue.

Ryan asserts that Miss Sharp requested severance of their acquaintance in February, 1923, on the ground that continuance of association would preclude her from a possible marriage. He says he agreed to this and offered to make her an allowance of $500 monthly for six months, with the further offer that at the end of that period under certain conditions the payments of $500 a month would be continued for another six months.

Trial of the case may come before Justice Dike. The date has not been set.

TALLEY ON UKULELES.

Tells Prisoner Accused of Theft He May Be a Benefactor.

"I don't know whether to regard you as a malefactor or a benefactor," said Judge Talley in General Sessions yesterday when Dennis Murphy, 40 years old, who said he lived at 155 West Tenth Street, pleaded guilty to the theft of five ukuleles from a freight car at the Hudson River and 104th Street on April 28 last.

"I am tempted to give you my address instead of sending you to prison," continued the Court. "In the house next to mine there is a young man who plays one of these instruments. I'll parole you for one week, and in the meantime I'll make up my mind as to what kind of a sentence I shall impose."

Craving for Ice Cream Gets Robber 20 Years in Sing Sing

Joseph O'Connor's craving for ice cream immediately after he had held up a haberdashery store at 202 Eighth Avenue on the evening of April 7, yesterday led to his being sentenced to twenty years in Sing Sing on his plea of guilty before Judge Talley in General Sessions.

O'Connor entered the shop of Louis Geller and took $104 from the cash register after pointing a pistol at Geller and two clerks.

Then he calmly walked out of the place, but went less than 100 feet and dropped into a store and purchased an ice cream soda. A witness to the hold-up informed a policeman and O'Connor was arrested.

Judge Crain to Hear Enright—Cuvillier Case Next Week—Hirshfield Discusses Grand Juries.

The criminal libel charges made by Police Commissioner Enright following the publication of a telegram from Assemblyman Cuvillier to Magistrate Corrigan will come before Judge Crain, sitting as a committing magistrate in the police hearing next week. This was announced yesterday by Chief Assistant District Attorney Ferdinand Pecora after a conference with Harry A. Gordon, Commissioner Enright's attorney.

The Enright-Cuvillier-Corrigan matter will be presented, Mr. Pecora said, as soon as Judge Crain disposes of the perjury charge against Detective Robert McAllister growing out of the Zittel case. After a half day's testimony on the McAllister charge on Wednesday the case was adjourned to Tuesday of next week.

Magistrate Corrigan referred another case of alleged police oppression to the District Attorney's office yesterday. The policeman concerned is Detective John H. Schneider. He appeared in Harlem Court against Barney Mendelsohn, 53, of 446 Dunham Avenue, Mount Vernon, and Fred E. Quigley, Mendelsohn's nephew, of 533 South Fulton Street, Mount Vernon, on a charge of bookmaking.

Detective's Testimony.

Schneider testified that he arrested the two men at the 125th Street Station of the New York Central Railroad after he had seen them take money and slips from several men and had heard a man tell Mendelsohn that he wanted to bet $2 on Babbling in the fifth race at Jamaica. Mendelsohn, who has been for twenty years credit man for Dimock & Fink, wholesale dealers in plumbers' supplies, at 220 East 125th Street, declared that he was on the way to get a $2,000 payroll check, which he showed the Magistrate, cashed for his firm. He admitted that he and his nephew occasionally put a bet down, but denied that he was bookmaking. George Kumpf, Vice President of the firm, and several other character witnesses appeared for Mendelsohn.

"What have you to say in the face of what has been brought out here?" Magistrate Corrigan asked the detective.

"I have nothing to say," was the reply.

"Do you stick to the story you told, in view of what has been testified to here by both these men and their employers?"

"I do."

"I want to say to you that in view of the testimony here I'm obliged to believe that you are not telling the truth," continued the Magistrate. "I am going to discharge these men and as soon as I can get the minutes of this testimony I will send it with a letter to Mr. Pecora with a request that he present it to Judge Crain. It is a shocking thing to have two men of the reputation these enjoy arraigned here charged with a crime."

Commissioner of Accounts David Hirshfield, commenting yesterday on the letter of Charles Tiernan to Mayor Hylan, asking that the Commissioner be tried on charges as a result of his treatment of Tiernan as a witness in the police inquiry, reiterated his assertion that he did not believe Tiernan told the truth and expressed his opinion of Grand Juries.

Opinion of Grand Juries.

"The fact that the Grand Jury dismissed the complaint against Tiernan does not in any way change my impression as to the truthfulness of Tiernan's testimony when a witness before me," said Mr. Hirshfield. "My opinion of the Grand Jury system is well known, as I have expressed it publicly on numerous occasions. One of the horrible examples of the grand jury system was the Admiral Grand Jury, which ran amuck in New York County for eighteen months.

"Another thing. The prohibition law is obnoxious to the people and they are opposed to its enforcement. Breweries, naturally, like other human beings, like their liquor once in a while and would rather dismiss a complaint than indict for violations of the Volstead act and the Mullan-Gage law. Therefore, the dismissal of the complaint against Tiernan by the Grand Jury does not mean anything further than a failure to indict in a case wherein, in my opinion, an indictment was warranted.

"That I got this young man's measure right the very first time is only intensified by yesterday's impertinent letter to the Mayor. This reminds me that, Tiernan, according to his testimony, is only four years in America, and there was plenty of fighting to be done for brave young Irishman in Ireland for the last four years. Of course one could not fight there with his mouth, but would have to take a chance on his life. Again, if this young man wants to go into the business of making and unmaking public officials, let him go back to Ireland, the land of which he is a citizen.

"I again reiterate that, although Tiernan testified before me at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon that he did not know the names and addresses of any witnesses who were present in the café when he was arrested, and then an hour after testifying before me, through his attorney, publicly announced that he had five witnesses.

"If he will produce before me five witnesses who actually were in the saloon at the time, and these witnesses will truthfully corroborate Tiernan, I will gladly revise my opinion of his testimony before me. What I am seeking are facts, and Spanish athletic exhibitions are not facts."

DE HAVILAND-4 CLAIM IS CUT TO £65,000

LONDON, May 4.—The Aircraft Manufacturing Company has received an award of £65,000 in respect of its claim against the United States for the use of designs and machines of the De Havilland-4 type. The original claim put before the investigating commission in March was for £1,000,000.

In a letter to members of the House of Commons the founder of the company, G. Holt Thomas, describes the award as a great hardship. While the company is powerless to make a legal appeals, he adds:

"I do make public appeal for those who invested in the aircraft company, that the Government set the matter right."

Mr. Thomas says that the number of machines ordered by the United States was 9,000 and the number delivered 4,840. He concludes:

"If the British Government has decided to make a present of the designs to the United States Government, then it should be at the cost of the British Government, and not at the cost of the shareholders in the aircraft company."

Incomes Over $50,000 Paid 45% of Total Tax In 1920; Figures for 1921 to Be Ready Soon

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Statistics on the amount of taxes paid in 1921 by persons in the United States with incomes in excess of $50,000 and the number of persons making such returns will be completed soon by the Treasury Department.

Figures for 1920 show that 15,742 individuals, with incomes over $50,000, represented 0.22 per cent., or about one-fifth of 1 per cent. of all taxpayers, paid $484,779,387 in taxes (normal and surtax), or 45.09 per cent. of the total tax payments, which amounted to $1,075,053,686. The 15,742 had 3.43 per cent. of all net income reported.

These taxes were levied under the 1918 revenue law. The surtax in this law called for 24 per cent. of the amount by which net income exceeds $50,000 and does not exceed $52,000; 25 per cent. of the amount by which net income exceeds $52,000 and does not exceed $54,000; 26 per cent. of the amount by which net income exceeds $54,000 and does not exceed $56,000, &c.

DETROIT HEIRESS WEDS GARDENER

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Avery Refuse to Forgive Their Daughter's Elopement.

TRIED TO NIP THE ROMANCE

Couple Came to New York on Honeymoon and Plan, It is Said, to Live on a Farm.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, May 4.—Detroit social circles were startled today by news of the marriage Saturday afternoon, April 28, of Florence Olcott Avery, only daughter and heiress of John H. Avery, and Francis Barrigrand, the Avery's gardener. Marriage license records show his age as 34 and that of Florence Avery as 30. It is said Mr. and Mrs. Avery refuse to forgive their daughter.

The marriage ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. William D. Maxon, pastor of Christ Church, and was witnessed by Mrs. George Thrall and Mrs. John R. Searles, friends of the bride, who took them into her confidence some time before the ceremony.

The romance began two years ago, when Miss Avery, planning to improve the Averys' country estate, "Maple Road Farm," near Oxford, Mich., consulted Barrigrand. She found in him an enthusiastic fellow-worker with whom she labored for more than a year in the planting of flowers, shrubs and trees and the placing of stone gardens and fountains, rustic benches and sun dials into a rural paradise.

Last Summer, it is said, the Avery family learned of the growing love of the daughter for the gardener, whereupon he was immediately discharged. In an effort to make Miss Avery forget she was taken East and on South for the Winter. Finally it was thought that the romance was ended, and the family returned to Detroit two weeks ago.

"We thought that the matter had been settled when we returned from the South," said Mrs. Avery, "I do not know what they are planning to do. It is certain they can have no place in our life."

The honeymooners plan, it is said, to buy a small farm in the East.

"I have a right to happiness," said the bride. "I did not marry rashly. I considered the question for over a year. I know we are going to be very happy."

MINERS WON'T TAKE A CUT, SAYS LEWIS

Back From Europe, Union Head Asserts They Will Fight Any Reduction.

John L. Lewis, President of the United Mine Workers of America, said yesterday that neither the anthracite nor bituminous miners would consent to a reduction in wages when their present agreement expired. Mr. Lewis returned from Europe on the President Harding of the United States Line.

Asked whether the miners' agreements would be renewed, he replied:

"I don't know whether they will or not."

Mr. Lewis was informed of the statement of the mine owners that the only way the cost of coal to the public could be reduced was by cutting wages.

"On the basis of this statement will the miners accept wage reductions?"

"Absolutely not," Mr. Lewis said emphatically. "That is final. The miners of America are out of the habit of accepting wage cuts."

Mr. Lewis said he had attended a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Miners' International Federation in Brussels. He conferred with Hubert Smith, President of the Miners' Federation of Great Britain, as well as miners' leaders in France, Belgium, Germany and Czechoslovakia. He was asked if he had discussed with these leaders the idea of a sympathetic strike against producing coal for export in the event of a strike here.

"I do not care to discuss that," he replied. "I do not care to make public what we discussed at these conferences. I went over with the desire to acquaint myself with the problems of the British mining industry, particularly as to prices, labor, amount of production and export figures. I also investigated the general industrial problems of England and the continent, all having a relation to our own affairs, directly and indirectly."

BEER RIOT IN BALTIMORE.

Mob Menaces Dry Agents Attempting to Seize Two Trucks—One Escapes.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., May 4.—Menaced by an excited crowd of more than 1,000 persons that hooted and shouted threats of violence, three prohibition enforcement agents engaged in interrupting the transfer of more than 200 cases of real beer from a freight car at a Baltimore & Ohio Railroad warehouse to two trucks, this evening, were forced to permit the escape of the trucks, which were driven away with the beer.

One of the trucks was captured a little later a few blocks from the Camden Station by a Federal agent after the driver had leaped from the seat and escaped. Agent Flinchum stayed with the truck, which contained 100 cases of beer, until the police quelled the riot which ensued.

Owing to a misunderstanding, no police were at the warehouse when the attempt at seizure was made. When the police finally arrived, they tried vainly to disperse the rapidly growing crowd, which packed itself closely about the Federal agents. The drivers of the two trucks had been turned over to Federal Agent Ely, but, hearing Agent Flinchum call for help, Ely released his hold on his two prisoners and made his way through the crowd to the assistance of his companion.

He arrived in time to beat off Flinchum's assailants, and then turned and made his way back to the place where he had left the prisoners. They had leaped on their trucks, started the engines and beaten a retreat, shielded by the sympathetic crowd.

A squad of police reinforcements reached the scene in time to aid the first detail of police in their efforts to rout the crowd. After the crowd had been driven off to a safe distance, the Federal agents broke the bottles of beer contained in twenty cases left in the freight car.

POINTS TO SUICIDE OF HAZED STUDENT

Evidence of Mother and Girl in Northwestern Case Suggests He Contemplated It.

NO HOLE IN PIER FOR BODY

Builder Found No Chance to Put Mount Where He Was Found a Year After Class Rush.

CHICAGO, May 4.—The mystery of the death of Leighton Mount, Northwestern University freshman, whose skeleton was found beneath a pier near the lake at Evanston Monday, was deepened today by the questioning at the State Attorney's office of more than 100 undergraduates.

After insisting for days that Mount, who disappeared in September, 1921, after taking part in a class rush, had met death as a result of hazing and that his body had been hidden by fellow students, officials tonight said that the theory that he committed suicide "does not now seem so improbable as it did at first."

That a number of times during the Summer of 1921 Mount had told her he was dissatisfied with conditions in his life and had a "good notion to do away with himself," was the testimony of Miss Doris Fuchs, a friend of the dead student.

The girl testified that Mount had told her the night he disappeared that the class rush with its attending excitement might give him an opportunity to "do away with himself."

"That night he sent me a note in which he warned me to keep as quiet as a snake," she said.

Mrs. J. L. Mount, mother of the dead youth, said that he talked much at all times of his life of his future and his condition. "And possibly he may even have talked about killing himself, but we paid no attention to him," she added.

C. L. Olson, the contractor who built the pier, said he had inspected it in December, 1921, and that at that time there was no hole through which a body could have been dragged to concealment. Similar testimony was given by a life guard at a nearby beach.

Arthur Persinger, who was a sophomore at the time, testified he had taken part in the class rush and had been ducked in the lake and tied to a pier a few hours before Mount disappeared. The dead student was battling against the sophomores. Everett B. Fox testified that he led the band of freshmen that tied Persinger to the pier.

"Persinger took it as a good sport," said Fox, "and we heard no more about it—there was now thought of reprisals."

John Tomlinson, son of an Evanston banker and believed to have been one of the last persons to have seen Mount alive, testified he was with Mount the night of the class rush, but did not see him hazed. He said he had left Mount after the rush was over about 3 o'clock that morning.

A search was ordered for J. Allen Mills, former student at the university and now said to be somewhere in the West. Mills was one of the leaders in the rush, it was said. He was last heard from in Wyoming.

EGYPTIAN WOMEN TO DEMAND FREEDOM

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CAIRO, Egypt, May 4.—If the Egyptian delegation which left for Rome today to attend the International Women's Conference has its way, Egypt will step from the Middle Ages to a period approximate to modern conventions in so far as Egyptian women are concerned. The program which the delegation will advocate at the conference includes the abolition of many ancient restraints on Moslem women, particularly concerning marriage.

The delegation is determined to work for abolition of the custom of Egyptian men and women not being allowed to see each other before marriage. They regard this restriction as injurious and recommend that both sexes be allowed to mingle freely, both to permit those of marriageable age to select suitable mates and to enable older women to take their proper place in the social and political life of their country.

They will also urge improvement of sanitary conditions in Egypt and a campaign against the worst superstitions in vogue locally and also recommend higher education for women. What Egyptian men thing about this unorthodox creed remains to be seen as the feminists' revolutionary ideas were made public only this afternoon and the men who hitherto were unqualified lords and masters are now too startled to do anything but wipe their foreheads and read the afternoon papers again.

SAYS RADICALS MAN SHIPS.

Furuseth Asks Harding to Investigate Maritime Law Violations.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 4.—Andrew Furuseth, President of the International Seamen's Union of America, in a letter addressed to President Harding today, asked that the American Secret Service be employed to make a sweeping investigation of the violation of maritime laws by seamen and ship operators. He charged that American vessels now are manned by radicals, whose one great pride is that "they know nothing of seamanship."

Such crews, the letter read, jeopardize American lives and American interests at sea. The union, Furuseth wrote, could not furnish many specific violations of maritime laws because union seamen were not allowed aboard vessels where offenses were most frequent.

BIG CATCH OF MACKEREL.

Fish Selling for Twenty-Five Cents Apiece in Cape May.

CAPE MAY, N. J., May 4.—The largest catch of mackerel by the Gloucester mackerel fleet was brought into Cape May harbor this morning.

More than 2,000 barrels were caught by the fleet. The Italian and American boats were loaded to the gunwales with fish. Mackerel are selling as low as 25 cents apiece in local markets. The Reading train took out ten carloads of fish this afternoon for New York and Philadelphia.

ORDERS 5 WARRANTS IN KIDNAPPING PLOT

Prosecutor Charges Two Men, Three Women With Stealing Alexanderson Boy.

PAIR PURSUED IN CANADA

Royal Mounted Police on Track—Their Wives and Woman Keeper of Lad Held in Watertown.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., May 4.—Warrants for the arrest of two men and three women charged with being implicated in the kidnapping of Verner Alexanderson, 6, son of E. F. W. Alexanderson of Schenectady, were being prepared tonight for issuance early tomorrow morning. Orders for the warrants were issued by District Attorney Alexander Blessing of Schenectady County, who arrived here this morning to direct search for the abductors of the boy.

Verner was restored to his father and mother today. He was found yesterday in a cottage on the Indian River, near Theresa, twenty-five miles from here.

Those who it was said tonight would be named in the warrants are: Stanley Crandall of Rochester, Watertown and Alexandria Bay.

Mrs. Ruth Crandall, his wife.

Harry Fairbanks of Ogdensburg and Alexandria Bay.

Mrs. Fairbanks, his wife.

Mrs. H. D. Grinnell of Alexandria Bay, foster mother of Mrs. Fairbanks.

The men, Crandall and Fairbanks, who are believed to have kidnapped the boy, now are being sought in Canada. Their wives and Mrs. Grinnell, who was in charge of the boy when he was found, are being held by the Sheriff here, and orders for the issuance of the warrants were issued after the women had been questioned by District Attorney Blessing tonight.

It has been learned from authoritative sources that the two men and three women are believed to have prepared a kidnapping plot which failed because of the widespread publicity given the case by newspapers and radio in a short space of time.

Offers $5,000 Reward.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., May 4.—The trail of the two men sought as kidnappers tonight definitely led to the Royal Mounted Police now are close on their track.

Co-operating in the search is Owen D. Young, Chairman of the board of the General Electric Company, who has placed at the disposal of Mr. Alexanderson the resources of the company in an effort to apprehend and prosecute the suspected kidnappers. Rewards totaling $5,000 have been offered for information leading to arrest of the men.

Mr. Alexanderson, with the boy's mother, planned to remain in Watertown tonight and to return to their Schenectady home in the morning.

"The radio and the newspapers are responsible for the recovery of my son," Mr. Alexanderson told the Associated Press tonight. "We are so happy to have him again; I can't tell you how much.

"But the radio and the newspapers did it. Bert Jarvis, who found Verner at the Indian River cottage, heard me ask for my son through his home-made radio set. Then he saw the boy's picture in the papers. Then he found the boy.

"We are looking for the kidnappers. Police and detectives are watching in Canada. I cannot tell you where, and the Royal Mounted Police are helping. Then Mr. Young of the General Electric Company has offered every help, too.

"We are going home tomorrow."

Believe Woman Had Letters as Alibi.

Mrs. H. D. Grinnell of Alexandria Bay, foster mother of Mrs. Fairbanks, is at the county jail here. Her stories conflict.

not know the man, declaring that they hired her to care for the child at the secluded shack in the woods on Indian River near Theresa, twenty-five miles from here, where he was found yesterday.

In her possession was found a letter addressed to Dr. E. F. W. Alexanderson, father of the kidnapped boy, in which she asked information about the two men. This letter she did not post and the authorities believe it was written as an alibi in case the boy was found and she was arrested.

She has another letter signed by "B. C. Miller," but written by Crandall, in which he exonerated her of complicity. This, too, is suspected of being a move to protect her.

Dr. Alexanderson and his wife reached Watertown by train at 7 o'clock and went immediately to the home of Sheriff Gillett. "Oh, my sweetheart," exclaimed the mother on sight of her boy. "Mamma!" he shouted, as she clasped him in her arms.

Likes Dog But Insists on Bunnies.

Verner is more interested in "Jack," the black and tan mongrel dog given him by his abductors, than in anything else. He says he is "mad at" his abductors for promising to procure "bunnies" for him and then failing to make good. "The dog's all right," he said, "but they promised me bunnies."

"No matter what kind of dog it is, Verner is going to keep it," said his father.

While the boy was found independently of the efforts of the police authorities, the identity of the kidnappers was established by Detective Ben Van Dusan of Schenectady and other officers, who learned that Peter Kiah of Ogdensburg, owner of the abductors' car, received a telegram Wednesday from St. Johnsville, sent by Fairbanks, in which Kiah was told not to worry about his car.

Bert Jarvis, Theresa boat liveryman, who located the boy after he scrutinized pictures in newspapers, has filed a claim for the $2,000 reward offered by Dr. Alexanderson and the City of Schenectady, for information leading to the recovery of the boy.

General Electric Offers $5,000.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., May 4.—Announcement of $5,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the persons responsible for the kidnapping of Verner Alexanderson was made by the General Electric Company this afternoon.

Canby, an officer in the Union Army during the Civil War, who was killed in 1873 during Indian troubles in Northern California.

The President acted upon receipt of a letter from Charles Hall, an aged attorney of Bay Minnette, Ala., who wrote that he wanted to place a wreath on the grave of General Canby.

CITY COLLEGES WIN FIGHT OVER BUDGET

SCHEDULES HAD BEEN CUT

Court Rules That Trustees Have Power to Decide Requirements of Educational Institutions.

The Appellate Division yesterday sustained the demands of the College of the City of New York and Hunter College that the Board of Estimate appropriate $226,559 for the former and $83,306 for the latter for the current year in addition to the provisian made in the budget. The suits were based on the alleged power given to the city educational institutions by the Legislature to regulate their own salary requirements by action of their Trustees.

The Board of Estimate cut the schedules submitted by these institutions, and when suit was brought the colleges obtained a mandamus in the lower court which the Appellate Division affirms. Justice Page, writing his last opinion before he retires from the bench, said:

"Although the orders appealed from only direct an increase of the amount already appropriated by the Board of Estimate for the support and maintenance of these two institutions of learning the officials of the city take the position and argue that no sum can be legally appropriated for the support of these institutions. It is not urged that the city lacks power to appropriate money for the elementary education of the children of its inhabitants, but that is the limit that the present administration seeks to put upon free education. When a similar contention was advanced in the Supreme Court of Michigan that Court said:

"'When the doctrine was broached to us we must confess to no little surprise that the legislation and policy of our State were appealed to against the right of the State to furnish a liberal education to the youth of the State in schools brought within reach of all classes. We supposed it always had been understood in this State that education, not merely in the rudimentary but in an enlarged sense, was regarded as an important practical advantage to be supplied at their option to rich and poor alike, and not as something pertaining merely to culture and accomplishment, to be brought as such within the reach of those whose accumulated wealth enables them to pay for it.'"

"It appears that the Legislature has declared, at the instance of the citizens and officials of the City of New York, that within the city shall be provided institutions for the higher education of the youth of the city than are afforded by the common schools, as an extension of, and supplementary to, the elementary education; furthermore, that control, management and fixation of salaries should be vested in a board of trustees. The education of the youth of the State has always been recognized as one of the principal obligations of an American State. The assessment of the taxes to support the schools has always been considered taxation for the purposes of the locality.

"That the legislation is mandatory on the Board of Estimate and Apportionment to appropriate the amount required by the trustees of the colleges to meet the salaries and other expenses cannot be successfully urged against its validity. The subject of this provision is obvious. It is to enable the colleges to properly discharge their duties as educational institutions.

"Education is of vital concern to the State. That the usefulness of these institutions may not be impaired and the funds needed for their maintenance and support devoted to other uses, that they may be free from arbitrary control through the power of withholding appropriations until some exaction of the appropriating power is complied with; that those hostile to its purposes may not destroy it, it was necessary that the trustees should be given power to fix the amount, and the Board of Estimate be required to make the required appropriation, in order that they might be able to regulate their own affairs and insure proper supplies of money so that they could discharge their obligations to the students and the public. Salaries have been fixed with the maximum and minimum limitations."

Justice Page also upheld the ruling of Justice Mullan in the lower court that the city is not entitled to charge against the compensation of President Mezes of the City College the rental value of the property occupied by him which was bought by the city in 1907 as the residence of the President of the college.

L. G. ROSE SEEKS DIVORCE.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 4.—The First Tribunal today awarded to Lionel George Rose, an American, 50 francs ($2.35) damages on charges that his wife's affections had been alienated by Gavazzo Buchardo, an Argentine painter resident in Paris. Mr. Rose, regarding this as insufficient satisfaction, thereupon began suit for divorce from his wife, who was Miss Pusielewitch before her marriage to Mr. Rose in 1917.

Testimony was given in court that in September of last year Mr. Rose, in company with a police detective, entered Buchardo's studio and found the painter in bed and Mrs. Rose in a cupboard.

The Judges did not agree with Buchardo's plea, and reached a decision that he and Mrs. Rose conjointly should pay damages to the husband.

It is said that Mr. Rose was formerly a business man, living in West Ninety-first Street, New York.

RIGA, May 4 (Associated Press).—The people's commissars, recently met at Moscow to decide on the date for the trial of former Patriarch Tikhon, according to advices received here. Practically all the commissars, among Georges Tchitcherin, the Foreign Minister, demanded the death penalty for the former prelate, who was unfrocked yesterday by the conclave of the All-Russian Church.

Tchitcherin argued that such a step probably would result in a renewed boycott against the Soviet and advocated the passing of the death sentence, to be followed by a reprieve.

No definite decision was arrived at.

Makes Vedensky an Archbishop.

MOSCOW, May 4 (Associated Press).—Father Vedensky, who yesterday acted as prosecutor in the church trial which resulted in the unfrocking of Patriarch Tikhon, was invested today by the All-Russian Church conclave with the dignity of Archbishop of Moscow. This extraordinary elevation from ordinary priesthood was made on motion of the President in recognition of "Vedensky's service in the Tikhon case," but was carried over some opposition amid cries of "No! No!"

The conclave tonight decided to destroy all sacred relics, declaring they serve to foster superstition.

As a result of another decision by the conclave today that bishops may marry, a group of about thirty-five of the dignitaries has presented a petition asking that they be allowed to remain single. Previously bishops were chosen only from among celibate monks.

The conclave has also ruled that secondary priests may marry a second time, as opposed to the first marriage, but they could be married before ordination but not afterward, and could not marry in case of the death of the wife.

HIDDEN BIBLE TEXT SHOWN BY CAMERA

DR. BUCHANAN IS DELIGHTED

Declares Photograph Proves Underscript Which He Says He Has Deciphered.

Photographs of the Huntington Palimpsest which were made yesterday for THE NEW YORK TIMES with the permission of Archer M. Huntington, President of the Hispanic Society of America, disclosed that the old Spanish manuscript of the Bible was interwoven in places with other writings, reproduced by the camera with much greater clearness than they could be picked out by the human eye.

The photographs do not furnish any conclusive proof that the writings represent either the underscript claimed to have been deciphered by Dr. E. S. Buchanan, internationally recognized as a paleographer, or the "offset" from the written characters on opposite pages, which Dr. Elias A. Lowe of Oxford declared he found when asked to investigate the claims of Dr. Buchanan.

The underscript, as deciphered by Dr. Buchanan, furnishes no basis for belief in the day of judgment, the end of the world, baptism or hell.

Dr. Lowe and others who examined the manuscript have advanced the theory that the translations of Dr. Buchanan were the product of "an overworked mind," because they were unable to find any trace of the underscript which Dr. Buchanan alleges he has deciphered.

The faint writings reproduced by THE TIMES camera were photographed in the presence of Dr. Buchanan. At all times the Latin manuscript was under supervision of officials of the Hispanic Society. The part of the text photographed was selected by a reporter for THE TIMES, who searched through the old parchment independently after having tried with only partial success to follow outlines of an underscript which Dr. Buchanan tried to point out.

"Faint Letters Are in Yellow.

After the faint writings were selected Dr. Buchanan identified them as part of the underscript. The page bearing the nearly invisible characters was one of several sheets of parchment having much writing. The faint letters, in yellow or "Arabic gold," were found in marginal spaces between parallel columns of text supposedly written in the Thirteenth Century, and at the bottom and side of the parchment.

The letters are about the same size as the overscript and that fact has been cited by Professor Lowe in support of his argument that the letters are merely "offsets" of characters on the opposite pages.

Dr. Buchanan, however, pointed out that the offset letters, found throughout the manuscript, were produced in black, and somewhat blurred like a carbon copy. He maintained that the "offset" letters were not reproduced in Arabic gold. He further disputed Professor Lowe by pointing out that the faint writing, such as that photographed, was to be found not only lying in or under the overscript, but on the margins which could not have received the faint impressions from opposite margins.

The photographs of what Dr. Buchanan called the underscript of the palimpsest was made on the roof of the Hispanic Museum, at 156th Street and Broadway under conditions which Dr. Buchanan deserted were ideal, and similar to the conditions under which he deciphered about one-tenth of the old parchment. The exposures were made under the slanting rays of the sun about 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Dr. Buchanan had claimed that the indentures of the pencil or pen with which the inscriptions were made became visible to him under the slanting rays of the bright afternoon sun.

Fondles Ancient Tome.

The paleographer welcomed the opportunity to pore again over the ancient manuscript which he had understood was locked in the vaults of the Hispanic Museum, because he was deciphering a text that would establish the forgery of a great part of the scriptures. He took the tome in his arms and with choked voice repeated:

"My bambino, my bambino!"

Dr. Buchanan said that seven years had passed since he worked with the historic vellum. He blinked his eyes as he turned its leaves and endeavored to pick up some of the mysterious underscript he used to puzzle over. Suddenly his face lighted up.

"Here it is," he said as he pointed to some of the microscopic marginal notes he made as he finished deciphering each line. He was going over familiar ground, but he said he was unable to retrace the underscript as well as he formerly did. He suggested that it was because he was out of training, or because his eyesight had weakened in the interval between his forty-fourth and fifty-first year.

"I believe it would take me six months to develop the skill I formerly had in working out these texts," said the paleographer.

Access to the old Latin manuscript will not be denied to Dr. Buchanan or to any recognized scholar who may desire to study it under the proper supervision of the Hispanic Society, according to Mr. Huntington, who explained yesterday that he had extended an invitation to Dr. Buchanan to make use of the Huntington Palimpsest.

If Dr. Buchanan accepts the invitation of Mr. Huntington it will be with the understanding that he cannot resume publication, under the auspices of the Hispanic Society of anything he deciphers. He will have to do that on his own responsibility.

Denies Withholding Volume.

When Mr. Huntington was asked if he was correctly quoted in suggesting to newspaper men that they look into the history of Dr. Buchanan, he explained that he was not. He was asked certain questions about the paleographer which he could not answer, and merely suggested to his interviewers that they themselves should try to get those facts.

"I didn't mean to say anything against Buchanan," said Mr. Huntington. "No possible question of Buchanan's intelligence or integrity has ever been raised by me."

Mr. Huntington denied that the palimpsest was ever locked up by him to prevent Dr. Buchanan or any other person from studying it. It was placed in the vault at the Hispanic Museum along with other valuable manuscripts which were under lock for safe-keeping. Nor did any group of churchmen or others ever request that the missal be placed under lock and key. Mr. Huntington said there was absolutely no truth in the report that he was convinced the publication of the Buchanan translation would overthrow the Bible, and that his conscience wouldn't permit its publication.

The only reason why the publication of the Buchanan translation was stopped was because experts called in by Mr. Huntington reported that they could not see any trace of the underscript which Dr. Buchanan claimed he was deciphering.

"The Hispanic Society," added Mr. Huntington, "will place the text at the disposal of scholars. It will make every possible effort to facilitate a scholarly investigation of the manuscript."

The Hispanic Society will not, of its own accord, make any effort to determine who is right in the present controversy over the biblical text, because Mr. Huntington considers that outside the functions of a museum.

The Hispanic Society will not consider any proposal to send the Latin manuscript abroad for examination by foreign palimpsest experts. Dr. Buchanan had suggested that Henri Omont, head of the Bibliotheque National, and Sir Frederick Kenyon, Chief Librarian of the British Museum, were among the foremost scholars qualified to pass judgment upon his claims. Professor Kirsopp Lake of Harvard is the only American expert whom Dr. Buchanan has suggested as competent to examine the manuscript.

Dr. Burr Withholds Judgment.

Professor George L. Burr of Cornell University, who is credited by Professor Lowe with the suggestion that the faint writings were "offset," replying to an inquiry from THE NEW YORK TIMES, wired as follows:

"ITHACA, N. Y., May 4.—Can only reply that about May 1, 1917, at request of Mr. Huntington, I examined at the Hispanic Museum the Tarragona manuscript under discussion, but, though the day was brilliant and my light the same as Mr. Buchanan's, I had to report, after a study of some hours, that I could not detect, with naked eye or with a glass, a trace of any underwriting such as he believed himself to see. It is, however, folly to discuss it now from memory when my report made at the time to Mr. Huntington would doubtless be put by him at your disposal. While all Mr. Buchanan claims may still be possible, the grounds for doubt would seem to warrant delay of judgment until the evidence can be examined by those whose skill and impartiality he, too, will recognize.

The belief by Dr. Buchanan that the Latin manuscript was stolen from the Cathedral at Tarragona, Spain, and sold by two Germans to Bernard Quaritch of Piccadilly, buying for Mr. Huntington, has never been confirmed, according to Mr. Huntington. Negotiations for the book were entirely in the hands of Quaritch. But Mr. Huntington supposed that the palimpsest was sold by the Cathedral at Tarragona like many other cathedrals that have disposed of valuable manuscripts because they were in greater need of funds.

$150,000 VAN DYCK TO BE BROUGHT HERE

$90,000 FOR CUYP CANVAS

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 4.—There was a thrilling afternoon at Christie's today at the sale of old masters in the Brownlow collection. The greatest battle of the day was fought over Van Dyck's portrait, "Anton Triest." The Messrs. Duveen had offered 14,000 guineas, and just as it seemed the hammer would fall Messrs. Knoedler challenged and the bids went up until the picture was knocked down to Messrs. Duveen for 28,000 guineas, the contest between the rival sides having lasted only ninety seconds.

For 17,000 guineas Messrs. Duveen also bought Cuyp's "The Maas at Dordrecht," which was said to be the highest sum ever paid in the English market for a Cuyp subject.

Other notable sales were Giovanni Bellini's "Adoration of the Shepherds," 4,200 guineas; Bellini's portrait of Bartolommeo Colleoni, 3,500 guineas; Conegliano's "Holy Family," 9,300 guineas; Mabuse's portrait of Mary Tudor, Duchess of Suffolk, 3,200 guineas; Rubens's "Flight into Egypt," 2,500 guineas, and four Ruysdael landscapes 7,400 guineas.

Fine Examples of the Dutch School.

The paintings whose sale is recorded in the preceding dispatch belonged to the late Adolbert Wellington, Third Earl Brownlow. They were from Ashridge, Berkhampsted and 9 Carlton House Terrace and were sold by order of his executors.

Two of the most important brought record prices for public sale and are to come to this country. They are "The Maas at Dordrecht," by Albert Cuyp, which brought $90,000, and "Portrait of Anton Triest, Burgomaster of Antwerp," by Sir Anthony Van Dyck, which sold for $140,000, marking the highest of the sale, both of them going to the Duveens of this city.

This being the week of the opening of the Royal Academy in London, the city was filled with connoisseurs and society people. A large crowd of representative buyers filled the big galleries in King Street, St. James Square.

The Cuyp, a wonderful seascape, which was used as a frontispiece in the illustrated Christie catalog, is considered one of the artist's masterpieces, probably his finest work. It shows the Maas at Dordrecht with a ferryboat, a view looking along the river to the church and buildings of the town, and in the front a long line of sailing vessels with many figures. A small boat at the right carries a trumpeter and seven other men, and the broad ferryboat at anchor shows among other figures a man beating a drum. In a small boat alongside is an officer in a scarlet uniform and a man in dark clothes seated. The rippling waves sparkle with a thousand different hues in the soft Summer evening light and fleecy clouds are floating through the sky.

The picture is considered one of the most agreeable of the artist's works, possessing a warmth of tone without the suggestion of excess. It is one of the few painted by him of this size (44½ by 66) and is signed by Cuyp. The painting was imported into England by Alexis de la Hante and was bought from him by Sir Abraham Hume, who owned it in 1884. At his death it became the property of his grandson, Viscount Alford (son of the first Earl Brownlow), whose wife, Lady Marian Alford, daughter of the Marquess of Northampton, added to her husband's collection. At the death of the second Earl the Cuyp was inherited by the late third Earl Brownlow. It was exhibited at the British Institute in 1815 and at Nottingham Castle later.

The Van Dyck selling at $140,000 is a portrait of great distinction and simplicity, 56½ inches by 44, and is also from the collection of Sir Abraham Hume. Anthony Triest, Burgomaster, brother of the Bishop of Ghent, is shown as a man of about 60 years, with a strongly marked countenance, dark hair and mustache, and a small imperial. The face and figure are given at three-quarter view, and it is a three-quarter-length portrait, a black robe and long, loose silk coat being worn, with a broad rolled collar and deep cuffs of white lawn. The left hand is placed on the back of a leather-covered chair in the foreground, and the right hand, with a thumb ring, hangs easily at the side. Corinthian pillars, a balustrade and a red curtain form the background, with a glimpse of landscape and sky at the left.

Connoisseurs consider this portrait to show Van Dyck in his strongest and most virile mood, with the fine conception of simplicity retained by the master from his Italian studies. In it, they say, he approaches Rubens in color and treatment. The head, painted in full light, is modeled in the most solid impasto with astonishing mastery and extraordinary clearness. The remarkably pure condition of the picture is due to the care of his pigments for which the artist was noted.

The painting was in the possession of Sir George Colebrooke, the head of an old and wealthy firm of bankers in the eighteenth century, before it came into the possession of Sir Abraham Hume. It has been shown at seven important exhibitions in London since the early part of the nineteenth century, five times in the British Institution, the last time in 1848, and at the Royal Academy in 1871 and 1888.

TUT-ANKH-AMEN VIEWS IN MUSEUM

TAKEN BY HARRY BURTON

Metropolitan Has Also by Gift of Lord Carnarvon Several Pieces of Egyptian Furniture.

Every one who has followed with interest the discovery of the tomb of Tut-ankh-Amen and the wonderful treasures within it will be glad to know that the Metropolitan Museum of Art has, through the courtesy of the late Lord, photographs of the tomb and its contents, which have been placed in the Third Egyptian Room. These are the photographs of Harry Burton of the Museum, one of the men of the Museum's Egyptian workers who by agreement with the museum were assisting Lord Carnarvon. The photographs will be supplemented from time to time as other of Mr. Burton's prints arrive.

The Metropolitan Museum Bulletin for May, which is just being issued, devotes a page to Lord Carnarvon telling of his more than friendly interest in the Museum and the regrets of the Museum authorities at the loss of so good a friend. He followed the progress of the Museum with interest and had planned to visit it.

"Naturally," the Bulletin says, "Lord Carnarvon's interest in the Museum was chiefly in its Egyptian Department, but it was by no means confined exclusively to that. He kept himself surprisingly well informed about its growth in other directions, its new acquisitions, its methods of installation and all other matters which offered him a basis of comparison with the museums of Europe, as well as Cairo. He was constantly talking of it to his friends and after seven years of fruitless labor in the Valley of the Kings he made up his mind last Summer that if the present season should not turn out more successful he would give up his work in Egypt and come to New York next Winter expressly to study our collections.

"The friendly relations between Lord Carnarvon and the museum began before his excavations in the Valley of the Kings. For a number of years previously he was digging in the neighborhood of Deir-el-Bahri, where his concession adjoined ours, the two being separated only by an invisible line of demarcation. As in any mining claim a situation like this might easily have given rise to all kinds of misunderstandings and complications especially if, below, the ground passageways or chambers crossed from one side of the line to the other, as did in fact happen. That no friction ever arose in consequence was very largely due to his unfailing courtesy and fair mindedness, which helped in settling, in a perfectly amicable manner, all problems that arose.

"As a result the museum has now, by gift from him, several interesting pieces of Egyptian furniture which he considered as properly ours because he had found them on our side of the line. He also gave the museum a number of alabaster jars which were found by Howard Carter in the early work in the Valley of the Kings, these being among the few things they did find, until the present season. They were in a fragmentary condition and, as the fragments have still to be put together, they are not yet on exhibition."

In addition to these interesting notes on the Museum's relations with Lord Carnarvon it publishes a short letter from him written in response to the action of the Board of Trustees of the Museum, meeting last January, when they passed a resolution to offer the service of the Museum's Egyptian expedition to Lord Carnarvon. Lord Carnarvon's letter was written upon his receipt of the resolution, a document which he said he would always keep, and felt that if the great task before him was completed it would be because of the Museum's aid.

Among the recent acquisitions which the Museum announced this month is a fine Rubens, "The Portrait of a Man," a panel, showing a jovial person with an enormous beard, from the Marnius Collection, Cologne, and now hanging in Gallery 27, the Flemish Room.

There is an important acquisition of thirteen pieces of Jersey glass of the eighteenth century which is exhibited in Wing H of the basement, the museum having a representative collection of early American glass already.

On quite different lines is a head of Buddha in wood, Khmer art, twelfth century, and there are small but important additions to the classical department. A special exhibition, which opens today, is one of American handicrafts which has been assembled and circulated by the American Federation of Arts. This is composed of jewelry, enamels, carved ivory, silver, pewter, pottery and decorated china, with many interesting textiles, stained glass, lacquer, &c. It is in Gallery 7, and will continue through May. This is a circulating exhibition and has already been shown in six museums in different parts of the country, closing its tour in New York at the Metropolitan.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Edison returned yesterday to their home at Llewellyn Park, West Orange, N. DERY CORPORATION REPORTED SOLVENT

PUT ASSETS AT $16,613,614

Suggest Increasing Working Capital by Merging Cedar Cliff Silk Company and Selling Realty.

The first report of the receivers of the D. G. Dery Corporation, manufacturers of broad silks, filed yesterday with Federal Judge A. N. Hand, describes the present condition of the concern as "distinctly encouraging."

The Dery company passed into the control of George A. Post, Joseph M. Proskauer and John P. Maguire, as receivers in equity, on March 29, on an application by E. Gerli Company, Inc., a creditor with a claim of $159,015 due on trade acceptances. Total assets of the corporation are estimated at $16,613,614, and liabilities at $16,314,614. The corporation owns silk mills in New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Virginia and Massachusetts.

The preliminary survey, according to the report, indicates that the corporation has a working capital of $780,633, and that this could be increased to $1,500,000 by the sale of real property and the consolidation of the corporation with the Cedar Cliff Silk Company, the stock of which is owned by the Dery corporation.

Appended to the report is a balance sheet which shows that the fixed assets of the corporation are the same as shown in a statement prepared prior to the receivership. It is explained that a present working capital of $780,663 has been found by computing the values in the inventory on the basis of $7.75 a pound for raw silk and $8.25 for raw silk in process.

According to the report, the Cedar Cliff Silk Company has a net working capital of $400,000 and owns 51 per cent. of the Terra Realty Company, which owns an apartment house at 3 West Seventy-fifth Street and the Crolsic Building at 200 Fifth Avenue. Sale of the interest in this realty, the report says, would add $350,000 to the company's capital. Then the report reads:

"In the period extending from March 27 to April 30, 1923, during which the receivers have been in charge of the operation of the D. G. Dery Corporation, the gross sales have amounted to $2,515,384, and the advances from factors, which on March 26 stood at $1,040,974.84, have been reduced on April 30 to $505,572 by sales of merchandise consigned to and held by the factors prior to the appointment of the receivers.

"While a sound business policy probably dictates the sale or discontinuance of a small number of plants, in the opinion of the receivers the plants as a whole are in a state of good operating efficiency, and the direct manufacturing cost compares favorably with that of the company's competitors, and the mills are well situated from the point of view of labor supply and other conditions and should be able to hold their own in competition with other manufacturers."

The report states that the essential requirements are additional working capital and new executive management to co-ordinate the selling and productive activities and maintain consistent policies.

The balance sheet attached to the report states that the current liabilities are $5,272,878, and the total current assets $8,053,511, with investments of $1,081,892 and fixed assets $8,338,844. In the list of liabilities appear payments due on mortgages amounting to $292,500 and $4,000,000 of outstanding first mortgage bonds.

The list of current assets includes $264,141 in cash and $3,259,170 in receivable accounts. The list of liabilities includes $3,980,969 in trade acceptances and $292,194 due to subsidiaries. According to the figures in the lists the surplus amounts to $2,010,786. An alleged indebtedness of $1,500,000 due to the corporation from D. G. Dery does not appear in the balance sheet, nor is any mention made of the recent charge that the inventory was overstated by $1,350,000 when the corporation was seeking financial help.

COURT HOLDS SMOKER TO TEST TOBACCO

Magistrate Passes Out Cigars in Fraud Case to See if They Are All Havana.

The unusual sight of lawyers and witnesses voraciously smoking cigars in open court was revealed yesterday afternoon in the Commercial Fraude Court when Magistrate George W. Simpson held a hearing on a charge that the Phoenix Cigar Corporation of 635 East Seventy-fifth Street had misrepresented a brand of cigars.

The hearing followed an investigation by the American Fair Trade League of 71 West Twenty-third Street into complaints that the corporation was misrepresenting cigars containing Porto Rican and domestic tobacco as "Havana" tobacco from Cuba. Alexander H. Kaminsky, counsel for the league, appeared as complainant.

It developed during evidence presented by Assistant District Attorney Max Salomon that boxes of cigars manufactured by the corporation had been purchased by the prosecutor and their seals kept intact until yesterday's hearing. These boxes were marked "Havana," but witnesses who smoked some of them and broke others apart to examine them, declared that they contained only 25 per cent. of Havana in some instances and no Havana in others. They swore that the remainder of each cigar contained tobacco raised in Connecticut and other States.

Some of this domestic tobacco, one witness explained, was raised from seed brought to this country from Cuba. Other witnesses said that the best way to tell the pure Havana cigar from the substitute was to smoke one. Whereupon the Magistrate granted the lawyers for both sides, several of the witnesses and others in the court who professed to an intimacy with pure Havana cigars to light up. In a few minutes a large hole had been made in one of the largest boxes of cigars which had been purchased by the prosecutor as evidence, and billows of tobacco smoke drifted through the court room windows.

Magistrate Simpson was seen to clutch his nostrils shortly before he announced that he would hold the corporation for trial in Special Sessions on a charge of deceiving the public by mislabeling its product.

Complain of Price-Fixing on Tobacco

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Complaints have been issued by the Federal Trade Commission against the American Tobacco Company, P. Lorillard Company, Inc., the Ohio Wholesale Grocers' Association and the Cleveland Tobacco Jobbers' Association, charging agreements to maintain specified standard prices for certain tobacco products. Another complaint, issued against Mills Brothers of San Francisco, wholesalers of coffee, teas and spices, charged that uncompetitive methods were used for the enforcement of a system of minimum resale prices.

TO DISCUSS CUBAN BANK.

Reserve Board Will Hear Boston Plan for Branch on Monday.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—The Federal Reserve Board will hear on Monday the application of the Boston Federal Reserve Bank for permission to establish a Cuban branch. Governor Crissinger made public tonight a telegram addressed to Chairman J. A. McCord of the Atlanta bank, which said the board saw no reason for postponing the hearing, as had been urged by Senator Harris of Georgia, John K. Ottley, a director of the Atlanta bank, and others.

The telegram reported that the board had received several telegrams from the Atlanta Bank District protesting against favorable action on the Boston bank's application. All contending that to permit the Boston's bank's entry into Cuba would be an infringement on territorial rights of the Atlanta bank. The latter now has about $40,000,000 in currency in circulation in Cuba, and, it was asserted to make a change would handicap it greatly.

Mr. Crissinger's telegram made it clear that the board would deal with the question so that the Atlanta bank would not suffer, and declared that the alarm which seemed to prevail throughout the Atlanta district was due to misapprehension.

"Full provision will be made in case any agency is authorized to insure that your bank shall be given facilities the same as those existing for the redemption of its unfit notes in Cuba and the placing in circulation of new and fit notes as may be required," Mr. Crissinger said.

It is reported that a score of prominent New York financiers will support the Boston plan, and members of the Reserve Board said they expected several of them would attend the hearing to explain their position.

BANKERS DISCUSS POLICIES.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., May 4.—The second day's session of the Investment Bankers' Association of America here today was given over to business conferences and discussion of committee reports to be laid before the association's convention in Washington in October.

Reports were submitted by McPherson Browning, Chairman of the Marine Securities Committee, and R. H. Morrell, representing the Shipping Board, was present to interpret for the Government what the stand of the investment bankers will be on securities of this nature.

J. R. Edwards of the Fifth-Third National Bank, Cincinnati, presented the report of the Government Bond Committee, and the report of the Committee on Taxation by Eugene E. Thompson, Chairman, of Washington.

The Board of Governors discussed policies that will be presented at the Washington convention following the reports of Thomas N. Dysart, Chairman of the Legislation Committee; Thomas B. Gannett, Chairman of the Constitution and By-Laws Committee; Morris F. Fox, Chairman of the Real Estate Securities Committee; Henry R. Hayes, Chairman of the Public Service Securities Committee, and Ray Morris, Chairman of the Railroad Securities Committee.

Glen Collins Faces Extradition.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—The Supreme Court, for the third time, declined today to intervene to prevent the extradition to India of Charles Glen Collins, charged with having obtained jewelry at Bombay through false pretenses. At the request of the State Department the case was advanced for hearing, the British Government being desirous of ending it. Collins is now in custody of the United States Marshal at New Orleans. The case has been fought for several years.

Dress Linens Called For.

In the imported lightweight dress goods, linens have had by far the biggest call, according to a leading seller of these fabrics here. With all contracts filled, this importer says he will have sold 22,000 pieces of Irish dress linens for the season. Voiles, both white and colored, are also selling well. Dotted swisses, because of their lowness in price, are likewise in good demand, this having improved much during the last ten days. The cutters-up have been buying well, but the jobbers have been notably increasing their orders. A St. Louis store is said to have made record purchases of dotted swisses recently. The demand for organdies is described as fair, with imported ratines also in about the same volume.

Luggage Sales Are Improving

Under the stimulus of consumer buying, retailers have recently expanded their luggage purchases. Interest has been heightened by the fact that, although the cost of raw materials has substantially advanced, the wholesale quotations are still on a level which enables this merchandise to be retailed at a rather attractive level. Consumer purchases for the early travel season are described as good, and the indications are that such buying will show further gains. Furthermore, the approaching start of the vacation and week-end season will put still more consumers into the market. Any surplus stocks of luggage that may have been in the manufacturers' hands earlier are no longer, it is said, a disturbing factor.

Novelty for Beach Wear.

A local wholesaler is offering a novelty for beach wear that he says is meeting with a very favorable response from retailers. It is a rubberized kerchief that may be worn as an attractive bathing cap or across the shoulders as a scarf. The article is made of a highly mercerized batiste, waterproofed by a special process. It is made in either square shape, 28 inches in size, or in the form of a triangle. Five bright color combinations are available with borders, the design going through to the other side. The colors, according to the manufacturer, are fast. Wholesale prices of the square kerchief are $3 per dozen and of the triangle $4.25 per dozen.

Jewelry Sales on the Gain.

The turn for the better in the jewelry business that was expected after the first of May is already giving signs of materializing. Men on the road are turning in good orders, not only on regular stock goods, but on special work as well. Some of the silver-plated pieces there is a strong call for almost all mountings that can be set with diamonds, both singly or in combination with emeralds and some of the other precious stones. Flexible platinum bracelets show up very strongly in this merchandise. A summary of the business done by leading houses from the beginning of the year to May 1 shows a notable gain over that for the same four months last year, one prominent concern reporting a gain of about 35 per cent. for the period. Platinum is $2 an ounce cheaper than it was here recently, the respective quotations being $116 an ounce for the soft metal, $134 for the medium and $132 an ounce for the hard.

Higher Prices for Silk Hose.

Apropos of recent comment concerning the probability of still higher prices on Fall lines of the better grades of silk hosiery, a trade authority asserted yesterday that they are inevitable unless a sharp break in raw silk comes very soon. The manufacturers, he pointed out, are not "covered" for the coming season, and each purchase of silk on a rising market means a higher average cost of the material that goes into the stockings. Although "crack double extra" silks are now not far from the $10-a-pound mark, by averaging current purchases with previous ones some manufacturers can figure as low as $8 a pound on the silk that is going in work for present delivery. Some cheap silk that makes this average possible will be used up in the next couple of months, however, and then the production costs will have to be figured entirely on the advanced prices. Only a sharp break in raw silks can save the situation from the buyers' viewpoint, and, as this is apparently not in prospect, buyers are urged by the authority in question to cover their advance needs as fully as possible before additional rises in the finished goods are forced.

Coal Demand Continues Large.

The advancing season brings with it no letup in the demand for the domestic sizes of hard coal, Seward's Journal will say today. While consumption has dropped to practically a mid-summer basis in most localities, there is such a strong desire on the part of the public to lay in a supply of fuel against next Winter's requirements that the market has scarcely reflected the passing of coal-burning weather. Retailers were sorely disappointed by the amount of company coal received during April, but the shortage is laid to several contributing factors. Not the least of these is the abnormal demand. In the bituminous trade the volume of tonnage moving, as reflected by the official figures of production, shows little, if any, falling off.

Gray Goods Very Dull.

The further slump in cotton yesterday put an almost total check on trading in gray goods here. Sellers did try to push goods, but it was known that second hands would favorably consider bids of 11⅝ cents for spot 39-inch 68-72 printcloths. First hands asked a quarter more, and they also asked an eighth more than second hands for 38½-inch 64-60s. The latter would sell that construction at 10½ cents to a good buyer, and it was said that they would also go as low as 9 cents on 38½-inch 60-48s. In the sheetings the market continued dull, based on 11 cents, asked, for 37-inch 48-square, four-yard cloths. Sateens and the other specialties also were featureless, though it was said that second hands would take 18 cents for 39-inch 4.35-yard sateens if somebody would pay it.

Buying of Women's Neckwear.

Some improvement in sales of women's neckwear is reported by wholesalers here as the result of the recent warmer weather. Camisoles and vestees in various laces continue to be the most active items, although an increasing amount of the buyers' attention is paid to be directed to other and cut sets. Some of the wholesalers during the dullness have turned to other items. One of them is producing lace and ribbon rosettes for dress trimmings and for millinery purposes. He says that retailers have taken well to these articles, which have rosebuds in the centre in colored tinsel combinations. They wholesale at from $2 to $3 per dozen.

Wool Crepes Are Featured.

In the Fall lines of French woolens recently opened by the Herbert J. Lederer Corporation, the wool crepes stand out as having met with notable response from buyers. These fabrics are featured in Jacquettes, as well as plain effects, with the cocoa and wood brown shades accorded marked favor. One of the ranges is sold up to the first of next year. Twills are well to the fore. An artificial silk and wool fabric, called soleiana, intended for outer sports garments, is described as selling well. The concern thinks well of woven wool brocades in floral designs for suits and for coats in the heavier weight. It is also stressing high-grade velours for coats, and a novelty fabric similar to a camel's hair cloth, known as teddy bear, is given prominence for coats and skirts, but principally for children's garments.

Spring Underwear Opening Soon.

Some kind of an agreement will be reached during the present month on the question of Spring, 1924, openings of knit goods, according to the current bulletin of the National Association of Hosiery and Underwear Manufacturers. With the manufacturers meeting at Atlantic City and underwear buyers arranging for a pow-wow in Chicago in a week or so, there are enough signs to indicate that the matter has passed beyond the guessing stage. It is estimated that the jobbers, as a whole, have still to place about half of their Fall business, and some manufacturers think that the placing of this business will stiffen the market sufficiently to justify the opening of the new season. Some duplicating on heavy goods by jobbing buyers took place this week, with prospects bright for more in the very near future.

GIVE $110,080 FUND FOR TANNING STUDY

WORK BEGAN 2 YEARS AGO

Important Discoveries in Curing of Hides Have Been Obtained by Research.

An appropriation of $110,080 was authorized by the final session yesterday of the Tanners' Council of America at the Hotel Biltmore as the first cost of laboratory research equipment for scientific development and improvement in the industry and its advancement in foreign trade. It is proposed to begin the erection of a building for the laboratories at the University of Cincinnati. The first experiment in laboratory work was started at the university two years ago, in the Medical School Building. During that period Professor George D. McLaughlin has obtained important discoveries relating to the curing of hides.

Industrial education at the University of Cincinnati was discussed by Dr. Frederick C. Hicks, its President, in which he described the courses of training and their application by the students in practical work in factories. Dr. S. S. Edwards, head of the School of Technology of the Pratt Institute, Brooklyn, which is said to be the only American college providing a regular course in tanning education, said six students had graduated and had entered the tanning industry.

Dr. B. M. Anderson of the Chase National Bank told the session that general business conditions were not yet normal throughout the country. He cited as an example that unusual prosperity is in evidence in the industry at Grand Rapids, Mich., while a city in Iowa is correspondingly dull at this time.

"The trouble with your industry is that Europe has stopped taking your leather," Dr. Anderson went on. "It is of vital importance, therefore, that you recover the European trade. My advice is to produce for the market in sight, but keep a large margin of liquid assets. Don't speed up production or bid up the price of labor. Go ahead, but don't play for risky stakes."

Other speakers included William M. Steuart, Director of the Census, Washington, and Theodore F. Kuper, general counsel for the New York Petroleum Exchange.

WINS $1,000,000 IN TAXES.

New Jersey State Treasury Gains by Decision Against Railroads.

TRENTON, N. J., May 4.—The State Treasury will receive approximately $1,000,000 in railroad taxes over those already paid for 1921 in accordance with an opinion handed down by the Court of Errors and Appeals here today. The Court sustained the Supreme Court, which held that the State Board of Taxes and Assessments proceeded properly when it applied the average tax rate of $3.46 for 1921 to railroad property assessed for that year. The railroads contended that the average rate of $3.26, fixed for 1920, should have been applied.

Sixty-four railroads are involved in the appeals. Subsequent legislation has removed the uncertainty in the taxing act which formed the basis of the litigation just disposed of by the opinion.

LONDON LIVING COSTS HIGHEST IN 18 MONTHS

Economist Index Number Shows Heavy Increase in Food and Textile Prices.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 4.—An upward movement in wholesale prices is recorded by The Economist in its index number as at end of April, the total rising by 46 points, to 4,440, the highest point touched since the end of November, 1921. This was entirely due to the movements of two of the groups—primary foodstuffs and textiles. In other directions changes were very small or neutralized. Index figures for April were:

Cereals and meat	832
Other food products (tea, sugar, &c.)	763
Textiles	1,196
Minerals	834
Miscellaneous (rubber, timber, oils &c.)	797
Total	4,440

The percentage was 201.5. The figures show considerable upward movement since their lowest last November. The percentage figure for November was 190.4; December, 193.8; January, 195.5; February, 200.1; March, 199.

June 1, 1922	4,373	May 1, 1911	2,584

The highest point reached in the monthly averages during or since the war was 5,852 on April 1, 1920. The average of Aug. 1, 1914, was 2,565.

WANTS ECONOMIC TIE.

Japanese Financier Urges Americans to Study Japan's Markets.

Raita Fujiyama, President of the National Federation of Chambers of Commerce of Japan, President of the Nippon Sugar Refining Company and Chairman of the Board of the Imperial Commercial Bank of Japan, was the guest of honor at a luncheon given yesterday by Irving T. Bush, President of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York.

"We have been talking a lot about increased trade between the United States and Japan and volumes have been written about more friendly relations," the Japanese financier said, "but the real progress will be made when the United States and Japan develop a real, strong economic tie. That is what I am anxious to bring about.

"The United States opened up Japan to civilization and world trade, but the Europeans, coming later, obtained the business. The reason for this is that the Europeans studied Japan's needs, which is something that the Americans have never done. The big requirement of the moment is for Americans to visit Japan in the same way that Judge Elbert H. Gary, Darwin P. Kingsley and Seymour Cromwell did a few years ago. They should stay a while, study our requirements and then open up the business."

THE WEEK'S PRICE TREND.

Declines Were Numerous, but Few of Them Were Important.

Fifty-five of the 85 revisions seen in Dun's list of wholesale commodities prices this week were downward, the excess of declines over advances being the largest in some time. Last week there were but 31 of the former to 29 of the latter. In the 79 changes the corresponding week a year ago, 59 were upward. Despite the general downward trend of the current week's list, specific features of importance were few.

The following table gives the minimum wholesale prices quoted on selected standard commodities this week. They are corrected to yesterday, and with them are given comparative prices for last week and the corresponding week a year ago:

No change in flour was seen in the local market for provisions this week. Middle Western lard declined, and bacon was slightly weaker. Hams did not change. At Chicago live beef and live sheep were unchanged, but live hogs dropped a little. Mess pork was steady, with short ribs lower.

Butter was firmer in the list for dairy products, due to a sustained demand and smaller shipments than had been looked for. As a result the best creamery stock moved up 1¼ cents a pound for the week. First quality fresh-gathered eggs showed no change, but the near-by fancy ones went up two cents a dozen. Cheese was unchanged. The entire list of dairy products continues higher than at this time last year, with the margin between the two sets of prices smallest in the case of the eggs.

In the fresh and dried fruits the only change was a drop in evaporated apples. The revisions in the vegetables, while all downward, were in the less important articles. Beans and imported rice supplied them. No. 7 Rio coffee was again higher, but the teas continued their unbroken steadiness. The only revision in the spices was a rise in black Singapore pepper. Both fine granulated and 96-test raw sugar fell off in price. They continued well above the corresponding 1922 levels, however.

The changes in the grains, for the first time in a long while, were all downward. Hay was the only item in the list that did not change. In the leathers no changes were quoted either way, while in the hides only a rise in heavy native cows and declines in No. 1 buffs and No. 1 extremes were seen. Hemp declined.

In the lumber list there were fourteen changes, of which ten were downward. The metals also showed an excess of declines, though it was less marked than that of lumber. Tin continued the only advance of the week, with declines supplied by copper, spelter and lead. Eighteen fluctuations took place in the combined list for drugs, fats, oils, dyestuffs and oils, and seven were advances. There were five revisions, though among them was a reduction of $1 a flask in quicksilver. The only change in the naval stores was a drop in turpentine.

Both Brazilian and Eastern crude rubbers were lower this week, and several declines in the prices of tobacco were listed. The raw silk market continued to rise, and the basic Japanese silk moved up 15 cents a pound during the week. Several grades of domestic wool were also quoted higher.

There was but little feature to the textile trades during the week, coming from examining a list of a couple of well-known silk lines, not much done in that trade. In woolens and cottons there was even less, though in the latter the pricing of certain lines of unbranded bleached goods at slightly lower figures was interpreted by some as indicative of lower market values. Unfinished cottons were weaker, and the same was true of the burlaps.

FOR INDUSTRIAL FEDERATION

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 4.—A movement looking to the formation of a national federation of State manufacturers associations was launched today by J. Phillip Bird of Jersey City, President of the Manufacturers Association of New Jersey, in his annual address at the convention of the organization, in session at the Hotel Traymore. More than 300 manufacturers were attending.

Mr. Bird proposed a national federation as a solution of problems that arise in interstate trade. He said the State associations are not giving the amount or quality of service they should to members who are concerned with difficulties arising through the extension of their business beyond the borders of their own States.

Frederick Hoyler of Amboy predicted a bright future for business. Labor, fully employed, more could be done, he looks for the Government would industry a favor in permitting the entrance of immigrants to meet the demands of commerce, but they must come from those sections of Europe which easily assimilated by the nation, he said.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

For the second consecutive day and for the third time since the beginning of the week, a decline on the Stock Exchange occurred yesterday along with a simultaneous decline in the active commodity markets. Wheat went a full cent lower after an early recovery. Cotton, moving similarly, ended with a loss which brought it fully 2 cents a pound below the price of a week ago and 4% below the season's high figure, touching the lowest spot price since Jan. 10. The sugar market sold off fractionally and, during much of the day, the stock market was as weak as in the two or three days preceding.

For the week's unsettlement in commodity prices there have been reasons peculiar to the different markets; in sugar, for instance, the effort at a spectacular "consumers' strike," in cotton the conflicting estimates of the "carry over," in grain the widely varying estimates concerning condition or probable yield, and so forth. Nevertheless, so much uniformity in a downward movement usually means one of three conclusions by the markets, whether right or wrong—that supply will be larger than had been expected, or that demand will be smaller, or else that the facilities for speculative maintenance of prices will be less easy to obtain.

The last-named influence would presume a tightening money market. Of this there is at present no visible indication. But the very unusual magnitude to which the loans of private banks have risen in the present season, while not necessarily abnormal in itself, at least suggests that continuance of expansion on the scale of the first three months of 1923 could not occur without positive effect on money rates. If this were a period marked by the speculative spirit and economic illusions of 1919, it might be inferred that even rising money rates, later in the year, would be treated with indifference. But proof is no longer necessary of the difference between this year and that in the temper and attitude of the general public.

Although the stock market's general trend was downward yesterday, with numerous net declines of 1 per cent. or more in upward stocks, the day's movement was irregular, being in fact made up of alternating declines and recoveries. Few stocks closed higher than on the preceding day, but nearly all ended at a considerable recovery from the day's lowest. Foreign exchange rates also, after a period of uncertainty, grew stronger at the last. Tendency to recovery of this sort, in speculative markets at the end of a week of almost uninterrupted swing in one direction, is traditional. Another week will show more clearly whether the downward movement has or has not actually spent its force.

The mercantile trade reviews seem to indicate country-wide activity among retail purchasers but further slackening of the pace in wholesale trade. Even in retail markets, the report is that "signs of resistance to higher prices" are plainly in sight, while "not all of the price increases in primary channels have yet been passed on to the counters." Dun computes from a list of 338 commodities a decline this week in 55 as against an advance in 30; the largest predominance of declines of any week thus far in 1923.

The lower markets of the week comprise most of the metals, most of the grains, cotton and cotton cloths, and this is ascribed with sufficient plausibility to "the effect of record production becoming more sharply defined." But by none of the mercantile experts is this slackening of activity taken as an evil omen. On the contrary, the business community itself seems to welcome the change, as promising "to avoid overextension and discourage price inflation."

$82,678,000 BONDS OFFERED IN WEEK

OLD ISSUES HOLD UP WELL

Withstand the Decline in Stocks Although Buyers' Strike Probably Affected Sugar.

An increase in railroad and public utility bonds offered in the New York market during the week ended May 4 brought the total up to $82,678,000, with a single exception the largest amount that has been offered here since the week ended Jan. 20, 1923. This total compared with $34,069,000 last week and $120,020,000 in the corresponding week of last year.

The turnover of old bonds on the New York Stock Exchange was maintained well throughout the week, despite the decline in the stocks. With the exception of the speculative issues and some of the unseasoned bonds, the remainder of the market held up in good shape, an average of bonds of forty representative corporations showing a decline of .16 in the week. Railroad bonds were comparatively steady, but sugar bonds, due, it is believed in some financial circles, to the influence of a threatened buyers' strike, sold off.

The new offerings of this week and last, divided into groups, were as follows:

Group	This Week	Last Week
Railroads	$33,437,000	$14,003,000
Public Utility	20,900,000
Industrial	16,500,000	29,560,000
Municipal	7,641,000	9,516,000
Farm Loan	4,000,000	1,000,000
Total	$82,678,000	$54,069,000

The largest single issue of the week was that of $13,500,000 Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway equipment trusts offered by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and National City Company, while there were two issues of $10,000,000, one of the Illinois Power and Light Corporation offered by a syndicate headed by E. H. Robbins & Sons, and the other of Empire Gas and Fuel Company offered by a syndicate headed by Halsey, Stuart & Co.

Municipal issues were fairly numerous but lacked any large offerings, there being but a single issue of more than $2,000,000, that of the Pittsburgh $3,000,000 school bonds.

News of the German offer of reparation settlement to the French reacted on the foreign bonds and sent the average of ten bonds from 100.54, the high point of the year, reached on May 1, to 100.50 but foreign issues were comparatively steady throughout the week with considerable indications of buying from abroad.

Mexican 4's reached a new high for the year and the 5's equaled the high of the year as the result of an anticipation of an early call for the $500,000,000 of Mexican bonds. Later advices from bankers in a position to know were to the effect that the call would not go out for another week or ten days as a result of revisions made in the advertisement of the call. The English requested a change in the advertisement, which necessitated a proof being submitted, that in turn will have to be sent to Germany before it can be approved finally by cable. Assurance was given out that this was the last obstacle in the way of this call.

Liberty bonds developed a much steadier tone during the week, and constantly showed indications of steady buying, which gave rise to the supposition in some quarters that the British weer in the market, but bond dealers said it was impossible to ascertain whether tthe buying was being done for foreign account or was just the natural condition that prevailed on the New York market.

ROAD OVERCOMES DEFICIT.

Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha Earnings Are Compared.

The Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha Railway Company yesterday issued its report of earnings for the year 1922, showing net income of $1,177,209 against a deficit in 1921 of $285,677. Despite labor troubles during 1922 the road was able to reduce its operating expenses $2,005,263, which more than offset a reduction of $336,401 in operating revenues. The company's income account follows:

	1922	1921
Operating expenses	22,297,051	24,392,314
Net operating expenses	5,503,955	3,745,093
Net operating income	3,812,671	2,095,949
Net income	3,177,929	* 285,677

* Deficit.

The company's balance sheet disclosed total assets of $100,750,080, including total investments of $87,548,154. Current assets totaled $7,872,130 against total liabilities of $4,730,666, cash having amounted to $4,100,419. The company's corporate surplus was $7,800,325 of which $6,606,031 was in the profit and loss account.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

Sterling Declines to Previous Low Point—French Steady, Scandinavians Lower.

The decline in sterling to $4.63¾, the previous low point for the year reached one week ago, was the outstanding change reported in yesterday's dealings. Comparatively little business was done at this level, however, before buying orders in sufficient volume turned the rate back to $4.63¾, where it finished for a net loss of ¼ cent. International banking circles are not surprised at the action of sterling in its steady and orderly recession, being of the opinion that the softness has been due to the accumulation of funds for the next debt settlement, and aided this week by the unsatisfactory condition of the French-German affairs.

French again maintained its strength of Thursday, going above that day's best price to 6.70 cents, with a minor reaction to 6.68 near the close. Belgian francs were equally firm at 5.78½ cents. German marks showed a better tone, while the Scandinavians as a group were weak.

Japanese yen featured the Far Easterns, demand continuing unabated with 49¼ cents for Yokohama checks, a new high for the year. South Americans were dull.

In the subjoined table the quotation on sterling represents dollars and decimals of a dollar; all others represent cents and decimals of a cent. Quotations preceded by the decimal mark indicate a price measured in fractions of a cent.

PITTSBURGH & W. VA. MAY CHANGE HANDS

Stock Rise to 44½ Reflects Buying That May Mean New Ownership.

POSSIBLE BUYER UNKNOWN

Clarence E. Tuttle and Three Railroad Companies Are Rumored as Purchasers.

Recent buying of the stock of the Pittsburgh & West Virginia Railway Company, which yesterday went to a new high record for the year at 44½, has given rise to rumors in the financial district of a possible change in control. The identity of the prospective owners is not known. The New York Central Railroad Company, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, the Baltimore & Ohio, and a coal operator have been mentioned as possible buyers.

Directors and officers of the company, it was said, were in the dark concerning the situation. When the annual meeting of stockholders is held next Monday the officers will face the interesting proposition of finding whether or not they still have their jobs. In the event of a change of control, it was suggested, a change in management might follow; although the chances would seem to favor the keeping of the present officers.

The common stock of the company has been one of the few bright spots in the entire group of stocks traded in on the New York Stock Exchange during the past two weeks. It has continued to advance in the face of general price recessions. The stock at its highest point yesterday was up 10⅝ points from its low for this year, representing an appreciation of 33 per cent. The volume of trading has been relatively heavy. The fact that enough shares have changed hands in a month to swing the balance of control has given rise to the present rumors.

According to one report, a life insurance company which has been a stockholder and has had a hand in framing the policy of the company, has been liquidating its holdings. These holdings, the street has heard, have been passing into the hands of Clarence E. Tuttle, a coal operator. The fact that the Pittsburgh & West Virginia taps an important coal field tends to give weight to this report. Unofficially it was stated that Mr. Tuttle admitted having been a heavy buyer of the stock, although the extent of his purchases was not divulged.

Another deduction, which was not confirmed, was that the three railroad companies named were in the market for the stock. During the past year the road has made marked headway in earnings. The capital structure consists of $3,100,000 of 6 per cent. cumulative preferred stock and $30,500,000 of common stock of $100 par value, the latter paying no dividends.

Under the Interstate Commerce Commission consolidation plan the road is grouped in the Nickel Plate-Lehigh Valley system. It was stated in banking quarters that this fact would probably keep either the Pennsylvania or the New York Central from seeking to get direct control. Total mileage of the road is only 166 miles, including both owned and leased trackage. Its chief value lies in the coal properties.

CHILE COMPANIES REPORT.

Anaconda Subsidiaries Reduce Deficit to $1,458,608 in 1922.

The Chile Copper Company and the Chile Exploration Company, which are now controlled by the Anaconda Copper Company, for last year's report combined operating revenue of $19,576,634 against $9,359,266 in the previous year. After payment of operating expenses, interest on bonds, taxes and other charges there was a net income for the year of $4,886,954 against a deficit of $5,446,468 in 1921. The deficit for 1921, however, includes reserves for depreciation, depletion and other accounts. After allowing for such deductions in 1922, the company reports a deficit of $1,458,608.

John D. Ryan, Chairman of Directors and Cornelius F. Kelley, President, in a joint statement to stockholders said in part:

"The operations of your Company were conducted without interruption and with satisfactory results during the year.

"The average price received for all copper delivered during the year was 12.740 cents per pound. Despite this very low price operations for the year resulted in a profit of $7,907,818, which, together with miscellaneous receipts of $669,531 made a total income for the year of $8,058,349. Against this, however, were charges for taxes, miscellaneous items, interest on bonds and amortisation of capital and obsolete materials, amounting to a total of $9,058,957. The year closed with your company in a sound financial condition, having cash and marketable securities on hand amounting to $14,581,557."

FIXES OREGON ROAD VALUE.

Commerce Commission Holds Oregon-Washington Co. at $129,810,913

WASHINGTON, May 4.—A tentative valuation of $129,810,913 was placed today by the Interstate Commerce Commission on the property of the Oregon-Washington Railroad and Navigation Company, that being the value of the system on June 30, 1916. The company's own book estimate was $156,642,589, while the corporation has outstanding stocks and bonds with a par value of $128,940,071.

The company is one of the largest subsidiaries of the Union Pacific. Included in the valuation was the Des Chutes Railroad in Oregon and two or three smaller roads. The figures cover the lines pertaining to 2,520 miles of railroad in Oregon, Washington and Idaho. The finding will be presented to the Union Pacific Company for consideration and criticism, and if finally adopted will become the basis of rate-fixing policies applying to it.

Canadian Crops Are 2 Weeks Late.

Canada's crops, with the exceptions of those in British Columbia, are two weeks late, according to the first report of the year made public yesterday by the Bank of Montreal. In British Columbia it is reported that the crops are farther than usual. Slightly smaller wheat acreage is expected, and it is said winter wheat wintered well. Seeding has recently started in Ontario, but is not yet under way in Quebec or the Maritime Provinces.

RECOVERY FOLLOWS BREAK IN COTTON

Net low ground was reached in cotton yesterday during a break which carried July contracts to 25.20. This represented a low of 5¼ cents from high levels of the advance less than two months ago. Contracts appeared from all sections of the country, even houses with Southern connections being active sellers. The foreign cotton trade was depressed by Germany's offer on reparations, and surroundings in the country were not such as to encourage support. Definite buying power has been conspicuously lacking for some time as far as old crops are concerned, but the feature for two days proved to be the demand for the next crop. A recovery of over 40 points occurred in late trading, leaving a decline of 18 points on near months, compared with a 10-point gain in January.

While early news failed to provide any important event upon which to place greater confidence in the outlook, a quite general covering movement occurred immediately following the opening. This was surprisingly uniform, as it extended in all three exchanges. After declining sharply before the local opening, Liverpool reacted until virtually all early loss had been regained. New Orleans displayed greater steadiness and for half an hour a great deal of cotton was taken from the ring. Whereas it had been difficult to dispose of July contracts below 25¾ cents late on Thursday, July arose to 26 cents, with October nearly 24 cents before the covering demand subsided. Then, without warning, cotton began to come out in increasing volume, Liverpool broke half a cent without a halt and closed at the bottom. Instead of the earlier demand, few orders appeared and July rushed downward into new low ground for the movement. Below 25.60 stop-loss orders were uncovered, without support at 25½ cents that would steady the market. Several large selling orders forced quotations through the even figure, and under successive waves of liquidation July sold around 25¼ cents within an hour after the break first started.

The balance of the session furnished one of the most erratic trading affairs experienced in some weeks. Recoveries of 10 to 15 points only served to bring out more cotton which carried prices off to new low figures. A final rush early in the afternoon sent July to 25.20 when a gradual recovery followed. Force of the selling movement seemed to have been exhausted for the moment with more general covering orders from various quarters. The recovery was maintained until July advanced forty-five points from low records of the session. Throughout the day new crop months moved around in sympathy with the course of July. Execution of selling orders against purchases of July at 170 to 180 points caused a break which carried October to about 23½ cents. Here a steady stream of trade buying occurred in all three active positions which absorbed contracts for sale. Demand for October came not only from mills but for speculative account. Cotton sold several months ago at higher prices was covered quite extensively during the session. There were general rains throughout Georgia and Alabama with showers in Arkansas and Mississippi. Elsewhere weather continued favorable. Predictions indicated somewhat showery conditions in several States for today.

Week end figures showed spinner's takings 160,000 bales compared with 234,000 last year and for the season 10,555,000 against 10,195,000 last year. With the amount in sight 72,000 against 157,000 last year, the visible decreased 73,000 bales compared with 76,000 last year. The visible supply of American is now 1,815,000 against 3,320,000 a year ago.

ALL TANKERS NOW WORKING

Statement of Subsidiary's Oil Operations Show $1,800,000 Loans Paid Off.

The annual report of the Atlantic Gulf & West Indies Lines, issued to stockholders yesterday, shows a net loss of $3,582,736, against a profit of $1,781,127 in 1921. Franklin D. Mooney, President of the company, in a statement to stockholders, characterized 1922 as the "worst in the history of the shipping industry."

The detailed income account for the year shows operating revenues of $31,947,882, against $40,717,775 in 1921. Operating expenses and depreciation charges were $32,441,206, against $36,467,717, and taxes amounted to $129,772, against $182,729 in 1921, leaving an operating loss of $623,097, against net income of $5,067,329 in 1921. On Dec. 31, 1922, the company's balance sheet showed a profit and loss surplus of $17,353,551, against $22,301,182 at the end of 1921.

In his statement to stockholders Mr. Mooney said that "difficulties were multiplied by reason of competition of the Government, whose steamships were employed in some of the same trades as those of the company. Notwithstanding these handicaps, the management, through the practice of strict economy and improvement of business conditions toward the close of the year, is able to present a statement indicating that all expenses, including interest, have been promptly met and a substantial amount earned toward depreciation."

Regarding the position of the company's tanker fleet, Mr. Mooney said that some of the tankers were idle during the greater part of last year because of lack of demand. All tankers are now in service, he said.

Regarding the company's oil operations through a subsidiary company, he said: "During 1922 Atlantic Gulf Oil Corporation produced 7,309,475 barrels of crude oil and purchased from other companies 461,244 barrels. Average daily production was 20,026. Company exported 7,081,448 barrels. The refinery treated 628,242 barrels, from which were produced 779,252 barrels of fuel oil and 137,165 barrels of distillates. During 1922 810,878 barrels of fuel oil and 136,921 barrels of distillates were exported.

"Atlantic Gulf Oil Corporation during the year has paid off $1,800,000 of loans; arrears of interest on first lien 6 per cent. gold bonds, and purchased $500,000 of the bonds. Since the beginning of the current year an additional $700,000 of the bonds have been purchased, and in April $1,000,000 of the bonds were cancelled through operation of the sinking fund."

Reduce Lead Price ¼ Cent a Pound.

The American Smelting and Refining Company yesterday announced another reduction of ¼ cent a pound in lead to 7¼ cents. The reduction is due to European competition, supplies from Spain having increased largely during recent months, shipments having been attracted by the recent high prices prevailing for this product in the American markets.

Supplies Have Increased and Rush to Secure Goods Has Abated, Says Dun's Review.

TRADE RECOVERY IS RAPID

Bradstreet's Says Best Reports of Week Are From Big Industries and Pace Is Still Swift.

An easier tendency prevails in the more important lines of industry, according to opinion expressed by the leading mercantile agencies. Dun's Review says "the effect of the record production is becoming more sharply defined in some leading industries. It is seen in the easier conditions in different markets where supplies have increased and the rush to secure goods has abated, and the current index number of wholesale prices shows a slight recession."

The paper points out that "in considering the present slackening of the business expansion and the check to the rise in prices, the fact should not be disregarded that the commercial recovery of this year has been phenomenally rapid and that prices are materially above the low level reached in the after-war deflation." Continuing, it says:

"Even with the practically full employment of workers, at enhanced wages in many instances, signs of resistance to higher retail prices have been clearly evident, and not all of the price increases in primary channels have yet been passed on to the counters. Meantime, reports are heard more frequently of the restrictive effect of high production costs on some industrial operations, the wage question being prominent."

Bradstreet's in its review says:

"The best reports of the week come from the big industries, which, taken as a whole, wrote new history in April and are still at high speed, limited in some areas, indeed, only by labor, car and material supplies. Prominent in this direction are iron and steel, automobile manufacturing, implement making and building. New high totals of pig iron and steel production and of automobile car and truck output were hung up last month, and the pace is still swift, with larger sales of farm tractors reported than for years past. April mail-order business was little below March or April a year ago, although Easter came in March this year and April of 1922. Four months' mail-order trade runs 40 per cent. ahead of a year ago, a good test, in a way, of the farmers buying. Collections are still the slowest division of trade, but even these are better than in recent weeks."

NEW HAVEN TO ISSUE BONDS

Asks Commerce Commission to Authorize $3,600,000 at 4 Per Cent.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—The New Haven Railroad asked authority of the Interstate Commerce Commission today to issue $3,600,000 in first and refunding 4 per cent. bonds, which it proposes to exchange for a like amount of New England Navigation Company debentures, and $1,192,000 of 6 per cent. gold notes, which will partly pay for twelve electric locomotives.

The Cambria and Indiana Railroad asked the commission to approve an issue of $1,700,000 in equipment trust certificates to pay a part of the cost of four locomotives and 1,000 steel coal cars.

Great Gain in Reserve Time Deposits And Drop in Demand Since Year Began

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Further reduction by $24,000,000 of investments in Government and other securities, as against an increase of $18,000,000 in loans and discounts, is shown in the Federal Reserve Board's weekly consolidated statement of condition on April 25 of 776 member banks in leading cities. As against a decrease of $16,000,000 in loans secured by Government obligations, loans secured by corporate and other obligations show an advance for the week of $20,000,000 and other, largely commercial, loans and discounts, an advance of $14,000,000. Changes in the loan and investment accounts of the member banks in New York City comprise an increase of $25,000,000 in loans against corporate and other securities, as against reductions of $17,000,000 in security investments, of $13,000,000 in loans against Government securities and of $9,000,000 in other loans and discounts.

Net withdrawals of demand deposits for the week totaled $61,000,000 for all reporting institutions and $35,000,000 for the New York City members; Government deposits show a reduction of $34,000,000 ($15,000,000 in New York City), while time deposits increased by $22,000,000 ($10,000,000 in New York City).

Since January 3 of the present year, net demand deposits of the reporting institutions declined over $370,000,000, while their time deposits advanced about $240,000,000.

For the same period the New York City banks show a decline of over $350,000,000 in net demand deposits, as against an advance of about $115,000,000 in time deposits.

Borrowings of the reporting institutions from the Federal Reserve Banks show a decrease for the week from $412,000,000 to $402,000,000, or from 2.5 to 2.4 per cent. of their total loans and investments. For member banks in New York City a decrease from $116,000,000 to $97,000,000 in borrowings from the local reserve bank and from 2.2 to 1.9 per cent in the ratio of these borrowings to total loans and investments is noted.

Reserve balances of the reporting banks show a reduction of $73,000,000, while their cash in vault increased by $2,000,000. For member banks in New York City a decrease of $40,000,000 in reserve balances and a nominal change in cash are noted.

WHEAT DROPS EARLY BUT CLOSES BETTER

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CHICAGO, May 4.—The sentimental effect of the weakness in sugar and stock markets with further improvement claimed in the Winter wheat territory and claims from the Northwest that the reduction in the Spring wheat acreage might not exceed 6 to 10 per cent, compared with recent estimates as high as 15 per cent, led to increased pressure on the market and the deferred deliveries dropped sharply to a new low on the present down turn.

July at the inside was 8¼ cents and September 7 cents under the outside figures of the previous week. Under $1.16 for July, there was stop order selling, but the character of the buying was better than the selling and a fair rally came toward the last with final trades ⅛@¼ cent lower.

May at one time went to [illegible] cent over the July, but finished ⅝ of a cent over, gaining ¼ cent on the new crop future for the day.

Buying of the May was by cash houses who were removing hedges against shipping sales, partly to exporters. Kansas City sold 25,000 bushels of hard Winter at 12¼ cents over May, F. O. B. the Gulf, and bids of 12¼ cents over were made for more. At Minneapolis 75,000 bushels of durum were sold to exporters Thursday.

While the general run of reports from the Winter wheat territory are improving, numerous complaints of dry weather are coming from the Central West, and the Modern Miller's report on Ohio, Indiana, Kansas, Oklahoma and Nebraska suggested a total crop for the five States of 258,000,000 bushels, against 278,000,000 bushels harvested last year.

But the total business reported at the seaboard, 400,000 bushels, was disappointing in view of the sharp break in futures here and the strength in Liverpool. The latter closed 1d higher to 1d lower. Houses with seaboard connections led the buying of both May wheat and corn.

May corn was bought and July sold, at practically even figures today, compared with 2 cents discount for the May at the close on Saturday. Houses with seaboard and cash connections were good buyers of the May throughout the day, and there was talk of cash business.

It was noticeable that after the close there were numerous inquiries here for cash corn, but no sales were made on account of the inability to secure vessel room. Agents here claim that the boats will go for one port and coal rather than carry grain, as the former pay better.

Local traders were extremely bearish early on account of the weakness in wheat. Closing trades were at net losses of 1¾@2¼ cent, with May finishing ½ cent under the July.

Oats closed 1¼@¾ cent lower. Liquidation was on in Rye, and it finished 1⅝@1¾ cent lower, with July leading. At one time the latter was off 3½ cents from yesterday's finish on stop order selling.

Primary arrivals of wheat today were 435,000 bushels; week ago, 705,000; last year, 775,000. Shipments were 568,000 bushels; week ago, 503,000; last year, 880,000.

Corn receipts were 397,000 bushels; week ago, 469,000; last year, 937,000, and shipments, 845,000 bushels; week ago, 480,000; last year, 904,000.

BOSTON WOOL MARKET LAGS

Mills Apparently Better Supplied Than Had Been Supposed.

BOSTON, May 4.—The Commercial Bulletin tomorrow will say: "The Boston wool market lags strangely behind the other markets of the world, in spite of the fact that consumption goes on at a heavy pace at the mills. There is a rather quiet demand for the finer qualities of combing wools and occasional call for fine clothing types, but prices still are below the parity of rates in London and decidedly behind the prices being paid in the West. In fact occasional sales of low-grade wools have been made lately at concessions in this market. The explanation of the Boston dullness seems to be that the mills are much better supplied with wool than had been supposed.

"London has shown a distinct and steadily hardening tendency since the opening day, and strictly fine-warp wools have risen more or less steadily. Competition is general on all descriptions at the sales. The foreign primary markets are practically cleared of all wool.

"In the West, Texas has been the centre of chief interest, 55 cents being paid for twelve months' choice wool, estimated to cost, laid down Boston, clean basis, about $1.50."

High Wool Prices Check Sales.

LONDON, May 4.—The offerings at the wool auctions today amounted to 12,639 bales. There was a good attendance, and full rates were paid for superior wools, although medium grades were irregular. There were many withdrawals, caused by the high prices sellers were asking.

PUBLIC LOANS FEWER.

State and City Issues in April About Half Those of a Year Ago.

The decline in borrowing by State and cities is again reflected in the figures for April made public by the Daily Bond Buyer, which show total loans of $75,172,772, against $147,300,292 in April, 1922, and $94,052,250 in April, 1921.

PROTEST TO HARDING ON SHIPYARD AWARD

GETS A $400,000 SAVING

Congressman Black Joins Commerce Chamber in Fight—Hits Contract With Private Concern.

A protest against the action of the United States Shipping Board in awarding the contract for the reconditioning of the steamer President Buchanan, a former German liner, to the Newport News Shipbuilding Company, instead of to the Navy Yard in Brooklyn, was telegraphed to President Harding yesterday by the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce. The protest, which was proposed at a monthly meeting in the Chamber of Commerce Building, 32 Court Street, by Arthur S. Somers, President, was unanimously adopted by 200 Brooklyn business men.

The message of President Harding asserted that Brooklyn bid $400,000 less than Newport News and that there was on hand in the Brooklyn Navy Yard more than 1,000 tons of steel and $20,000 to $30,000 of electric cables, or a total of nearly $100,000 in material which could have been used.

"Admiral Plunkett," the message stated, "was not given promised hearing before the bid was awarded. Work of the Brooklyn Navy Yard cannot be excelled by any other navy yard and our citizens are at a loss to understand why the Government should spend over one-half million dollars more for this work than it would cost at Brooklyn Navy Yard."

The telegram suggested a delegation to visit the President and urged that a committee from the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce and Admiral Plunkett be heard "before the award is consummated."

It was announced at the navy yard that the workers employed there would hold a mass meeting at the Clermont Rink, Clermont and Myrtle Avenues, Brooklyn, on the evening of May 15, as a protest against the award being made to Newport News. Employes expressed disappointment and indignation when they learned the news yesterday. The navy yard and Brooklyn business men were looking for Brooklyn to have the contract, as it would have meant prolonged employment for the workers. More than 2,500 men will be laid off, it is believed, if the award of the contract to Newport News is consummated.

Rear Admiral Charles P. Plunkett, commandant of the navy yard, said he had received no report that the contract had been awarded to a private shipbuilding concern and all that he knew of the award was what he had read in the newspapers.

Representatives of various civic organizations of Brooklyn and borough officials have been invited to attend the mass meeting on May 15. Invitations will be sent to President Somers of the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce, Mayor Hylan, United States Senator Copeland, and Assistant Secretary of the Navy Theodore Roosevelt. A committee of women will call on Mayor Hylan and Former Alfred E. Smith in connection with the award.

Congressman Loring M. Black Jr. of the 14th Congressional District, Brooklyn, joined the Chamber in protesting against the award. In a telegram to President Harding Mr. Black branded the action as "a questionable and arbitrary proceeding. He asked that the contract be rescinded, stating that the Brooklyn Navy Yard's bid was lower than any private bid of the private shipyards by about four hundred thousand dollars."

Congressman Black expressed surprise that the Shipping Board would take such hasty action in order to favor a private shipbuilding concern when it seemed such a serious thing with the United States to put 2,500 public workers out of work."

ASKS SPECIAL BUREAU FOR CONTROL OF DRUGS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Resolutions passed today by the National Anti-Narcotic Conference asked that Federal control of the drug traffic be divorced from the Prohibition Bureau. No reflection upon Major Roy A. Haynes, Prohibition Commissioner, was intended, but the conference believed the work of enforcing the anti-drug laws could be better carried on separately, it was stated.

Another resolution passed today requested larger appropriations for the Federal agencies combating the illegal use of drugs. The present appropriation of $750,000, and there are only 163 agents in the field. The conference held that fully $2,000,000 was required and that the field agents should be increased to 500.

Frederick A. Wallis, former Commissioner of Immigration at Ellis Island, and now Commissioner of Correction of New York City, declared to the conference tonight that the question of drug addiction was the greatest menace confronting civilization today.

"Here are the appalling, almost unbelievable facts," said Commissioner Wallis. "The amount of opium used by the leading nations of the world, according to latest available scientific evidence, is as follows: The annual per capita consumption in Italy is one grain; in Germany, two grains; in England, three grains; in France, four grains. The United States, which does not grow one commercial poppy plant, used the enormous amount of 36 grains per capita per annum. Why, even in India, with all of its opium antecedents, only 27 grains are used. Furthermore, our consumption of opium is steadily on the increase, in spite of the Harrison Narcotic act, passed in 1914, which is conceded to be the most restrictive and punitive measure ever passed by any nation in the world."

Commissioner Wallis insisted that no organization could cure itself of drug addiction, and suggested that the Government should break off diplomatic relations with any country which directly or indirectly countenanced the continuance of the habit-forming drug traffic and which declined to enter a world-wide agreement to suppress the traffic.

Eastchester Road and the Bronx-Pelham Parkway

Sounds like "Broadway and 42d St." or "The Concourse and Fordham Road"! Eastchester Road and the Bronx-Pelham Parkway are just as promising as these two centers were a few years back, when long-headed investors bought Broadway and Concourse lots for a song, and founded the fortunes their children are spending today.

Can't you see the money to be made buying lots on and near Eastchester Road—100 feet wide—and the Bronx-Pelham Parkway—400 feet wide—with three rapid transit lines within walking distance, as the population of the Bronx increases?

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 4.—Pressure was low and falling Friday night almost generally, except from the Hudson Bay region southwestward to New Mexico and Western Texas, where high pressure prevailed. There were centers of minimum pressure over the east Gulf States, the upper Ohio valley, the southern Plateau region, Saskatchewan and south of Nova Scotia.

This pressure distribution has been attended by showers within the last twenty-four hours in the middle Mississippi valley and the Southern States and by generally fair weather over practically all other sections. The temperature was somewhat higher Friday in the lower Lake region, the Middle Atlantic States and the northwest and it was slightly lower from Illinois and Indiana southward to the middle Gulf Coast.

The weather will be unsettled Saturday and Sunday over the Atlantic and East Gulf States, Tennessee, the Ohio valley and the lower Lake region and showers are probable over the greater portion of this area. The temperature will be somewhat lower in the Middle Atlantic States, the upper Ohio Valley and the lower lake region and it will not change materially elsewhere during the next two days.

MRS. STOKES TO GET ALIMONY OF $18,000

HUSBAND LOSES A POINT

Cannot Amend His Complaint in Pending Divorce Suit—Counsel Fees Held to $20,000.

The temporary alimony of $30,000 which Supreme Court Justice Guy ordered be paid to Helen Elwood Stokes, was ordered reduced to $18,000, the amount first granted to her, through a decision handed down yesterday by the Appellate Division. The Appellate Division, however, affirmed Justice Guy's refusal to grant to W. E. D. Stokes permission to further amend his complaint in the suit for divorce now pending against his wife. It also reduced the allowance made for additional counsel fees from $30,000 to $20,000, permitting $10,000 for other expenses to stand.

Part of the decision reads:

"In view of the fact that in the action of Helen E. Stokes against William E. D. Stokes, Albert H. Gleason and Mervyn Realty Company, judgment has been granted enjoining and restraining William E. D. Stokes and the Mervyn Realty Company from selling, transferring or disposing of the land and premises, or any part or parcel thereof therein described, and that the defendant claims that by reason thereof he is unable to realise on said property and to pay the sums awarded for counsel fee and expenses, the order for payment of counsel fee and expenses should be made conditional upon the defendant herein consenting to a modification of the injunctive provisions of the judgment, so that same shall provide that she shall join with the Mervyn Realty Company, and the plaintiff in the conveyance of any parcel of said real estate to a bona fide purchaser upon terms of sale agreed upon between the plaintiff, the Mervyn Realty Company, and the purchaser, upon condition that one-third of net proceeds of said sale shall be deposited in the Empire Trust Company to be invested and reinvested and the income thereof paid to the plaintiff during his life, and that upon his death, if the marriage between the parties remains undissolved, the principal so deposited shall stand in lieu of the real estate so sold as security for the defendant's dower interest, and she shall have the election to receive the income thereon during her life or to have the cash value of her dower interest determined and paid therefrom; if she shall elect to take the cash value thereof, the remainder of the fund after payment of defendant's dower interest shall revert to plaintiff's estate and the remainder on her death. In the event of the final dissolution of the marriage in favor of the plaintiff the fund so deposited shall be deemed realized from any claim of defendant's dower and shall be repaid to him on the order of the court."

BUILDING PLANS SHOW AN INCREASE

Total This Year for Four Months $52,853,450, Against $50,795,226 in 1922.

The report for building operations for the first four months of the year, given out yesterday by Charles Brady, Superintendent of the Bureau of Buildings of Manhattan, shows that plans were filed for 421 new buildings, costing $52,853,450, as compared with 304, costing $50,795,226, in the same period last year, thus showing a gain of 117 in number of buildings and $2,058,224 in money.

Applications were filed for making alterations to 2,075 buildings, costing $8,492,866 against 1,141, costing $8,911,616, the same period last year, showing a reduction of 66 in the number of buildings to be altered and $418,750 in money.

The report for April shows that plans were filed for the construction of 59 new buildings, costing $12,845,250, against 79, costing $13,378,856, the same month last year, a reduction of 20 in number of buildings and $533,606 in money. Plans were filed for one dwelling costing $30,000, against four costing $254,276 the same month last year, and no tenements, against seven costing $2,015,000.

STELLA LARRIMORE WINS TRIAL BY JURY

Stella Larrimore, one of the corespondents in the Farrar-Tellegen divorce suit, obtained the right for a trial by jury to clear her name of the charges made against her, by a decision handed down yesterday by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court. The Appellate Justices unanimously reversed Supreme Court Justice O'Malley's decision denying her the right of jury trial. Justice Victor A. Dowling, who wrote the opinion, said:

"I am of the opinion that the corespondent in a divorce case is sufficiently a party to the action (certainly being made so by the issue affecting her) to entitle her to a jury trial under the provision of section 1149 of the Civil Practice act. The Legislature has wisely extended the right to a corespondent to defend her good name, which otherwise might be at the mercy of a collusive suit between the wife and husband."

A Big Fight Looms Over Immigration

JUDGE GARY, of the United States Steel Corporation, said a few days ago that "America is faced by a shortage of labor due principally to the laws restricting immigration. These laws, as passed, are the worst things that ever happened to this country economically. There is a great abundance of labor on the other side of the water that would be glad to come over and develop our resources." In a later statement he explained that he does not defend unrestricted immigration but that he would have the restrictions so modified that the "number allowed to come here should be equal to the necessities of our industries." Judge Gary is supported in his contention by the leading financial papers.

The majority opinion as reflected in the editorial columns of the daily press seems to line up with Labor rather than with Judge Gary in this heated controversy.

Secretary of Labor Davis, in a report to President Harding, says: "It is unnecessary to point out the evil of throwing open the gates at a time of prosperity in order to flood the country with workers and non-workers whose very presence would serve to bring prosperity to an end."

All sides of this important question, which undoubtedly will be carried into Congress, are presented in THE LITERARY DIGEST this week, May 5.
